TURKS DEFY MORAL SUASION

Our Opinions Are Used if They Further Others' Interests, Not if They Clash.

NO PART IN REAL PARLEYS

LAUSANNE, Dec. 21.—The role of the United States at the Lausanne conference presents aspects of absorbing interest and, following the rejection in the Straits settlement yesterday of our protest against a Straits commission, it is the subject of discussion among many diplomats.

It can scarcely be said that participation up to now in the Near East negotiations has added to our prestige. The contrary probably is true. In few conferences at which we have half participated has our influence been less in so far as concerns the concrete results attained. This is not difficult to explain. In other conferences we have been facing European nations on whom our ammunition of moral suasion and advice is effective. Here we are dealing with the Turks who as a rule are invulnerable to moral suasion. A promise to use navies and armies appears to have more effect on the Turks than any diplomatic weapons at the disposition of Ambassador Child and his colleagues. If we make a sorry showing it perhaps is not so much the fault of Mr. Child as of the system he represents.

Invariably our statements take the appearance of advice to other nations on how to write a treaty that we don't intend to sign, it being our intention to make our own treaty. This has led to the not unnatural result in an unaltruistic conference that our declarations are used when they further the interests of others and have rather less influence when they clash with those of the European powers. We have a certain influence on the Turks not because of our Christian intentions but because we have money. To a certain extent they listen to us. But there is a limit to their attention to Mr. Child.

The Straits as an Illustration.

Take the Straits issue. The Allies and Britain in particular wanted the Straits opened to warships, whereas Russia, with Turkey agreeing at the beginning, wished them closed to warships. Mr. Child's declaration that America wanted her warships to go wherever her merchant ships went unquestionably gave force to the British contention and helped the allied argument that if Turkey played the Russian game Russia would remain her only friend.

Turkey discontinued Russian guidance and began to drift toward the allied plan. Turkey having made up her mind to agree to the allied plan if she got her price, Turkey and Britain conducted the Straits negotiations almost by themselves, each hurling threats and ultimatums, but both working toward a settlement. At a late hour came the American opposition to a Straits commission which the Turks had previously opposed bitterly. This would appear to have given Turkey grounds for further resistance, but in the meanwhile the Allies had agreed to the Turks' price, which was no limitation of their army and in his final speech Ismet, although having in his pocket the support of America against the Straits Commission which he had bitterly rejected for public consumption a week before, did not mention Mr. Child's action and swallowed the commission pill.

In allied quarters one heard praise for the American stand when these views agreed with theirs. One heard no mention of the American note against a commission until it leaked out after everything was cut and dried. This is a natural result of side-line diplomacy. Observers may attend the full dress meetings, but they are not in on the real negotiations. At this moment in the Lausanne Palace Hotel Lord Curzon, M. Barrère and the Marquis di Garroni are sitting in a room on the fourth floor, negotiating with Ismet, while Mr. Child is out buying Christmas presents.

Separate Treaty Difficulties.

Now, it is the position of the American delegation that no American rights are affected by decisions over the Straits, for we are not bound. Will this position bear analysis? The allied plan adopted by the Turks controls the passage of warships not of allied nations but of foreign powers. When we get to making a treaty with the Turks we will find their hands tied by the Lausanne treaty. It is well to recall that for more than fifty years before the World War our warships with all others were shut out of the Black Sea, except as the Sultan chose to admit them, by povisions of a treaty to which we were not a party, any more than we will be a party to the Lausanne arrangement.

The conference now stands at a deadlock on the issue of capitulations. America with the European nations wishes the capitulations retained or replaced by other guarantees. The Turks stand adamant against all extra protention for foreigners. They claim the right to abrogate the treaties by which the capitulations were granted and offer nothing in return. The Allies agree to a reformation of the present system, but they hold out for a system of guarantees for foreigners living and doing business in Turkey.

The Turks reply that their laws are the equal of any in the world and that their judiciary is above reproach. Those who knew Turkey laugh at this statement, but the Turks stand pat. Daily reports to the allied delegations here tell of unjustified arrests of foreigners and of unfair judicial treatment. A number of business French and other British have closed their establishments and threaten to quit Turkey if some substitute for the capitulations is not given. In three weeks of discussion of the capitulations issue not an inch of headway has been made.

Now, it is quite evident that what protection foreigners get in Turkey will be had because of the influence that the British and French can bring to bear through a threat ultimately to use force. Mr. Child has presented his point of view to the Turks and up to the present it has produced no result. As whatever Straits privileges will get depends on what the Allies wring from the Turks here, so what privileges our citizens will have in Turkey will depend upon what Britain, France and Italy force the Turks to concede.

This was indicated today by a member of the Turk delegation, to whom was mentioned the fact that America had capitulation rights under treaties which has not been destroyed by the war, since we were not at war with Turkey.

"You are wrong for two reasons," he said. "America acquired capitulation rights later than the other nations and was acquired them through getting the rights of the most-favored nation. If these most-favored nations no longer have their capitulation rights then neither has America. In the second place we have abolished all capitulations and that goes for all nations, including America as well as Spain and Holland. What rights you will have in Turkey will be by virtue of conventions made on the basis of equality and reppocity."

It is obvious that we will be able to get from Turkey the same rights as other nations, but probably not more unless we wish to fight for them. In calculating how far they can go against the seat of the world, the Turks at Lausanne worry least of all about the Americans. The Turk delegate I have quoted said further:

"We thought when we came here that America would be a big figure, would be a smart arbiter who would settle the big questions. We have been disappointed.

"We are interested in minorities. We want them protected. But it is all too evident now that all the protection they will get will be the promises the Turks have made under the same treaties as apply to minorities in Central European countries. Whatever protection this gives will be the League of Nations protection, in which we will not participate. And, there is a grave question whether the minorities will have any more than a Turk paper promise of protection. Studies by the League show that in days when there were 3,000,000 Armenians in Turkey instead of 130,000.

A considerable sentiment in the United States favors a national home for Armenians. There are American agents here working for that, but not the American delegation has as yet said one word in favor of it. The indications are all against the Armenians getting their national home as a result of the Lausanne negotiations. This justifies the question whether America expects to get private treaty with the Turks to get protection for minorities and a home for the Armenians. The question possibly answers itself.

It might be asked how we could be more successful in getting the results we seek. The answer lies in the meeting upstairs I have referred to. If America were in with both feet Mr. Child would be up there with Lord Curzon, M. Barrere, the Marquis di Garroni and M. Ismet as they are settling with the exception of the frills the issues of minorities, capitulations, Mosul or other questions in which we are interested.

In conclusion it may be mentioned that hopes of the Mosul negotiations come out into the open the British are insisting on a London-Washington accord on all rights in the Mosul fields. Whether they are referring to a private understanding between the Standard Oil and the Shell interests or whether it is something more, I do not know. But Mr. Child insists there exists no understanding between Britain and America on the subject of Mosul and that our position is simply that of being in favor of the open door. The Turks say they wish to make a settlement on Mosul which will satisfy every one, including America, and in that situation the British argument that they will take care of American demands may have an effect on the Turks easily imaginable.

WOMAN INTERVENES IN NORTHCLIFFE WILL tour Harold William Stead, who was one of the Northcliffe party, said:

"He simply threw it at me and told me to get somebody else to sign it, which I did."

The case was adjourned until the next term.

The Daily Herald understands that under Lord Northcliffe's will the benefit of his large fortune will ultimately go to two press charities—the Printers' Pension Corporation and the Newspaper Press Fund. This is subject to a large number of life interests, says The Herald, and the two funds will not benefit until the last of the lives is ended. As the youngest immediate beneficiary is about seven years old, it would be some time in the natural course of events before the final transfer was made.

LONDON, Dec. 21 (Associated Press.)—It was learned that Mrs. C. A. Thomas of Brixton, who intervened in the Northcliffe will case, alleges she has a claim on the estate through an Australian relative of Lord Northcliffe.

VENIZELOS AND RIZA CLASH AT LAUSANNE

Altercation Between Ex-Premier of Greece and Turk Envoy Disrupts a Session.

ALARM IN THE NEAR EAST

Conference Is Told of Massacres of Moslems and of Destitution of Christian Refugees.

LAUSANNE, Dec. 21 (Associated Press.)—A stirring altercation took place at a meeting of the sub-commission on minorities today between the former Greek Premier, Venizelos, and the Turkish delegate, Riza Nur Bey. The dispute between the two arose over the question of responsibility for Greek deportations in Asia Minor, and was so violent that it became necessary to adjourn the session.

According to spokesmen of the Turkish delegation, Riza Nur Bey declared that the Greek Army was not so much responsible for the recent military disaster as was Venizelos himself, because it was Venizelos who had inaugurated the idea of "a military invasion of Anatolia." Riza affirmed that in his opinion the Greek Ministers who were recently executed at Athens were in all probability entirely innocent of deceiving the Greek people because the real father of the Asia Minor campaign was Venizelos.

The Italian Chairman of the sub-commission, Signor Montagna, had previously warned both the Turkish and Greek delegates that references to massacres and cruelties must henceforth be avoided, but, the Turks alleged, Venizelos today refused to obey this injunction. He delivered a bitter indictment against the Turkish Army and went so far the Turkish delegates assert, that the Chairman was obliged repeatedly to call him to order.

After insistent attempts Riza Nur Bey eventually got the floor and defended Turkey and then made a personal attack on the former Greek Premier.

The voices of the two delegates rose to a high pitch, both speaking at the same time and refusing to heed the pleadings of the chairman that they calm down. In view of this, Signor Montagna declared the session adjourned amid confusion.

Alarming Reports From East.

Another indication that feeling is running high between the Turks and the Greeks was found in a communique which the Turkish delegation issued later, declaring that recent advices from Angora prove that the Greeks are confiscating all the farms belonging to Moslems in Crete and that the Moslems in the hills, fearing massacre, have fled to the cities and are dying of hunger.

"Every day more than twenty Moslems are dying either through massacre or hunger," says the communique, "and Moslems generally are forbidden to leave Crete. The Turks also alleged mistreatment of the Moslems in Mitylene.

Another complication in Near Eastern conditions was disclosed in a telegram, dated Dec. 19, which reached here tonight from Beirut. Foreign relief workers report that between Dec. 9 and 16, 5,000 Armenian refugees, fleeing from Turkey, had arrived at Aleppo, and 3,000 more were reported crossing the border into Syria the day the dispatch was forwarded.

All are in an appalling state of destitution, and nearly all of them were robbed," says the telegram. "The French are furnishing housing and food. Clothing and food just come from Australia were shipped to Aleppo today. The French are feeding 1,200. The American Near East Relief is straining every resources."

Conference on the Straits.

Lord Curzon, M. Barrere and the Marquis di Garroni held an important conference tonight in an endeavor to straighten out the remaining difficulties over the Straits control. The Turks are insisting strongly that the international commission shall have no jurisdiction over such matters as lighthouse and pilotage in the Straits and especially shall have nothing to do with the demilitarization of the zones.

Strengthened by the American view that a Straits control commission is needless, the Turks said tonight they saw no real necessity for a commission, particularly as its powers would be so limited; yet they had accepted the idea of the commission and would abide by their acceptance.

One of the gravest items on the agenda yet unsolved is the question of foreign consular courts in Turkey which the Turks declare must be abolished, but the European nations, as well as the Americans, want these courts maintained.

Taxation of foreign corporations in Turkey was discussed by the Subcommission on Economics and Capitulations. A suggestion was made by allied representatives that Turkey guarantee a period of twenty years in which foreign corporations shall not be taxed heavier than Turkish corporations. While no decision has been reached on this point, the Turks seem inclined to give such guarantee in an effort to encourage foreign corporations to remain in their country.

Former Admiral Behrens and General Shaposhnikoff, the Russian naval and military experts, will leave Lausanne tomorrow. Tchitcherin and Rakovsky, with fifteen assistants, remain here.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 21.—Angora today instructed its delegates to the Lausanne conference not to make any concessions on the Mosul oil question. It is asserted that the population of the district is demanding that the British evacuate and the district be resnexed to Turkey.

When it is pointed out that Lord Curzon succeeded in removing the question from the Lausanne conference with an agreement that Turkey enter the League of Nations the Turks draw attention to the fact that Ismet Pasha accepted league membership effective only after peace had been reached, leaving the Mosul problem still before the Lausanne conference.

COURT CLEARS IMPORTER.

Larceny Indictment Against D. S. Stern Is Not Justified.

Judge Mulqueen in General Sessions yesterday dismissed an indictment against David S. Stern, head of David S. Stern & Co., importers in this city and San Francisco, alleging the larceny of $9,350 from Isak Siesbye, a merchant of Copenhagen, Denmark.

"The minutes of the Grand Jury contain no proof that the defendant ever received or appropriated one penny of the complainant's money," the Court stated in an opinion handed down when the indictment was dismissed. Judge Mulqueen, referring to contentions of Louis Marshall, counsel for the accused merchant, said that criticisms of the improper testimony submitted to the Grand Jury which returned the indictment were justified.

ELLIOTT CREDITORS CLAMOR AT HEARING

Counsel for Corporation Protests When Referee Olney Shuts Off a Witness.

LIGHT ON PIGGLY WIGGLY

Witness Testifies as to Relations Between Business Builders and Corporation.

Lawyers and creditors engaged in verbal pyrotechnics yesterday at the bankruptcy inquiry into the assets of Elliott's Business Builders, Inc., before Referee Peter B. Olney Jr. About forty creditors of the corporation and certain Piggly Wiggly Company subsidiaries crowded the ten by ten office of the referee while lawyers for the corporation and the creditors engaged in heated words during the examination of William B. Bentley, former treasurer of the firm.

Vincent Leibell, counsel for the corporation and for James W. Elliott, its reputed head, protested when the referee shut off further examination of the witness after David H. Lehman had, among other things, obtained from Bentley an assertion that a statement made in a pamphlet issued by the firm was incorrect.

"This examination is merely for the purpose of newspaper propaganda," Liebell declared. "Counsel for the creditors doesn't want me to question the witness because he knows that I will prove that the complaining witness here was really an employe who owed the firm money."

"I'm not interested in that phase of the matter," broke in Referee Olney. "I'm trying to trace assets."

Referee Olney then looked out the window while Leibell asked two or three questions, the purport of which was lost in the hubbub among the creditors. Then the referee announced that he would adjourn the hearing until Dec. 29 and Lehman stated that he would examine out-of-town witnesses next Wednesday afternoon.

Bentley told of the organization of the Elliott corporation and certain Piggly Wiggly companies which were alleged to be affiliated with the firm. He identified sixteen publications, including some pamphlets, all of which contained advertising matter of the corporation and its subsidiaries. He said that a statement contained in one of the pamphlets that the Elliott Business Builders corporation owned 60,000 shares of the New England Piggly Wiggly Corporation was incorrect.

Bentley told the referee that the Manhattan Piggly Wiggly corporation was not part of the Elliott organization but admitted that it occupied the same offices with Elliott's firm at 620 Fifth Avenue and the Piggly Wiggly corporation paid the rent of four floors there, amounting to about $9,000. He also admitted that the lease was in Elliott's name and that the lease was broken by Elliott.

Bentley testified that Elliott received $100,000 for the franchise of the Western New York subsidiary, which originally cost $65,000 and that Elliott's Piggly Wiggly corporations in Pennsylvania and Connecticut had been turned over by Elliott without payment to the head of the Business Builders firm. He declared that the latter firm owed Elliott $200,000.

Referee Olney at the request of the lawyer for the group of creditors appointed Dr. Louis Kraemer and Examiner Elliott to learn whether he would be in condition to testify at the hearing on Dec. 29.

HUNT FLEEING CAR FOR DENVER BANDITS

Sheriff, Armored Police Auto and Posse Pursuing—Occupants Stop for Aid.

DENVER, Dec. 21.—Police and other officers of Northern Colorado tonight are hunting for four men in an automobile suspected of being the bandits who on Monday shot and killed Charles T. Linton, Federal Reserve Bank guard, in front of the Mint here after they had stolen $200,000 in currency.

The hunt started this afternoon when Henry Pucus, a farmer living about twenty miles east of Greeley, and fifty miles north of here, reported to Sheriff Hall of Greeley, that he had encountered four heavily armed men in an abandoned house on his ranch property.

Sheriff Hall asked the Denver police for assistance and with six deputies and a State ranger started for the farmhouse. The Denver department's armored riot car equipped with machine guns and two automobiles loaded with officers and detectives armed with sawed-off shotguns started for Greeley to join in the pursuit. A third automobile carrying several hundred rounds of ammunition later was sent from Denver.

Later in the afternoon Sheriff Hall reported by telephone that he had arrived at the ranch house, but that the men had left. Later, Mrs. Gus Downer, living just outside of Greeley, reported that about 3:30 o'clock this afternoon a man came to her house and asked for a pan of water and some cotton, explaining that he had a man in his car who had been hurt. Mrs. Downer gave him a pan of water and a roll of gauze, which he took back to the car. A few minutes later the car sped away toward Fort Collins. She said the car's curtains were drawn and some one in the car threw the pan out as the car went by the house.

The cars of Denver police are mobilized in Greeley awaiting further word.

CHICAGO STATION DESTROYED BY FIRE

Flames Sweep Away the Old Dearborn Street Station, Which Has Been Used by 8 Lines.

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—Fire starting a few minutes before 4 o'clock this afternoon destroyed the Dearborn Street Railroad Station, formerly known as the Polk Street Depot, and left eight railroads homeless in Chicago. The building, erected in 1884, was valued at $300,000, but will cost more than $1,000,000 to replace, it is said.

Within a little more than an hour after a traffic policeman saw smoke issuing from the roof the flames swept through the old brick and wood structure, once the pride of railroad men, and left only a smoke-blackened brick shell behind.

Hundreds of passengers and 500 men and women clerks fled to safety. Mrs. Hazel Locker, a woman clerk, fainted and was trampled by the wild rush of clerks from the upper floors. A policeman carried her out.

Postal clerks with motor trucks rescued 150 tons of holiday mail, and railroad employes saved all passenger cars in the trainsheds and five carloads of Christmas mail.

The station was owned by the Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad and was used by trains of that line and the Santa Fe, Monon, Erie, Chesapeake & Ohio, Chicago & Eastern Illinois, Wabash and Canadian Grand Trunk systems.

Crossed wires are believed to have started the fire, which spread so rapidly that within fifteen minutes after it was discovered the roof of the north wing fell in.

As the swirling columns of fire wrapped around the tall clock tower, nearly 250 feet above the street, hundreds of pigeons deserted their nesting place and took to the air.

The firemen were hampered by poor water pressure and the crowds of Christmas shoppers. Their streams barely reached to the base of the tower, and at times the crowd became so dense they were forced to abandon their work to assist the police in driving the spectators out of the danger zone.

The eight railroads began reorganizing their service while the fire was still at its height, establishing offices in the station annex, a one-story building across the alley.

PROTEST RESTORING ARBUCKLE TO FILMS

at any place to defend himself," said Schenck. "He and I have the profoundest respect for these men, but it is not fair in them to condemn him without giving him a trial.

"He is as clean as any one in motion pictures today. He merely got into a jam.' He was unfortunate. Personally, I think he should be given another trial. He is honest, intelligent and diligent. I do not believe they should try to keep him down.

"It is not a matter of money with me. I don't want to make a dollar out of Arbuckle. I simply think he should be given another chance and I am going to put him to work."

The session of the West Lake Presbyterian Church, of which the Rev. G. A. Brieglieb is pastor and where Will H. Hays spoke last Sunday night, sent a telegram to Mr. Hays reading:

"Your statements from West Lake pulpit relative to your intentions as motion picture director impressed the session and membership with your sincerity and honesty of purpose. You made positive and unequivocal promises. Indeed your own words were 'that you had full authority and would have no alibi for your offer.' We, as a session, honored and respected you as a fellow elder. Your action in reinstating Arbuele is in absolute variance with your promises from our pulpit. Will you not rescind the Arbuckle order? Your failure to do so will mean forfeiture of the respect and confidence of our people, and, we believe, the forfeiture of the confidence and respect of all God-fearing, decent men and women. We pray God that you may carefully reconsider the Arbuckle order."

Arbuckle was making ready for his reentry into motion pictures after Jan. 1, while members of the Los Angeles District Federation of Women's Clubs announced they could "not recede from their opposition" to his plans.

After Mr. Hays had announced here yesterday that Arbuckle might have another "chance" to "make good," the Los Angeles district adopted a resolution affirming a previous one opposing his reappearance in pictures.

Mrs. J. C. Urquhart, President of the district, stated that although Arbuckle at his third trial in San Francisco had been acquitted of causing the death of Virginia Rappe, screen actress, the testimony "was of such a character as to bar him forever from appearing before a decent, self-respecting public."

"I can truthfully say," she declared, "that the club women of this country will not commend any Arbuckle films and I do not think any film will succeed without our commendation."

Catholic Welfare Council Acts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—Catholic men and women all over the country who are connected with the National Catholic Welfare Council will be called upon to unite in an effort to keep films with Roscoe Arbuckle from being shown, as Charles A. McMahon, Director of the Motion Picture Bureau of the organization, announced tonight. Mr. McMahon, who is also a member of the Executive Committee on Public Relations which Mr. Hays organized to cooperate with the moving picture industry, issued a statement in which he severely condemned Mr. Hays for his declaration that Arbuckle would be given "another chance" and would be allowed to return to the screen. This statement reads in part:

"The announcement of Arbuckle's reinstatement by Mr. Hays comes as a decided shock to those who had been led to believe that there was no longer any room in the motion-picture industry for persons of the Arbuckle type. I feel that Mr. Hays has misjudged the temper of the American people if he thinks they will agree with his action in the Arbuckle case. Mr. Hays and his employers are guilty not only of an error of judgment, which is certain to arouse widespread condemnation, but are likewise guilty of failing to keep faith with the American people in making good on the incorporated aims and purposes of the National Association of Motion Picture Producers and Distributers—as frequently repeated by Mr. Hays—namely, 'to elevate the moral and artistic standards of the screen.'

"In dealing with the recent baseball scandal Judge Landis, whose responsibility is similar to that of Mr. Hays, gave proof of his desire to maintain the integrity of the national pastime. His action received the approval of every one interested in clean sport and restored a wavering allegiance on the part of the public.

"Notwithstanding Arbuckle's acquittal of the charge of murder, sufficient evidence was brought out at his three trials clearly to indicate his unfitness to appear on the screen. Mr. Hays's willingness to be charitable, while very commendable in itself, is not sufficient justification for the flaunting of this discredited actor before the American people. The public is likely to suspect that the desire to recover the millions of dollars invested in unreleased Arbuckle films has outweighed the producers' announced purpose to serve the American public in a manner which would merit its respect and commendation.

"Mr. Hays and his employers have as yet failed fully to appreciate that the American people look as a whole clean-minded and demand that their entertainment, whether on the stage or on the screen, be wholesome as well as artistic and entertaining. Morality cannot be legislated into the stage or the screen or into the people responsible for them; but public opinion is certain to reform—to the extent that it heeds reform—the motion picture industry and the people in it.

"Mr. Hays's action is sure to react against the industry and to increase the already very large and constantly growing defection in motion picture attendance on the part of people who by staying away from the movies feel that they can in this way protest against the abuse and not the proper use of the motion pictures. Mr. Hays might better have charged off to profit and loss the industry's investment in the Arbuckle films and employed the former screen comedian in some submerged position where he could earn his livelihood without flaunting himself before our American youth.

"The Motion Picture Bureau of the National Catholic Welfare Council, while affiliated with the Committee on Public Relations, formed some time ago to co-operate with the motion picture industry to elevate the standard of the screen, condemns this decision to reinstate Arbuckle and will call upon its affiliated organizations of Catholic men and women to work in their respective communities throughout the United States to prevent the showing of the Arbuckle films."

Educational Association Protest.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—A telegram protesting against the granting of permission to Roscoe Arbuckle to resume work in motion pictures was sent by the headquarters staff of the National Education Association today to Will H. Hays. The telegram asks that Mr. Hays reopen the case of Arbuckle and that the movie arbiter reconsider his "decision of clemency."

"The actor," the telegram said, "is a teacher whose influence on public ideals is direct and powerful. Especially are motion picture actors idealized by tens of thousands of American youth. Those who are charged with protecting the interest of youth will undoubtedly insist that Arbuckle films be not shown in their respective States and localities."

Boston Officials Hostile.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Dec. 21.—Mayor Curley, ministers and representative women's club leaders today generally condemned Will Hays's permission to Roscoe Arbuckle to re-enter motion pictures. Many termed the action a betrayal of the confidence shown by the people in their recent defeat of the movie censorship referendum in this State. Others severely scored the judgment and policy of Mr. Hays in his decision.

Mayor Curley, who is a member of the local infernal censorship board, composed also of the Police Commissioner and John M. Casey, Boston's amusement censor, said he believed all Arbuckle films should be barred, despite Mr. Hays's action.

"It is not only a matter of public morals but one involving the protection of the industry as well," the Mayor declared.

Among the many ministers giving their views was Dr. A. A. Conrad of the Park Street Church.

"Arbuckle has disgraced himself forever. It would be a public disgrace to sanction him," Dr. Conrad said.

"It would have to be a low public opinion that could approve Arbuckle now," said the Rev. George A. Gordon of the Old South.

Mrs. Trueworthy White, Chairman of the Citizens' Committee of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters, said she "could not understand how anybody could be interested in Mr. Arbuckle any more." Miss Cook, Director of the Girls' City Club, wanted her disapproval made emphatic.

Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney, Past President of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs, who served on the committee which urged the adoption of the censorship bill in November, said she was not surprised at the Arbuckle decision.

"There isn't anything one can say in the face of the recent vote of the people of this State," was Mrs. Gurney's conclusion. "Of course, I am decidedly against any such proceeding."

Another voice was added to the chorus of disapproval by the protest of Miss Florence H. Luscomb, club woman and worker for women's advancement.

"The appearance of Mr. Arbuckle on the motion picture screen will not have an uplifting effect upon our young people," declared Miss Luscomb. "He should not be allowed to come back."

Chicago Club Women Indignant.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—Chicago club women today initiated action to prevent the showing of Arbuckle films in Chicago. Under the leadership of Mrs. Charles F. Merriam, Chairman of Better Films Department of the Illinois Council of Parent-Teacher Association, a group of women representatives from leading organizations planned to bring their protest to the Illinois Motion Picture Association at its next meeting.

"It is much more disastrous," declared Mrs. Merriam, "for a motion picture star's private life to be tainted than for the star to have to play an evil character on the film. Arbuckle cannot come back to the Chicago screen, for the children will surely associate him with his recent sensational trial."

While affiliated with the Committee on Public Relations, formed some time ago to co-operate with the motion picture industry to elevate the standard of the screen, condemns this decision to reinstate Arbuckle and will call upon its affiliated organizations of Catholic men and women to work in their respective communities throughout the United States to prevent the showing of the Arbuckle films."

Among the many ministers giving their views was Dr. A. A. Conrad of the Park Street Church.

"Arbuckle has disgraced himself forever. It would be a public disgrace to sanction him," Dr. Conrad said.

"It would have to be a low public opinion that could approve Arbuckle now," said the Rev. George A. Gordon of the Old South.

Mrs. Trueworthy White, Chairman of the Citizens' Committee of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters, said she "could not understand how anybody could be interested in Mr. Arbuckle any more." Miss Cook, Director of the Girls' City Club, wanted her disapproval made emphatic.

Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney, Past President of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs, who served on the committee which urged the adoption of the censorship bill in November, said she was not surprised at the Arbuckle decision.

"There isn't anything one can say in the face of the recent vote of the people of this State," was Mrs. Gurney's conclusion. "Of course, I am decidedly against any such proceeding."

Another voice was added to the chorus of disapproval by the protest of Miss Florence H. Luscomb, club woman and worker for women's advancement.

"The appearance of Mr. Arbuckle on the motion picture screen will not have an uplifting effect upon our young people," declared Miss Luscomb. "He should not be allowed to come back."

Chicago Club Women Indignant.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—Chicago club women today initiated action to prevent the showing of Arbuckle films in Chicago. Under the leadership of Mrs. Charles F. Merriam, Chairman of Better Films Department of the Illinois Council of Parent-Teacher Association, a group of women representatives from leading organizations planned to bring their protest to the Illinois Motion Picture Association at its next meeting.

"It is much more disastrous," declared Mrs. Merriam, "for a motion picture star's private life to be tainted than for the star to have to play an evil character on the film. Arbuckle cannot come back to the Chicago screen, for the children will surely associate him with his recent sensational trial."

Ban Still Exists in Minnesota.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Dec. 21.—W. A. Steffes, President of the Minnesota Motion Picture Theatre Owners' Association, embracing 400 theatres in the State, announced today that the ban on Arbuckle pictures still existed, as far as his organization was concerned.

"Complete oblivion," as far as the public is concerned, is demanded for Arbuckle in a statement today by the Fifth District Federation of Women's Clubs. A copy of the statement was sent to Will Hays and Jesse Lasky.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 21.—Opposition to the reappearance of Roscoe Arbuckle in motion pictures was expressed today by the Rev. Lansing F. Smith, Chairman of the Committee of Fifty of the Church Federation of St. Louis, who asserted the committee was "aggressively opposed" to Arbuckle's reinstatement. Miss C. E. Jordan, President of the Board of Religious Organizations, declared the comedian's reappearance would "have a bad influence on children."

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 21.—A meeting of the City Federation of Women's Clubs has been called to consider the reinstatement of Roscoe Arbuckle in motion pictures. Mrs. Charles Siegesmond, Chairman of the Moving Picture Committee of the Federation, today declared that the organization would oppose the return of Arbuckle.

"We have been deceived by Will H. Hays," Mrs. Siegesmond said. "He promised the women gathered at the national convention of Federated Clubs in Chautauqua last Summer that Arbuckle would not be permitted to reappear in moving pictures. As a result he exposed himself. The Buffalo Federation of Women's Clubs will offer vehement objection to the reappearance of Arbuckle on the public screen."

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Dec. 21.—Roscoe Arbuckle's pictures will not be shown in this city, according to the Middletown Theatre Company.

Arbuckle has a black spot on his record and we will not try to remove it," said Edward Quittner, treasurer of the company.

"When the California affair was published in the newspapers, residents of the city, and more particularly the churches, demanded that the pictures be stopped. They were held up and we are going to do nothing to invite criticism. We will give the people what they want, and it is our duty to please them."

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 21.—Mayor Clarence D. Van Zandt, when asked today as to what action would be taken by Rochester relative to the showing of Arbuckle pictures here, said:

"This is a problem to be solved by the motion picture censors. They have it within their power to say what films shall be shown in New York State, and of course that applies to Rochester."

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Dec. 21.—Mayor William J. Hosey of this city will make no ruling in regard to permitting the showing of motion pictures of Roscoe Arbuckle.

"All this publicity being given Arbuckle only redounds to the advertisement of Fatty and the interests back of him," said Mayor Hosey today. "The thing to do is to let the public be the jury. They will settle the case without any assistance."

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 21.—The mere suggestion of the return of Arbuckle to the films is an outrage and insult to the public, the Rev. F. C. Rehner, Secretary of the Milwaukee Federation of Ministers, said when he learned Arbuckle again would be shown in motion pictures.

LIVINGSTON, Mont., Dec. 21.—Clergymen here, informed that Roscoe Arbuckle was to have a chance to "come back" in the films, said: "Give Fatty a chance." The Rev. R. S. Parker, President of the Livingston Ministerial Association, added that the organization would not ask motion picture theatres to bar new Arbuckle productions.

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Dec. 21.—Pictures showing Arbuckle will continue to be barred here, according to Mayor Ben F. Hill. The sentiment against Arbuckle has not changed here, and I see no reason for allowing his pictures to be exhibited," he declared.

WENATCHEE, Wash., Dec. 21.—Pictures showing Roscoe Arbuckle will not be permitted to be exhibited in Wenatchee, according to George Seaman, chairman of the motion picture censoring committee of the City Council.

FIND 2 LOST AIRMEN BURNED WITH PLANE

Bodies of Col. Marshall and Lieut. Webber Discovered at Lonely Spot in Arizona.

MISSING FOR TWO WEEKS

They Had Attempted a Flight From Los Angeles to Tucson—Plane Fell in Nose Dive.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 21. — The charred bodies of the missing aviators, Colonel Francis N. Marshall and Lieutenant Charles Webber, have been found in the Papago Indian Reservation, about seventy-five miles west of Tucson, according to advices to the Southern Pacific Railroad offices this afternoon in a dispatch from Tucson. The bodies lay in the wreckage of the fliers' airplane.

The message to the Southern Pacific said:

"Some cowboy found those two aviators near Indian Oasis. Both apparently were burned to death about seventy-five miles south of Tucson on Papago Reservation. No railroad there. It is on a wagon track. Suppose airplane fell to ground and aviators burned to death."

Indian Takes Report to Tucson.

TUCSON, Ariz., Dec. 21.—Up to a late hour this afternoon there was no confirmation of the report of the finding of the wrecked airplane. The report was brought here by an Indian.

Investigating parties were dispatched to the point where the Indian reported he found the plane, practically consumed by flames and with the charred body of one of the missing aviators plainly visible.

According to the story, the plane apparently fell in a nose dive, the nose of the plane being stuck into the ground, with such framework as remained unburned standing straight in the air.

NOGALES, Ariz., Dec. 21.—Colonel A. J. McNab, in command of operations in the Nogales sector in the search for Colonel Marshall and Lieutenant Webber, said tonight that he had been unable to obtain any definite information concerning the reported discovery of the aviators' bodies on the Papago Indian Reservation.

Two reports today fixed the place where the bodies were found in two different parts of the reservation—one at Indian Oasis, southwest of Tucson; the other at Covered Wells, almost due west from Tucson.

Colonel Marshall a Noted Officer.

Colonel Francis C. Marshall, attached to the staff of the Chief of Cavalry at Washington and a Brigadier General who served with distinction in the World War, and Lieutenant Charles L. Webber of the Air Service left San Diego at 9:15 o'clock on Dec. 7 for a flight to Fort Huachuca, near Tucson. When several days passed without any report from them, five airplanes started an intensive search for the missing men. They were joined later by fifteen more airplanes. The search was conducted on a scale larger than other similar operations conducted by the Army Air Service.

Colonel Marshall graduated from West Point just in time to take part in some of the last Indian campaigns. He was one of the most experienced cavalry officers in the army, and maintained even after the last war, with its trench fighting, that cavalry was a very necessary branch of the service in the United States.

He was born in Galena, Ill., March 26, 1867, and was graduated from the Military Academy in 1890. His first command was as Second Lieutenant with the Eighth Cavalry, and he remained with the cavalry until the last war. Besides his Indian fighting he was on active service in the Philippines, and was in the Peking relief expedition. Just before he went to France he went with Julian Street to visit Colonel Roosevelt at Oyster Bay, where he talked over the Indian fighting days.

He was made a Brigadier General in the National Army on Dec. 17, 1917, and commanded the 165th Field Artillery Brigade until Oct. 20, 1918. He commanded the Second Brigade of the First Division until May 28, 1919, and then the Eighth Brigade of the Fourth Division until Aug. 1, 1919. He was in the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives with the Third Army and during the first stages of the occupation of Germany. He was decorated with the Croix de Guerre with palm.

Colonel Marshall toured France and parts of Germany last Summer and Fall with his wife, and his friends received many letters from him in which he pictured the plight of Europe and especially France.

"There is much to be told, in a quiet way, about Germany and her deliberate bankruptcy in the midst of wealth and plenty," he wrote once, "and of poor France struggling to disarm her dreaded neighbor. But it may not be said. If it were it would be denounced as 'propaganda,' and not believed."

Colonel Marshall was married in September, 1894, to Miss Sophie Page, a daughter of General J. H. Page, who survives him.

JURY ASKS REPEAL OF STATE DRY LAW

Avenue and Fifty-second Street that the Government agents burst early this morning, making seven arrests and including in their capture a lawyer. The raid startled Broadway, particularly as it was interpreted as indicating the rupture of a recent entente between the Federal men and high police officials, whereby full and cordial co-operation was understood to have been arranged.

While the men from Washington, aided by others less strange to local cases were getting into action, the police not to be outdone, started raiding on their own account. For the third time in recent weeks they swooped down on Dinty Moore's place, 216 West Forty-sixth Street. On two previous occasions their unwelcome visits had resulted in the discharge of the proprietor and the return of his wet goods. Nothing daunted, Inspector Bolan's men began lugging out armsful of bottles said to contain champagne and whisky. These they mobilized in the foyer of a house two doors away, working like pack horses in their efforts to desiccate the restaurant.

They finally accumulated two or three patrol wagon loads of what they declared to be contraband; then they began to pile it into wagons to haul to the station house. Some of it was in cases. Unskilled as truckmen, the policemen introduced some cases so ungently that the bottles inside burst and bubbling liquid trickled to the street, to the scandalization of onlookers who seemed to think it was a shame to waste it. The only prisoner taken was "Dinty" Moore himself.

One result of the Federal raid which preceded the renewed police onslaught on Moore's was the admission by the Government men after the coup not only that they had come to New York to effect an arid Yuletide, but that they had reserved tables at some of the most promising places in town and that those who attempted any unlawful celebrating in those places were in for unpleasant surprises.

Probably no one was quite so surprised as the patrolman stationed on the premises when the seven Federal agents walked into the tent, looked over the tables and began taking prisoners. Those taken to the West Thirtieth Street Station were: Edgar Berheim of 61 Broadway, Robert Hartman of 3 West 129th Street, Arthur Sachs of 133 Lenox Avenue, one of the owners; Julius Green of 141 Nagle Avenue, manager; Ekkrino Tegno of 415 West Forty-fifth Street, a waiter; Thomas H. Watson of 47 West Forty-second Street, an attorney; Harry McCay of 258 West Fifty-fifth Street, the doorman.

Berheim and Hartman were alleged to have been drinking whisky at their tables and were charged with violation of the Volstead act. Women who, the agents said, were with them at the tables were not molested. McCay, the doorman, and Watson were charged with interfering with Federal officers. Sachs, Green and Tegno were charged with violation of the Volstead act when one of the guests who had been arrested made an affidavit that Tegno had served him with liquor.

Several hundred other guests were alarmed lest their names be taken, but the agents quieted them. Some left, while others are alleged to have hidden or thrown away liquor. One and one-half quarts alleged to be whisky, for possession of which the manager and an owner were arrested, was found in a dumbwaiter, the agents said.

When the orchestra leader saw that a raid was on he called for "How Dry I Am," while he was played throughout the search.

According to the agents, among those present was Peggy Joyce, who left while the raid was in progress. A number of other celebrities were present.

CAFE MEN TO BE EXAMINED.

Will Be Witnesses in Graft Inquiry by Federal Grand Jury.

Plans for an adjournment over the Christmas holidays were abandoned yesterday by the Federal Grand Jury in Brooklyn in view of the growing importance attached to its investigation of the powerful ring of grafters among prohibition agents, lawyers, lawyers' runners, and others operating, according to United States Attorney Ralph C. Greene, in the Brooklyn Federal Building itself. At the suggestion of Federal Judge Garvin the Grand Jury decided to meet again today, although its adjournment was announced on Wednesday.

Assistant United States Attorney Howard Osterhaut, it is understood, will produce several Brooklyn restaurant and cabaret owners before the Grand Jury today to tell what they know of the demands of prohibition agents and other alleged grafters. Mr. Osterhaut, it is understood, has offered immunity to a number of cafe and restaurant owners if they will lay before the Federal Grand Jury such information as they possess concerning the malpractices of enforcement officers and others.

In its investigation of the activities of bootleggers among clubs high on the list in Manhattan the Federal Grand Jury in Manhattan examined nine additional witnesses. They were William Fellowes Morgan Jr., J. Ellis Postlethwaite, Harry B. Hollis Jr., Otto H. Gluner, Frank T. Raymond, William Raymond, Edward Taylor, Hunt Talmadge Jr., Edgar Freeman and Walter Mayer.

Sigmond Haberman was arrested yesterday on a charge of selling liquor in his delicatessen store, 501 Fifth Avenue, Brooklyn, by prohibition agents, who reported that they had to fire four shots in self-defense when Milton Habeman, son of the storekeeper, attacked them with an axe. Haberman was held in $1,000 for violating the Volstead act by United States Commissioner Barmore, who held the son and Isidore Olotstein, an employe, in $1,000 bail each for interfering with a Federal officer in the performance of his duty.

Prohibition Headquarters announced that permits for handling wine, whisky and alcohol had been revoked in the cases of the following retail druggists: Lehman's Pharmacy, 2,737 Eighth Avenue; Aaron A. Jaffe, 593 Lexington Avenue; Louis Friedman, 668 Saratoga Avenue, Brooklyn, and J. Longo, 54 Union Street, Brooklyn.

WANT REPUBLICANS IN FEDERAL JOBS

Members of County Committee Cheer Plea to Harding to Oust Democrats.

TO MEET 1920 MANDATE

Saxe Resolution Calling for a Steering Committee Is Referred.

Members of the Republican County Committee at a meeting in Bryant Hall last night received with a roar of welcome a resolution calling upon President Harding to purge the Federal departments of all Democratic job holders not protected by the civil service law and insisting that they be replaced "by Republicans of sterling character and ability, in order that they might carry out the mandate expressed by the overwhelming Republican vote of 1920."

The resolution called the attention of the President to the fact "that a great number of Democrats now hold office in the Republican Administration and that their activities are inimical to the welfare of the Republican Party, the Republican platform and Republican policies."

The resolution was presented by Emanuel Herz, a lawyer, of the Twenty-second Assembly District. He asked for immediate consideration and was backed by Joseph Levenson of the Motion Picture Censorship Commission, who pleaded that such a good resolution ought to be adopted without delay. Chairman Samuel S. Koenig, however, told Mr. Levenson that the rules forbade that.

Ex-Senator Martin Saxe introduced his resolution calling for a steering committee in the County Committee, to be composed of members from every Assembly District, largely to bring the organization into closer touch with the people. Under the resolution every Assembly District organization would create a committee on party policy to sound sentiment and appoint from among its members a number of delegates, equal to the district delegation to the last Republican State Convention, to represent the district at a county conference on party policy which the resolution directs Chairman Koenig to call for some day next February.

Half a dozen of Mr. Koenig's district leaders opposed the Saxe resolution at a meeting of the Executive Committee, prior to the open meeting. One leader denounced it as "an insult to the Republican County Committee." The resolution was referred to the Committee on Resolutions.

The County Committee voted to recommend to the Aldermanic Board the reappointment of Charles E. Heydt, leader of the Ninth Assembly District, as the Republican member of the Election Board from Manhattan.

SMITH'S CHIEFPOINTS OF FIRST MESSAGE

one vote, will lend itself readily to the carrying out of his legislative program.

Judging from what has been said on the subject, it appears probable that the "Governor's measures" during the coming session will be introduced first in the Senate.

Should the Governor-elect and the legislative leaders of his party be confronted with a fight from the Republicans when his bills reach the Assembly for concurrence, the Governor-elect is determined to take an appeal from the Legislature to the people, very much after the fashion of Hughes when, during his two terms as Governor, he was compelled to fight the legislative spokesmen for both the Republican and the Democratic machines.

The Governor-elect, however, hardly looks for such a situation to arise. He believes that public sentiment will assert itself in forceful fashion from the start and that, though reluctantly, the Republicans will be compelled to yield or face the likelihood of losing the Assembly and with it their last foothold at the Capitol in next year's election. The Governor-elect is prepared to go campaigning for an all-Democratic Legislature next Fall and does not believe that the Republicans are overanxious to provide him with ammunition for the battle.

The first indication of the Republican frame of mind was afforded yesterday when, after a conference between a coterie of Republican organization leaders and Speaker Machold of the Assembly, it was made known that no obstacles would be placed in the way of the Governor-elect in connection with his transit program and measures affecting New York City exclusively. No decision regarding other measures on the program of the Governor-elect was reached, the conferring leaders preferring to await the annual messages before sinking up their own minds.

Speaker Machold, who is slated to continue as Speaker for another term, and undoubtedly will wield controlling influence over the Republican majority in the lower house in the matter of policies to be pursued, came down from his home in Watertown on urgent summons from George K. Morris, Chairman of the Republican State Committee. Others at the conference were Republican National Committeeman Charles B. Hilles, William L. Ward, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Republican State Committee; Lafayette B. Glealson, Secretary of the State Committee, and Jacob A. Livingston, Executive Chairman of the Kings County Republican organization.

One subject that came up for discussion was what course the Republicans should adopt toward proposals to repeal the Mullan-Gage State Prohibition Enforcement act, which is bound to come before the Legislature, even though Governor Smith may not include in his initial message any recommendation on the subject. The Republican leaders reached no conclusion, and after conference it was stated that this was one of many questions that would be met when it arose in concrete form. The consensus among the conferees was that the Governor-elect would keep his hands off, "as he could not afford to play with dynamite."

When Governor-elect Smith was told of the Republican discussion and its result he smiled but declined to make any comment for publication. A prominent Democratic leader pointed out that while prohibition may carry dynamite for the Republicans to the Democrats it is pie.

With regard to the proposal emanating from Representative Luther Wright Mott and Hamilton Fish Jr. for a conference to discuss ways and means for the rejuvenation of the Republican Party in this State, and their insistence that Republican legislators refrain from opposing many outstanding measures on the Smith legislative program, it was stated after the meeting that no conference, such as the two Representatives had asked State Chairman Morris to call, was in sight, at least not in the immediate future.

WANTS BIG MARKETS ONLY FOR FARMERS

Merchants' Association Opposes Wallabout and Gansevoort Speculators.

FOR LICENSED "CARRIERS"

Plans for Foundation of the New Bronx Terminal Market Are Completed.

The Merchants' Association, through a special committee headed by John H. Love, of Graupner, Love & Lamprecht, has been investigating the proposal to amend the city ordinances so as to permit jobbers, speculators or other middlemen to occupy space in public markets hitherto set aside exclusively for the use of farmers. The association, by its Board of Directors, yesterday recommended that Wallabout and Gansevoort Markets be kept exclusively for farmers and market gardeners. In its report the committee says:

"In recent years large numbers of so-called speculators, owning or hiring wagons or occupying space, have obtained entrance to these markets for the purpose of reselling farm products bought by them from various sources. Their numbers have so increased as seriously to interfere with the operations of genuine producers, to the detriment both of the latter and of the public. These speculators bring upon the ground at the opening of the markets, before the arrival of farmers' wagons from distant points, pre-empt the most desirable spaces, thereby excluding the farmers from them and forcing them to occupy distant and disadvantageous locations."

The committee points out that the speculators get advance information as to the day's receipts of farm produce by rail and steamship and, in case of shortage, quickly purchase what the farmers have of the produce in which the shortage exists and then resell it at an advanced price.

The members of the committee inspected the markets, interviewed farmers, gardeners and speculators, gave a hearing to representative farmers and conferred with the Commissioner of Markets. The report closes as follows:

"While such amendment as is necessary to make the city ordinance conform to the State law is desirable, we are strongly opposed to the introduction of other new matter which would legalize the occupancy of Gansevoort and Wallabout Markets by others than bona fide farmers and market gardeners.

"We therefore recommend that the Merchants' Association approve and support the pending amendment, but only on condition that it be qualified by the following proviso:

"'However, that in Wallabout and Gansevoort Markets such licenses shall be issued only to bona fide farmers and market gardeners, and that all other dealers, speculators or middlemen shall be excluded therefrom.'"

The report recommends a better water supply and proper comfort stations, erection of roofs over the present market places and the licensing of the so-called "carriers" operating in the markets and regulation of their charges by the Commissioner of Markets; "or that they be city employes selected from civil service lists."

Market Commissioner O'Malley, discussing the plans, said that 53 per cent. of the cost of food in New York City was chargeable to distribution.

UPSHAW THREAT KEEPS OFFICIALS WORRIED

Congressmen Said to Be on Bootleggers' List Which He May Expose.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 21.—A dispatch to The Public Ledger from Washington says:

"Christmas may be spoiled for numerous persons of prominence in Washington should Representative Upshaw of Georgia adhere to his announced purpose of exposing the patronage of a bootlegger who was arrested last night and whose in laboratories were raided. The police declare they found records and coden numbers of the patrons and that the capital would be shocked if the names were made public. Mr. Upshaw threatens to do this very thin as part of his campaign to force Federal officials to practice what they preach in the matter of prohibition.

"Mr. Upshaw said he would request the list of the police if Representative Hill, leader of the House 'wet' bloc, demanded the evidence upon which he charged members of Congress and high officials with maintaining one attitude on prohibition in public and quite another in private. Mr. Hill asserted this afternoon that the Georgian had made serious accusations on the floor of the House, and served notice that he would demand substantiation.

"Two men were arrested, and more than $8,000 worth of liquor was seized in the raid, which was in an exclusive northwest apartment house. The men were aymond Gray, said to be a broker, and Ronald Hendley Irvine, said to be an engineer.

"Correspondence and books said to have contained a list of the customers were seized. Police asserted that notations after the names of several members of Congress indicated that they had many orders in for Christmas cheer."

SAIL-STRIPPED SHIP TOWED INTO PORT

Schooner Disabled by Storm 112 Miles Out After 81-Day Voyage From African Gold Coast.

The storm-battered American schooner Rosa Ferlita, picked up in distress Wednesday morning 300 miles northeast of New York by the United States Line steamer President Garfield, was towed into port last night by the Shipping Board tug Humrick and dropped her rusty anchors for the first time since sailing eighty-one days ago out of Axim, on the Gold Coast of Africa.

For ten days the schooner had encountered storms which tore away her sails, booms and finally her fore-topmast, until on Wednesday morning, when she was sighted by the President Garfield, she did not have enough canvas to carry her the last 120 miles of her long voyage to Boston. Since contrary winds prevented her putting in at Barbados for stores the crew had been on short rations for a month and for the last five days of the voyage had lived on beans and rice.

Captain Sanches said last night that the Rosa Ferlita had left her home port of Tampa, Fla., April 3, transported a cargo of timber from Pensacola to Seville, Spain, gone in ballast to the west coast of Africa, and left Axim on Oct. 2, her hold and decks loaded with 433 mahogany logs, valued at $150,000. The storms which finally disabled the 600-ton schooner began on Dec. 14, when her foreboom and main gaff were broken. On the nineteenth her fore topmast was carried away, and she lost her fore staysail, reef mainsail and outer jib. On Dec. 20 her reef mainsail was blown away, leaving too little canvas to navigate the ship.

BECKER SAYS NORKIN PLANNED TO MURDER

Declares Alleged Accomplice Threatened Woman He Is Accused of Slaying.

CROWD HEARS HIS DENIALS

Examination to Continue Today—Case Is Expected to Go to the Jury Tonight.

Testifying in his own behalf yesterday, Abraham Becker, on trial for the murder of his wife, declared that Reuben Norkin, indicted as an accomplice in the crime, had quarreled repeatedly with Mrs. Becker. He said that five or six days before his wife's disappearance Norkin had burst into the Becker home and had threatened "to fix" Mrs. Becker because she had told Mrs. Norkin of Norkin's relations with his sister-in-law and with other women.

Norkin, who has made a confession that he helped to bury Mrs. Becker after her husband had struck her with a piece of iron pipe, was not charged directly with the murder in Becker's testimony. After describing Norkin's threats against Mrs. Becker, the accused said that he had brought his wife home safely from a neighbor's home on the night of April 6; that she was there when he arose next morning, and that she was gone when he returned at noon.

He attacked the testimony of Harry Monstein, his former friend and star witness for the State, who on Tuesday related how Becker had confessed to him in jail that Norkin killed Mrs. Becker for $100, and buried her body in the ash pit at 140th Street and Southern Boulevard. Becker said that his wife several times had threatened to leave him, and once did go away. This was a year and a half ago, he said, and he brought her back after several hours. He denied statements made by various witnesses for the prosecution that he had said Mrs. Becker was dead, or that he had asked Monstein to write a letter purporting to be from Mrs. Becker, saying that she had run off with another man.

The report that Becker was to take the witness stand drew a large crowd to the Bronx County Court. Assistant District Attorney Albert Cohn called Detective James I. McCarton at the opening of the session. He told of taking the keys found on the body of the woman found in the pit to the Becker apartment and said that the keys fitted various locks in that apartment, including the front door, a dresser and the mail box.

When the afternoon session began Mr. Cohn announced that the State rested. Counsel for defense then moved to dismiss the case on the ground that the prosecution had not established a case through failure to identify the body of the woman in the pit as that of Mrs. Becker. The motion was denied. Charles V. Halley, for the defense, then informed the jury that Becker would "tell his own story." Mr. Halley pleaded that the jurors keep open minds and accord the defendant "the same courteous and careful" attention they had given to the prosecution.

There was a stir in the courtroom when Becker, his haggard face showing the strain of the last few days, went to the witness stand. He said he was 34 years old, was born in Russia and had lived in Johannesburg, Africa, and in London, England, before coming to America. He said he was married in England. Clearly and calmly he told of running away with Anna Elias to Cleveland, of his attempt to get married under a false name and of living with her after his wife's disappearance. He admitted having had trouble with the police, chiefly over traffic violations. Once, he said, he ran over and killed a man while driving a truck. On another occasion he sold a horse and "spent the money." He was convicted of this, but received a suspended sentence, he said, and eventually paid back the amount.

Regarding the ill-feeling between Norkin and Mrs. Becker, Becker said:

"Norkin came up home to get my car (which Becker had purchased from Norkin) to take his sister-in-law and his sister-in-law's mother to a cemetery. Mrs. Becker wouldn't let him have the car. Another quarrel was over the car, too. Norkin asked for it and my wife wouldn't give it to him. He walked away without saying anything.

"A few weeks before my wife disappeared Norkin came to our room and asked me to go out with him. Mrs. Becker said that if he took me out she would go and tell Mrs. Norkin that he had dealings with his sister-in-law and with other women. Norkin said to my wife that she didn't know anything and he dared her to tell. Five or six days before she disappeared Norkin came up and came in our door without knocking. He walked up to my wife and said: 'Well, you did go and tell, didn't you? I am going to fix you for it and you won't tell again.' I opened the door and told him to go away and he went."

Becker told of his devotion to his children. He denied that he ever had tried to have any of them adopted or that he would have permitted any one to take them from him.

Becker's direct examination will be continued this morning. Yesterday, in addition to Becker, two other witnesses testified for the defense, Mrs. Gertrude Goldburg, who said she had known the Beckers for eight years and had always found them on good terms, and Louis Solomon, grocer, who testified to a quarrel between Mr. and Mrs. Becker during which the latter threatened to leave her husband.

Judge Gibbs announced there would be an evening session tonight. It is expected the case will go to the jury late today.

IRISH WOMEN CABLE PROTEST TO HARDING

Message Sent From France Asks if America Will Stand for Execution of 'Prisoners of War.'

PARIS, Dec. 21 (Associated Press).—An appeal signed by several prominent women of Ireland was cabled from France to President Harding today, protesting against "the executions of prisoners of war" in Ireland.

"Such executions," the message declared, "are unparalleled in history, violating all the rules of international warfare. Eleven thousand prisoners, men and women, are now at the mercy of the Free State Government. Will America stand for this while indignant at Turkish atrocities?"

The message was signed by Margaret Pearse, mother of Patrick H. Pearse, chosen as First President of the Irish Republic and executed by the British after the rebellion in 1916; Aine Ceannt, widow of Commandant Eamon Ceannt, who lost his life in the 1916 rebellion; Miss Mary MacSwiney, sister of the late Mayor MacSwiney of Cork, victim of a hunger strike, and Mrs. Mary Mallowes, mother of Liam Mellowes, one of the leaders executed by the Free State military court recently as a measure of reprisal.

One of the women came to France from Ireland to send the cable message and avoid the censorship.

COAL PRICES FAIR, WOODIN TESTIFIES

Fuel Administrator, in Case Against Landlord, Says City Is "Clean."

TELLS OF DEAL FOR SUPPLY

Refuses to Divulge Source—Bidder Offers Big Tonnage to the City.

New York is "remarkably clean" so far as profiteering in coal is concerned, William H. Woodin, State Fuel Administrator, declared yesterday while testifying in Brooklyn in the case of a landlord charged with failing to provide heat. The results of an investigation by his staff, Mr. Woodin said, had shown "surprisingly satisfactory conditions" as to prices throughout the city.

The Fuel Administrator appeared voluntarily at the request of Congressman-elect Loring M. Black, counsel for James Van Romondt of 648 Prospect Place, the defendant. He answered many questions relating to the machinery which the Administration had in motion to distribute coal. Among other things he declared that virtually every municipality and community in the State had received the amount of fuel to which it was entitled.

Mr. Woodin testified that no maximum prices to that level. He said the Administration because it was thought that the establishment of a maximum would bring all prices to that level. He said the administration continually was investigating price complaints. Every week several dealers, chosen at random, were questioned and their books were audited, he said.

"What is the fair profit on a ton of coal?" Mr. Woodin was asked.

Sets Profit at $3.50 a Ton.

"Three dollars and a half a ton, including all overhead expenses," he replied.

"What do you do to adjust it?"

"We try to get them to come down to a reasonable profit—if they don't, we turn their names into the District Attorney. Our job primarily is to get coal and not to become involved in litigation."

"Is it possible for one locality to obtain more coal than another by offering higher prices?"

"Yes, but that is infrequent, because the towns and cities watch each other closely."

"What is the situation as regards the exportation of anthracite coal to Canada?"

"By a provision of the Niagara power treaty the Dominion is entitled to 2,000,000 tons under normal conditions—1,200,000 tons this year. Only 60 per cent. of the reduced amount has been shipped, 650,000 tons. I have protested against this exportation ever since my appointment Sept. 5, and recently have learned that Canada has been given to understand that she can expect no more coal this Winter."

"What amount of coal has Brooklyn obtained?"

"I don't know exactly, but it has got its part of the quota."

Asked whether the appropriation of $10,000,000 by the Legislature as a revolving fund for the Administration was "futile," Mr. Woodin said:

"Not exactly. It was intended for use in the event that the coal strike was not settled."

"Why not employ it for buying coal from England, Wales, or elsewhere abroad?"

Wants to Avoid "Coal Business."

"We don't want to go into the coal business. That would only intensify competition and raise prices. What Welsh coal has been brought here was found to be unsalable."

"Wasn't it the thought that you should protect the American coal operators and not buy from England?"

"No."

Mr. Woodin said he was negotiating to obtain coal from a source which he did not wish to disclose, because it might result in his not being able to obtain it.

Magistrate Jacob Ellperin before whom the hearing was held in Flatbush Court adjourned it for a week.

Bids for supplying city departments with coal for the first three months of next year, which were received yesterday by the Board of Purchase, indicated that all dealers were not out of coal. The fuel is to be delivered to Bellevue and allied hospitals and the Departments of Correction, Health, Plant and Structures, Street Cleaning, Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, Public Welfare, Parks, Police and Fire. There were eleven bidders, and seven of them offered to supply the entire amount required by the city.

A total of 178,895 tons, of which 36,253 is soft, 32,200 is mixed, 350 is coke and the rest anthracite was bid on. Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, prepared the following schedule showing the low bids:

Borough of Manhattan—Schedule A—No. 1 buckwheat, $9.50; No. 2 buckwheat, $6.60; No. 3 buckwheat, $5.60; soft coal, run of mine, $10.50; mixed coal, No. 3 buckwheat and soft, $7.10; pea coal, $12.25; screened soft, $12.40; nut, no substitute, $14.25.

Borough of Brooklyn—Schedule B—No. 1 buckwheat, $10.38; No. 2 buckwheat, $6.56; No. 3 buckwheat, $5.60; soft coal, run of mine, $12.48; screened soft, $13.54; mixed coal, No. 2 buckwheat, $8.10.

Borough of Queens—Schedule C—No. 1 buckwheat, $8.60; soft coal, run of mine, $15.94; pea coal, $15.74; screened soft, $14.54.

Borough of the Bronx—Schedule D—No. 1 buckwheat, $8.09; No. 2 buckwheat, $7.09; soft coal, run of mine, $10.50; pea coal, $13; screened soft, $12.40.

Borough of Richmond—Schedule F—Stove, no substitute, $16; No. 3 buckwheat, $8.80.

The mild weather yesterday, which the Weather Bureau expects to continue up to Christmas, has greatly improved the situation in the city, and there is little prospect now of a coalless Christmas. According to the forecaster, there is no snow in sight for the next day or two, and the chances are against a white Christmas.

Miller Replies to Straus.

Governor Miller replied last night in Albany to the letter of Senator Nathan Straus Jr., attacking the State Fuel Administration, which was made public by Mr. Straus on Sunday. The Governor made it plain that he did not "contemplate putting the State in the coal business," but to "make it unnecessary for the State to go into the coal business." The Fuel Administration has "functioned so well and with such little friction," the Governor said, that the public became aware of its service during the recent pinch.

"There is a very serious shortage of the domestic sizes of anthracite coal," Governor Miller said. "The task is to secure an equitable distribution of what there is at reasonable prices and to piece out the shortage with substitutes. That task will not be made easier by demagogic attempts to disturb the public mind nor by false and misleading propaganda to advance individual political fortunes which such a crisis always affords opportunity to promote to the public detriment."

As to Senator Straus's statement that he had hundreds of letters from people in urgent need of coal, the Governor said he was sure that those cases would have been attended to had Mr. Straus called them to the attention of the Fuel Administrator, adding: "Perhaps you get better publicity by writing to me about them."

EIGHT FIREMEN FACE DEATH IN EXPLOSION

Backdraft Blows Out Shutter and Hurls Men Tumbling Downstairs.

TWO BLINDED FOR A TIME

Blaze in Loft Building on Sixth Avenue, Next to Mouquin's, Caused $50,000 Loss.

The sight of two firemen was endangered and they, with six others, had a close brush with death last night when an explosion hurled them downstairs with billows of flame sweeping after them as they struggled to reach a blaze on the sixth floor of a loft building at 450-52 Sixth Avenue. Fire was pouring from all the windows on that floor, occupied by Beller & Schlessinger, makers of costumes, and Steckler & Cohen, manufacturers of suits and coats, when the apparatus deployed before the building, which adjoins Mouquin's restaurant. With Battalion Chief George Bauer at their head, men of Truck 24 and Engine 1 ran up the stairs dragging a hose line.

They had passed the fifth floor when other firemen, attacking from Twenty-seventh Street, made a breach through windows and doors. The resulting backdraft caused a blast that blew iron shutters from their hinges, burst open an iron elevator door five floors below, sent most of the roof skyrocketing into the air and showered glass and bricks to the street. Bauer, Peter McCaffery of the truck company and seven others went tumbling over each other down the stairs, the big hose threshing among them while flame scorched down and burning embers rained upon them.

All but McCaffery managed to scramble out of the way of the blistering draught down the stairs. He lay still. The others, staggering under their own hurts, gasped for breath and dived for their comrade just as there came a second explosion. Rocked and shaken, they managed to drag McCaffery out of harm's way. Some of them collapsed when they reached the street. Policemen and firemen joined in lugging them to a store across from the fire, where two ambulance surgeons from New York Hospital and Dr. Harry Archer of the Fire Department dressed their burns. Four were taken to hospitals. It was feared that Auer and McCaffery had been blinded, but later the doctors were more optimistic.

The explosion had spread the blaze to the seventh floor, the top, by the time apparatus was responding to a second alarm. Firemen dragged a pipe line through Mouquin's and some diners fled, while others stayed to watch the spectacle. Soon water towers and dozens of hose lines were in play. Then came a pall of heavy smoke that drifted over the lower hotel district and brought crowds that reserves fought back. The actual fire was confined to the sixth floor and the top, occupied by Max Arbeit and Shnur and Shipman, both makers of cloaks and suits. Rosoff's delicatessen on the ground floor, Edwards's billiard parlor on the second and intervening clothing manufacturing lofts were damaged by water.

The total loss was estimated at $50,000. Fire Marshal Brophy was unable to determine the cause. Policemen dashed in when the fire first was discovered, risking their lives because it was erroneously reported that a man was trapped on the sixth floor.

Traffic on the Sixth Avenue elevated was interrupted only momentarily, but from 7:30 until after 9 there was only crippled shuttle service on the surface line.

GOES TO MAKE UP, FINDS HUSBAND DEAD

Estranged Wife, Inspired by Christmas Carols, Planned a Reunion.

Death prevented Gerry Rega, 55 years old, a tailor, of 94 Market Street, from receiving the Christmas present for which he has yearned for eight years—a reconciliation with his wife Albelina and the happiness of their theree children, Arthur, 14 years old, Salvatore, 10 years old, and Anna, 11 years old.

Christmas carols sung by school children in the street prompeted Mrs. Rega to leave her home at 51 Oliver Street last night to see her husband and to "forgive and forget." When she reached his home in Market Street she found him dead from inhaling illuminating gas.

Just why Rega and his wife separated was not made known, but Mrs. Rega said that this being Christmas time she though she would become reconciled with her husbadn so that he and she and their three children would be happy again.

TELLS OF DIABETES CURE.

Dr. Banting Lectures on Insulin Before the Academy of Medicine.

Dr. F. G. Banting, of the University of Toronto, before the Academy of Medicine last night told how he had developed insulin, a pancreatic extract which physicians here and elsewhere have reported to be valuable in treating diabetes. He was applauded as he told how the curative agent was worked out from knowledge that the interstitial cells of the pancreatic gland were the main factor in assimilation of sugar.

After successful experiments on animals, the Banting method was developed and a solution was obtained suitable for human beings and experiments were made on diabetic Canadian soldiers who volunteered. Success with them led to arrangements for manufacture in Canada by the University of Toronto, by the British Medical Council for development abroad, and in the United States by the Eli Lilly Company, all under strict supervision. The lecturer said an effort was being made to reduce the prohibitive cost. To confirm results in Toronto, small quantities are being sent to four diabetic clinics here.

Dr. Frederick M. Allen of the Physiatric Institute at Morristown, N. J., cites extreme cases which were favorably treated by the insulin sent to him. Dr. Nellis B. Foster of Cornell University Medical College spoke of remarkable results obtained by him at New York Hospital in the treatment of cases already in coma. Dr. Henry R. Geyelin of Presbyterian Hospital told of recoveries of patients under his care.

A warning was given by Dr. Banting against belief that the new extract could save those already moribund.

Death Appeal Lost in Bywaters Case

Copyright, 1922, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

LONDON, Dec. 21.—The London Court of Appeals has dismissed the appeal of Edith Thompson and Frederick Bywaters against the death sentence for the murder of the woman's husband. A public petition is being circulated to pardon Bywaters, who has won sympathy because of his youth and because it is believed that he acted under the woman's influence.

John Wanamaker
Broadway at Ninth, New York

The Writer Remembers Quite Well Charles Dickens' reception in Philadelphia at Concert Hall, Chestnut, above Twelfth, many years ago.

He came in late and stayed long after reading a part of "The Old Curiosity Shop" and other pieces, and then shook the hands of all who were presented to him. We could hardly forgive him for his "American Notes," but he was sorry for them afterwards, and it was the fault of snobs who were near him and misrepresented America.

Let us forget what we do not like and remember him for "little Nell's" sake and for this verse attributed to him:

"The timid hand stretched forth to aid
A brother in his need;
The kindly word in grief's dark hour,
That proves a friend indeed;
The plea for mercy, softly breathed,
When justice threatens high;
The sorrow of a contrite heart—
These things must never die."

Christmas time is a good time to forget old differences, and prove it by something you can easily say or do. Don't think it over too long. Just do something that puts things right.

(Signed) John Wanamaker

SAYS REILY 'SENT' FALSE NEWS REPORT

Porto Rican Legislator Charges Governor Issued Alleged Cable From Own Office.

DECLARES HE CONFESSED

Island's Resident Commissioner Asserts Reily Was Not Exonerated by Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—Following the arrival in New York of Governor E. Mont Reily of Porto Rico, Walter Mackay, Jones, a member of the Porto Rican Legislature, today accused Governor Reily's office of the falsification of news dispatches from San Juan. Mr. Jones said:

"In a statement attributed to Reily in an Associated Press dispatch he is alleged to have said, 'I desire to say that a Grand Jury had made a presentment against me that not only by the lower court, but by unanimous vote of the Supreme Court, I was fully exonerated.'

"If Reily made this statement, it is absolutely untrue, because the charges made by the Grand Jury never came up for trial owing to the dismissal of the prosecuting attorney by Reily himself when he found that he could not avoid indictment, and therefore the matter never came up for consideration by any higher court.

"A few weeks ago the Associated Press published a dispatch from San Juan under the supposition that it came from its regular correspondent there. This dispatch stated substantially what is attributed to Reily in the more recent interview, and because the news contained in this dispatch was false, an investigation as to who had sent the cable was made by The Associated Press representative in San Juan. He ascertained that the dispatch had been sent from the Governor's office and Reily thereupon admitted to him that it had been sent by his private secretary.

"I wish to make emphatic denial of statements among others made by Reily that the feeling against him is confined to a few malcontents and that the island is very loyal to him. The feeling against Reily is daily mounting and is no longer confined to any one party. Reily has shown himself absolutely incapable of telling the truth on any subject. He is today as ignorant of conditions in Porto Rico as he was the day he was appointed. His only supporters today are those who have received favors or appointments at his hands. It is a surprise to me that the people of Porto Rico as a whole still have confidence that justice will be done to them. They have not cared to adopt the measures forced upon the South during reconstruction days, although no worse carpetbagger was ever sent to govern a South'n State.

"To my mind the best proof of the law-abiding and peace-loving nature of the people of Porto Rico is the fact that they are still asking justice at the hands of the President instead of taking the matter into their own hands."

The Resident Commissioner from Porto Rico, Felix Cordova-Davila, issued a statement asserting that never under 400 years of Spanish rule or twenty-four years of American administration had the island had so corrupt an official as Reily. Reily "lied," the statement said, when he asserted that the Porto Rican Supreme Court exonerated him of an indictment.

"This is a matter of record," said the Commissioner, "and to verify his assertion the Governor ought to present the decisions of the Supreme Court. As it is always the case with Reily, this is just the opposite of what he said, because the opinion of Chief Justice Toro, who delivered the decision of the court in this matter, is virtually an indictment against the Governor. He fails to say that he has arbitrarily used all his influence and power as Governor in preventing the indictment against him by appointing a District torney who is merely a tool of the Governor and obstructing the Attorney General in his efforts to prosecute the Governor. It seems unbelievable that under the American flag and under the Constitution of the United States it would be entirely impossible to bring the Governor to trial, having, as we have, enough evidence for his immediate conviction. If the Governor is innocent, as he claims, why is he so interested in preventing his prosecution?"

An official of The Associated Press stated last night that a full explanation concerning the dispatch referred to by the Porto Rican legislator would be made today.

BLIND NEWSDEALERS WIN POINT IN SUITS

Judgments Against Them for Papers Are Cut by Opposing Counsel's Agreement.

John Hahn and Ernest Haverstraw, both residents of Astoria, and both blind newsdealers, were examined in supplementary proceedings in the Supreme Court at Queens before Justice James C. Van Siclen yesterday. Hahn owns a news stand at the Ditmars Avenue elevated station and Haverstraw the news stand in the Grand Avenue elevated station. Both men were brought into court by the Brooklyn News Company in connection wits judgments secured against them in the Sixth District Municipal Court in Brooklyn. The judgment against Hahn was for $400 and against Haverstraw was for $589, both for papers alleged to have been delivered and not paid for.

The two men were examined by Attorney Lester Rosenblum, representing the company. Both stated that they had refused to pay because they did not receive the papers alleged to be delivered to them, and they were in possession of statements showing what they had received and for these they were willing to pay. After the examination Attorney Rosenblum told Justice Van Siclen that he was convinced that both of the men were thoroughly honest, but he believed they were being imposed upon by some one because of their inability to see. He was willing to accept $100 from Hahn in settlement of his account and $150 from Haverstraw in settlement of his account. This settlement was approved by the Court.

'BOMB' PROVES TO BE ONLY BLANK CARTRIDGE

Inventor Says Device That Ignited 'Tear Gas' in Store Is Harmless.

The "bomb" which exploded in the store of Kaufman, Panitch & Co., at 102 West Twenty-fifth Street, Wednesday night, when the door was opened by Patrolman McCardle of the West Thirtieth Street station, was merely a .45-calibre blank cartridge. Attached to the cartridge and ignited by its explosion was a cylinder about an inch in diameter and two inches long containing a mild form of "tear gas."

BUTLER CONFIRMED BY SENATE, 61 TO 8

40 Republicans and 21 Democrats Vote For Nominee for the Supreme Court.

DEBATE IN 4-HOUR SESSION

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—The nomination of Pierce Butler, a Democrat, of St. Paul, Minn., to be an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court was confirmed by the Senate this afternoon. The expected filibuster against him collapsed, and Mr. Butler was confirmed by a vote of 61 to 8. Forty Republicans and twenty-one Democrats voted to confirm and three Republicans and five Democrats to reject the nomination.

The Senate had the nomination under consideration in executive session four hours. Senators Nelson of Minnesota and Walsh of Montana made the principal speeches favoring confirmation, while Senator La Follette directed the fight to reject the nomination. Messrs. Nelson and Walsh eulogized Mr. Butler as a great lawyer and in every way worthy to occupy a seat in the highest court in the land.

Senator La Follette attacked the appointment, it is understood, because of Mr. Butler's services as counsel for large corporations and railroads.

The vote was:

A motion to recommit the nomination to the Committee on Judiciary was defeated by 63 to 7, those who voted for it being Harris, Heflin, La Follette, McKellar, Norris, Sheppard and Trammel.

MR. TAFT UNDERGOES A MINOR OPERATION

Chief Justice Recovers and Returns to His Work Before His Associates Are Informed.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—Chief Justice Taft submitted to an operation last Sunday for the removal of calculi from the bladder, but today was said to be in good condition. Word of the operation, which was described as minor, did not become known until today, as the Supreme Court is in recess, and upon his return from the hospital yesterday he resumed the active discharge of his official duties. Those who called upon him both yesterday and today described Mr. Taft's general physical condition as normal and said he showed no ill effect from his experience.

While under the restraint of medical advice not to subject himself to severe physical exertion for a day or two, the Chief Justice has been working with his secretaries in his library during the last two days, receiving all callers and transacting all business as usual. It was stated this afternoon that the Chief Justice expected to resume his daily walks before the end of the week.

The operation was performed without an incision.

MOTHER AND CHILD DIE NEAR CHRISTMAS TREE

Succumb to Gas While Resting From Shopping Trip—Father Finds Bodies.

A light in the window of the little home of Joseph Sicenski, a driver, at 261 Twenty-first Street, Brooklyn, made him quicken his steps last night because it told him his wife Helen and their daughter Stella, 6 years old, had returned hom from Christmas shopping. But why didn't the little girl come romping to the door to meet him?

Finding the door locked Sicenski walked around the side of the house. Through a window of the bedroom he could see his wife and the little girl apparently asleep. They were probably tired when they returned from their Christmas expedition and lay down for a few minutes to rest. They had dropped a small Christmas tree in the corner of the dining room. On the floor near it also were packages of toys that were to be hung on the tree.

Sicenski, with the aid of a neighbor, James Mullin, 231 Twenty-third Street, forced the door. They smelled gas. Sicenski frantically dragged his wife and daughter into the open air. Dr. Loring was called with an ambulance from the Methodist Episcopal Hospital. He shook his head and said there was nothing he could do.

Investigation revealed that Mrs. Sicenski had come home, put some potatoes on the stove for dinner and then lay down to rest. The pot must have boiled over and extinguished the flame.

Denby Closes 9 Lake Radio Stations.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—Nine naval radio stations in the Great Lakes area have been ordered closed pending final determination of their disposition under instructions of Secretary Denby. The stations were taken over from the Marconi Company during the war. They are those at Buffalo, Detroit, Duluth, Milwaukee and Alpena, Eagle Harbor, Mackinac, Manistique and Whitefish Point, Mich. The Cleveland Naval radio station is ordered shut down for all purposes except aiding the air mail service. Secretary Denby said that these stations served no purpose relating to efficiency of the fleet and therefore could not be maintained.

The Life and Letters of Walter H. Page

By Burton J. Hendrick

The English bondage to tradition was a thing that gave Page much amusement, which he passes along:

"... Except that part of life which is ministered to in mechanical ways, they resist conveniences. They don't really like bathrooms yet. They prefer great tin tubs and they use bowls and pitchers when a bathroom is next door. The telephone—Lord deliver us!—I've given it up. They know nothing about it. (It is a government concern, but so is the telegraph and the post-office, and they are remarkably good and swift.) You can't buy a newspaper on the street, except in the afternoon. Cigar-stores are as scarce as hen's teeth. Barber-shops are all 'hair-dressers'—dirty and wretched beyond description. You can't get a decent pen; their newspapers are as big as tablecloths. In this aquarium in which we live (it rains every day) they have only three vegetables and two of them are cabbages."

A Biography of "Vital Qualities"

CARDINAL GIBBONS

By ALLEN SINCLAIR WILL, Litt. D., LL.D.

The Rev. JOHN CAVANAUGH of Notre Dame University writes in The Baltimore Catholic Review:—

"A handsome, dignified and delightful work in two octavo volumes. . . . The charm of the work is undoubtedly great. It will be much desired, and deservedly so, throughout the country. . . . Non-Catholics will read it with delight and our own people with happy pride."

MAURICE FRANCIS EGAN writes in The Catholic World:

"A biography has vital qualities when the author of it understands how to correlate the character, the force, and the influence of his subject with changing atmospheres of his times and Dr. Allen Sinclair Will has done this in his Life of Cardinal Gibbons with distinguished perception, exquisite tact, reasonable sympathy and admirable discretion. . . . The tact and the truthfulness of the author of this Life are almost marvelous."

The Rev. FRANCIS P. DUFFY:

"Cardinal Gibbons displayed an admirable foresight in most things during his life, but never more so than in his choice of a biographer."—Herald.

PENN STATION JAM AT LIMIT, SAYS REA

GAIN OF 300% IN DECADE

Favors Route From Queens to Thirty-Fourth Street and Ninth Avenue.

Samuel Rea, President of the Pennsylvania Railroad system, warned Mayor Hylan and George McAneny, Chairman of the Transit Commission, yesterday that passenger traffic on the Long Island Railroad, a part of the Pennsylvania system, was growing too heavy to be accommodated at the Pennsylvania Station.

In identical letters to the Mayor and Mr. McAneny Mr. Rea urged the construction by the city of a subway from Long Island under Thirty-fourth Street, Manhattan, to Ninth Avenue. Declaring that the passenger traffic at the Long Island part of the Pennsylvania Station was rapidly reaching the limit that could be cared for, Mr. Rea asserted that, unless the city arranged to take care of nearby Long Island passenger traffic, the Long Island Railroad would be compelled to rearrange its service by establishing transfer stations at Jamaica or Long Island City and running a shuttle service between them and the Pennsylvania Station or to announce that no more trains could be accommodated in the tunnels.

Mr. Rea said he was surprised that the Mayor's transit plan and that of the Transit Commission were devoted largely to north and south routes and disregarded the possibility of lines to the east, where there was great chance for expansion. He also suggested that the city's transit problem would never be solved until one or more bridges for rapid transit lines were built over the Hudson River. In making a plea, unusual for a railroad President, for the construction of a new line to take away traffic from his road, Mr. Rea said:

"I note the recommendations of the Transit Commission to the Board of Estimate for a very important and no doubt necessary north and south rapid transit line in Manhattan to take care of the future traffic. I regret, however, to see no reference whatever to further relief of the rapidly growing traffic in Queens, a large portion of which is now imposed on the Long Island Railroad, and, therefore, has been handled in our Pennsylvania Station, New York.

"We have endeavored to keep before the city and the Transit Commission the necessity of some relief for this section of New York City on Long Island which uses the Long Island Railroad and Pennsylvania Station. While additional subway and elevated lines have been built on this section of Long Island and have been of benefit, yet they are merely transit lines and not rapid transit such as Manhattan and Brooklyn enjoy.

"The Pennsylvania Station was opened in the Fall of 1910, and in 1911 the Long Island Railroad handled 6,226,429 passengers in and out of that station; in 1921 this number had risen to 28,915,250, or an increase of over 300 per cent., and the number is still rapidly increasing. You are aware that this station was not built for rapid transit service; in fact, the provisions of its franchise prohibit it from carrying the near-by rapid transit traffic. The station was primarily built to be the principal station for the whole Pennsylvania Railroad System in New York City, both for its citizens and the millions of people who annually use that city for trade, commerce and recreation. It was built at very great expense, and as a proof that it serves the public and the City and State of New York it now handles a total traffic in excess of Grand Central Station.

"However, there is a limit, which is rapidly being reached, to the amount of traffic that can be accommodated by the Long Island Railroad and by the station, and unless the city takes care of this near-by traffic that company will be compelled at an early date to rearrange its entire service by establishing transfer stations, either in Long Island City or at Jamaica, or both, and run a shuttle service between them and Pennsylvania Station, or definitely announce no more trains can be accommodated in the tunnels or station.

"Ralph Peters, President of the Long Island Railroad Company, has called the attention of the city and the Transit Commission to the necessity of building an express subway from Jamaica into and through New York under Thirty-fourth Street, probably as far west as the Ninth Avenue elevated, so as to connect with all north and south rapid transit and elevated lines in Manhattan. This, it seems to me, with the growing population and traffic of Queens and Brooklyn Boroughs and other parts of Long Island, is now an absolute necessity, and in view of the fact that the Long Island Railroad will not be able and cannot undertake to serve the nearby districts, the city will have to provide rapid transit for that important section of Greater New York.

"I cannot understand why the New York City authorities constantly, and, most exclusively, look to greater north and south transit facilities and only to a limited extent to the eastward on Long Island, where its growth is enormous and it offers the nearest and cheapest outlet for the city to grow. Therefore, while having no desire to be unreasonable, or indeed critical, I respectfully direct your attention thereto and ask for its most serious consideration.

"I further believe you will never solve the congested rapid transit problem of Greater New York until you conquer the Hudson by one or more bridges (as has been done with the East River), with adequate accommodation for rapid transit and all other kinds of traffic, and that situation should not be overlooked, although it requires co-operative action by the States and adjacent municipalities in New Jersey. Why permit the Hudson River to bar a proper consideration of the rapidly increasing traffic from the many municipalities on the west side of that river, all of which are so closely allied in the business and social life of your city, and which must be considered, commercially at least, a part of the metropolitan district. This is also the great traffic artery for all the railroads on the west bank of the Hudson, that mean so many millions in people and dollars for Greater New York, and which today cannot be properly accommodated by the ferries or by the present or proposed tunnels. Surely prompt co-operation looking to additional facilities in this regard is very essential, as the growth of traffic on the ferries and the Hudson & Manhattan lines has been as phenomenal as in the separate boroughs of Greater New York and on the suburban service of Long Island.

"I do not, however, direct this reference to the Hudson River to detract your attention at this time from the imperative necessity for an express subway from Long Island, under Thirty-fourth Street to Ninth Avenue, Manhattan, for which I desire your earnest action, in which the Pennsylvania Railroad and Long Island Railroad Companies will be most happy to co-operate to the best of their ability."

McAneny Ready to Confer.

George McAneny, Chairman of the Transit Commission, replied to Mr. Rea's letter by saying that the commission would meet him or his representatives in conference at any time that might be convenient. Mr. McAneny said that the commission had had in mind not only the transit needs of Queens but the necessity for the relief of suburban traffic entering the city from other directions.

"The proposed Eighth Avenue line in Manhattan is designed to connect with the present lines of the Queensboro system at Forty-first Street as well as with the Fourteenth Street-Eastern Line of the B. R. T. system at Fourteenth Street," Mr. McAneny said. "These connections will permit of very substantial train increases upon the rapid transit lines now serving northern Queens points and will also give greater flexibility to the Brooklyn elevated service reaching Jamaica. One of the next steps, doubtless, to be taken will be the building of a through trunk subway from Jamaica to some point in Manhattan and then south. The commission is not prepared as yet to indicate the exact route that in its judgment should be taken for such a subway.

"In a program proposed by the Mayor some two or three months ago it was suggested that two new subways be built from Jamaica toward Manhattan, one following the Queens Boulevard to a point of connection with the Steinway Tunnel line, and another following Metropolitan Avenue to a point of connection with the Fourteenth Street line. The Mayor's plan contemplated, however, that these lines, so far as new construction goes, should end—and that they should connect with the existing lines referred to at points on the Long Island side of the East River. It did not, apparently, contemplate a new entrance to Manhattan, which, in the judgment of the commission, is essential. The lines thus proposed, moreover, were part of a program upon which no start was to be made for fifteen years. In the opinion of the commission, the situation requires an earlier and more adequate solution.

"The commission, so far as its own action is involved, would be glad to take the entire matter up in conference with you and Mr. Peters, or with your representatives, at the earliest date that may prove convenient, and will be glad to acquaint you at such a conference, not only with its views in relation to the particular relief you suggest, but with relation to the better handling of the suburban traffic the steam railways, under my plan, will continue to handle. It will be helpful, also, if we may be given some indication of the degree in which your company may be prepared to contribute in the financing of whatever measures of suburban relief may be devised."

CALLS TRAFFIC JAM DEATH TO FIREMEN

Fears Congestion in Streets More Than He Does a Conflagration, Kenlon Says.

"I fear no conflagration, but I object to having my men killed responding to fires," said Fire Chief John Kenlon to the members of the New York Rotary Club at their weekly luncheon in the McAlpin yesterday, when discussing "Congestic Traffic and Fires."

"Traffic conditions have become so bad that it is not only dangerous for the firemen—God knows how they get through at all—but a peril to you pedestrians as well," continued Chief Kenlon. "Go out to Broadway and Thirty-fourth Street now and see for yourselves. Suppose that a company on Thirty-third Street turns out for a fire. People can't move quickly, they can only be pushed along in a mob, and the apparatus may get through only at the cost of lives."

Recalling the New York of thirty-six years ago, when most of the city was below Fifty-ninth Street and five-story buildings were the rule, Chief Kenlon went on:

"They're up to fifty stories now, and still going strong, but Manhattan Island is no bigger. The tide of travel sets in at 6 A. M., and until the traffic peak at 11 there is scarcely an automobile for hundreds of miles around New York that is not making for this city. Whenever I go to an uptown fire from the Municipal Building I am blocked. I've tried First Avenue, Tenth, Eighth, Seventh—every uptown street and most of the cross-town ones, and the congestion is the same everywhere. How long can this keep on?

"We can handle the fires, and nothing is likely to happen that is beyond the powers of the Fire Department, but what I do object to is having my men killed in responding to fires. I have been accident after accident, with firemen lying dead on the sidewalk. Something must be done to meet the traffic conditions that are causing these deaths."

AUTHOR DEFIES CALL OF LEGION OF HONOR

Writer of Book Under Fire as Immoral Refuses to Answer Summons for Inquiry.

Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 21.—Victor Marguerite, author of "La Garconne," who was summoned yesterday to appear before the Council of the Legion of Honor to make a defense of the morality of his book to which great exception has been taken, has refused to answer the summons.

At the Chancellery of the Legion it is stated that hundreds of letters have been received from members protesting against the book, and it was only because of the volume of these that General Du Bail, Chancellor of the Legion, decided to take action and hold an inquiry. He realized as well as any one that it would be a difficult matter to establish whether the book was moral or immoral and whether the title of Commander of the Legion could be taken from the author because of his writings.

Marguerite's action in refusing to appear has now further complicated the case. He prefers, he says, to leave it to the public to judge whether his book is moral or immoral.

"If I appear before a commission," he says, "it would appear as if I wished to deny what I had written. That would be beneath my dignity. I have replied that my only judge must be the public."

If sales are a fair test of the criterion of judgment, then Marguerite is already acquitted. He has made more money out of the book than any author in France has made since the war.

ARRAIGNS HIS OWN SON ON ROBBERY CHARGE

Jersey City Policeman Asks No Leniency—Prisoner Gets Suspended Sentence.

Policeman Scheffmeyer yesterday arraigned his twenty-year-old son David on a robbery charge before Judge Lazarus in the County Court in Jersey City, and after the prisoner had been released on a suspended sentence the Court commended Scheffmeyer for his strict performance of duty.

David Scheffmeyer and Edward Fisher, 21, of 48 Fulton Avenue, pleaded non vult to the charge of robbing Leon Berkowitz, automobile supplies dealer, 213 Seaview Avenue, in November last. Fisher, it developed, had a prison record, and he was sentenced to the county jail for eighteen months.

When the robbery was reported by Berkowitz, Scheffmeyer was assigned to run down the perpetrators. He learned that his son, who lives with him at 98 Wilkenson Avenue, was one of the robbers. He went to his home and arrested his son, and then took Fisher into custody. Both prisoners confessed, and the policeman announced that he now would be treated by him just as would any other criminal. Yesterday when he arraigned the prisoners before Judge Lazarus he said he asked for no leniency, but the Court took into account David's previous good record, and in freeing him ordered him to report to a probation officer every week for a year.

SAYS POLAND SENDS NO TYPHUS HERE

Director of Sanitation, Who Arrives on Estonia, Resents Statement of Copeland.

ABBE HENRI BEAUDE BACK

Recently Elected Member of French Academy Returns From Paris on La Bordonnais.

The Baltic American liner Estonia arrived yesterday from Danzig, Libau and Copenhagen. Among her passengers was Samuel Schmidt, director of the medical and sanitation service in Poland, who deprecated the statement made by Health Commissioner Dr. Royal S. Copeland that typhus might be brought from Poland and Russia to the United States. He said every precaution was being taken to prevent the disease from spreading.

William Shuman, who has been attached to the International Liquidation Commission, was another passenger. The greatest problem in Europe just now is transportation, he said, and when that is settled then the economic problem will be nearer solution.

Honored by being elected a member of the French Academy, and being given the Richelieu gold medal, the Abbé Henri Le Prince Beaudé of Boston arrived yesterday on La Bordonnais, of the French line. He left for Boston last night. Abbé Beaudé said he believed he was the first person in a country outside of France to receive the honor. The medal was awarded to him for his work "Arcadie," in three volumes, which tells of the expulsion of the Arcadians from Nova Scotia, also immortalized by Longfellow in "Evangeline." Abbé Beaudé took eight years to compile the work, which is historical and had been published under his pen name of Henri D'Arles.

Professor Charles Peabody, director of the American School of Pre-History in Paris, returned to spend the holidays with his family at his home in Cambridge, Mass. J. Gilbert Jones, a member of Secretary Hoover's Russian Relief Commission, also returned. Rigobert Aernout, director of the "Follies Bergère" in Paris, also arrived.

When the Mount Clinton of the United American Lines sailed yesterday for Hamburg, among her passengers was Conrad Lorenz, youngest son of Dr. Lorenz, of orthopaedic surgery fame, who came here three months ago with another brother. Young Lorenz entered Columbia University to take up medicine, but said he found great difficulty because he did not understand the English language well enough. He is going back to enter the University of Vienna to take up the five years' course.

Others on the Mount Clinton were John T. Benson of Hagenbeck's animal quarters in Hamburg; Captain H. Laguna, a Polish immigration official, and Boris Dukin, a Russian newspaper man.

The United Fruit liner Tivives arrived yesterday from Colombian ports, Cristobal and Kingston. Bishop James Craik Morris, head of the Episcopal Diocese of the Canal Zone and the Republic of Colombia, was a passenger. He was accompanied by the Rev. Henry R. Carson, Archdeacon of Panama, who will be consecrated on Jan. 10 in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine as Bishop of Hayti.

YALE TO CURB DRINKING.

Student Committees Undertake the Task at Angell's Request.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 21.—To create public opinion in Yale University against strong drink and drunkenness, fifty undergraduate student representatives of the various college elements, including the athletic teams, today agreed on a campaign in conference with President James R. Angell. After discussing the question of curbing indulgence in liquor at the university, the group appointed two committees, one from the academic department and the other from the Sheffield Scientific School to make effective the sentiment of the student conference.

This definite movement toward ending lawless drinking was in effect co-operation with President Harding's efforts to create throughout the country greater consideration for prohibition laws, it was explained. Although President Angell called the meeting and put up the proposition to the students, he considers the subject of liquor indulgence one which would be left entirely to the students to act upon. Stringent measures, he said, might be employed by the university, but he thought the plan of co-operation most advisable, as it would carry out the general policy of the university and put more of the college discipline into the hands of the students themselves.

SIMONS HEADS PRESSMEN.

Rosenthal Chosen Secretary-Treasurer After Close Election Fight.

In a close fight David Simons, President of Web Pressmen's Union 25, and Isaac Rosenthal, Secretary-Treasurer, have been re-elected, it was announced yesterday. Because of the controversy over the Manton award the union was divided into two camps last Wednesday night, when the balloting took place in Beethoven Hall. Edward W. Edwards, organizer and representative of George Berry, International President, who stated the award must be observed, was defeated by Simons by 699 to 481. Rosenthal, opposed by Thomas Cooke, won re-election by 742 to 436.

William Boerner defeated Edward Moriarity for the Vice Presidency by 709 to 442. Joseph Walsh was elected Recording Secretary over J. Patrick Connors by 644 to 582. William Burns was chosen Sergeant-at-Arms and Patrick Moore, William Wrenn and James J. Kelly were named members of the executive board.

KEEP BERNHARDT IN BED.

Physicians Order Ten Days More of Rest—Premiere Postponed.

PARIS, Dec. 21.—The physicians attending Sarah Bernhardt insist that she remain in bed for at least ten days more to recover fully from the fainting spell with which she was seized on Monday.

The manager of the Theatre Edward VII. consequently has postponed the premiere of Sacha Guitry's play, "Un Sujet de Roman," in which Madame Bernhardt is to appear, until some day in January, probably not before the fifteenth.

The manager, who saw Madame Bernhardt this morning, described her condition as serious, owing to her advanced age. While a certain amount of anxiety is felt, he said, he was confident that, barring complications, she would be able to resume her work after a complete rest.

FIGHT ON BAYONNE BRIDGE IS REOPENED

Port Authority Insists Jersey Central Should Await Newark Bay Developments.

The Port of New York Authority, in response to the request of a delegation from Newark, N. J., decided yesterday to reaffirm to the Secretary of War its position of opposition to the construction of a bridge by the Central Railroad of New Jersey at the mouth of Newark Bay from Elizabethport to Bayonne, and to urge a postponement of action by the War Department on this matter. Eugenius H. Outerbridge, Chairman of the Port Authority, in a letter to Colonel H. C. Newcomer, of the United States Engineer Office, this district, gave the following reasons against the building of the bridge:

"The ultimate character of the marine traffic in Newark Bay will be probably very accurately foreshadowed by developments within the next two or three years. If it should be proved that large steamships and masted vessels in substantial numbers are to be operated from Newark Bay, a bridge even as called for in the amended plans might prove a very serious obstruction to navigation.

"If a large capital expenditure is now made for a new bridge, it would tend to fasten upon Newark Bay, perhaps for years, the operating conditions entailed by such a bridge, and might thus impose for a long time to come serious limitations upon otherwise possible marine developments and facilities.

"If after a lapse of two or three years, marine traffic had not developed of a character to be seriously obstructed by such a bridge, it would then be more safely undertaken.

"We realize, of course, the necessity for the railroad to be provided with adequate and proper facilities for its passenger and freight service, but also apprehend that if important marine services develop in Newark Bay, passage for which must be freely and frequently permitted, the business of both the railroad and shipping may be seriously incommoded.

"A large investment of capital by the railroad in a bridge could not be jeopardized or scrapped for a long time to come, probably its physical attributes and operation could not be materially altered. On the other hand, if there should occur a large development of shipping it would have to be afforded frequent and free access to the ship terminals.

"We hold the view that a brief probationary period of two or three years would probably develop all these facts more clearly than they can be determined today, and therefore enable a wiser judgment as to what ultimate course would be best in the interest of passenger accommodation and trade and commerce."

STATE RESTS ITS CASE IN THE HERRIN KILLINGS

Defense Will Open Today and Deny That the Five Accused Took Part in Riots.

MARION, Ill., Dec. 21 (Associated Press).—After eight days spent in the introduction of evidence, the prosecution rested today at the trial of five men charged with murder in connection with the slaying of twenty non-union miners during the Herrin riots last June. The defense will open tomorrow morning.

In the testimony of its last few witnesses the State completed its relation of the events from the time three mine guards were shot while driving in a truck from Carbondale to the Lester mine on the morning of June 21, to the attack on the mine that afternoon when three union miners were killed, the surrender under a white flag the next morning of forty-eight non-union men in the pit and the slaying of twenty of the prisoners.

All five defendants have been pointed out in court as having been seen with guns during the riots and several of them have been named as having shot down some of the victims. During the course of the presentation of the State's case four of the survivors of the tragedy have taken the stand and described the scenes of horror which they said accompanied the killings.

A. W. Kerr, chief counsel for the defense, says he expects to prove that the guards or gunmen were the aggressors in the riots and brought on any attack that was made upon them by their acts of provocation and challenge.

He further said that the defense would put on the stand hundreds of witnesses who would testify that the defendants now on trial had no possible connection with the killings charged.

MOTION PICTURE NOTES.

Next week's new photoplays will be "Dr. Jack," with Harold Lloyd, at the Strand; "The Headless Horseman," with Will Rogers, at the Capitol; "Back Home and Broke," with Thomas Meighan, at the Rivoli; "The Flirt," with Eileen Percy, at the Rialto, and "Solomon in Society," with William H. Strauss, at the Cameo.

Among the shorter films to be shown next week are a Planticon picture in three dimensions at the Rivoli, "The Runaway Dog," a novelty, at the Strand, and "The Good Spirit," described as a fantasy, at the Capitol.

The principal musical numbers at the Broadway motion picture houses next week will be "Christmas Fantasy," with Mlle. Gamberelli, Alexander Oumansky and other dancers, at the Capitol; "Yuletide Tone Poem," and overture with tableaux, at the Strand; a Christmas toy dance by Paul Oscard and Vera Myers at the Rialto and "Around the Christmas Tree," a vocal ensemble with soloists, at the Rivoli.

"M. A. R. S.," a comedy, and other films prepared for stereoscopic exhibition by the Televiex process, will begin an engagement at the Selwyn Theatre next Wednesday evening.

About 1,000 crippled children attended the showing of "The Town That Forgot God" at the Astor Theatre yesterday afternoon, the Seaside Home for Crippled Children acting as host.

"Over the Hill," with Mary Carr, the William Fox production that ran for nearly a year on Broadway in 1920-21, will be revived for two weeks at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre, beginning tomorrow evening.

In a brief and modest curtain speech, David Warfield spoke of his present venture as the result of an ambition of long standing that lacked only the approval of his public to crown it. That approval will probably be forthcoming. This is not an epoch-making Shylock; in many respects it falls short of greatness, but it is sincere, intelligent, and infused with a technique of the stage, a subtle and delicate artistry, that registers every fine intention.

It is strongest in the quieter moments. One feels an ancient bitterness, the bitterness of racial as well as personal persecution, that heightens in Shylock's contact with the spendthrift and abusive Gentiles to an intense hatred. Among the most effective instruments in Warfield's armory are his eyes, out of the cavernous darkness of which fierce and half-suppressed venom gleams fitfully. And there is an increasing purpose in his animosity, a rising tide of malignity that seems to mantle from his breast upward to expression in every feature.

The trial scene brings a climax of inward yet varied and polyphonic passions of revenge. Not all the mightier possibilities were realized. The majestic volume of high tragedy was lacking. But pathos was there to the last degree, a pathos that rose far above Warfield's accomplishment in his more familiar performances into the clear atmosphere of Shakespearian acting.

What one missed throughout was the vigor and the large variety of the natural tragedian. Warfield's voice has a few notes of low, rich vibrance, and he made the most of these. But it lacks range and volume. In moments of extreme passionate utterance it went thin and white, sometimes breaking in the upper range.

Neither in stature nor in physical vitality is he equal to Shylock's volcanic outbursts. In passages requiring a quick, dramatic alternation between contrasting moods—his agony at Jessica's profligacy and his gloating over Antonio's reported losses—one felt a sure artistic intention, realized to the utmost possibility of the means at his command, but seldom or never the intrinsic force of the scene.

The keynote of Shakespearian acting nowadays seems to be a twentieth-century naturalism, subtle and persuasive in denoting the even tenor of character and passion but incapable of the higher flights, or perhaps only unambitious of achieving them. This Shylock is a close-woven texture, consistent and durable. If it falls short of an elder ideal, it is yet prevailingly adequate to the situations presented, the story told. It does honor to the actor's ambition and affords a genuine privilege to the rising generation.

In devising the production, David Belasco has remained firm in the tradition of the nineteenth century. Irving, Tree and Augustin Daly would applaud without misgiving. Seldom or never has pictorial Shakespeare been more beautiful. The scenes in Venetian residential streets, one of them showing the front of a synagogue, are admirable architecturally as pictorially. The scene at Portia's villa is richly beautiful in the internal decorations and gives outward upon a landscape of vibrant aerial spaces. The scene of the trial is a riot of rich color and sober ornament, truly Venetian. The final outdoor scene at Belmont is an enchantment of moonlight and stars. Opulent good taste could not do more to provide a variety of form and color, ravishing the senses.

All this has, of course, to be purchased at the usual cost. The waits between scenes, though brought down to an irreducible minimum, try the most patient and allow interest in the narrative to grow cold. It was a quarter of 12 last night when the audience departed, and the performance had begun shortly after 8.

Less easily demonstrable yet no less detrimental to a realization of the full force of the drama is the handling of the text. The cuts, to be sure, are for the most part judicious and the interpolated songs and actor-made lines are not really objectionable. In their humble way they were effective enough. Not so the arrangement of the scenes.

Shakespeare's narrative artfully alternates the Portia scenes and the Shylock scenes, weaving them into a rapidly shifting and richly contrasted fabric of color and emotion. The effect is of a vitality and beauty that can be realized only by those who have seen the play produced in its true order and rapidity, as the master dramatist intended. Mr. Belasco follows the Victorian tradition.

In order to avoid impossible delays in scene shifting, he gathers the Shylock scenes into the second act and lumps the Belmont scenes in the third. For Shakespeare's color scheme of character and emotion blending as they develop into a narrative of ever-increasing interest, he substituted the color scheme of Ernest Gros. It is not till the great trial scene, which is presented intact, that Shakespeare's dramaturgy is again in evidence.

The supporting company was, on the whole, surprisingly good. Mary Servoss, who played Portia, was suffering from a quinsy sore throat and had a temperature of 102. In telling this to the audience, Mr. Belasco spoke of her with deep gratitude as a "soldier." That under the circumstances she acquitted herself creditably, fully sustaining her part in each successive scene, giving good hope of her future performances.

Julia Adler, daughter of the celebrated King Lear are well known, was a personable and spirited Jessica. As Esaanic, Philip Merivale achieved one of the finest moments of the play. While reading the letter from Antonio telling of the ruin of his fortunes his voice choked and he was obliged to give over the reading to Portia. The effect was of an emotion most poignantly masculine and true.

The resentment which has been so often expressed against requiring children in the public schools to read "The Merchant" has made itself felt once more against this production by Mr. Belasco and Mr. Warfield. Into that controversy it is not necessary to enter, but certain underlying facts should be kept in mind.

The character and story, and probably also a pre-Shakespearean play, had long been familiar to the patrons of the Globe. The temper of the old playgoing public is very clearly indicated in "The Jew of Malta," a grossly anti-Semitic caricature by Shakespeare's great predecessor, Christopher Marlowe. Undoubtedly in its early versions, now lost, "The Merchant" itself was a Jew-baiting play. As far as concerns its plot, it is essentially that in the final version by Shakespeare.

Characters and scenes had both been "set" long before he took it in hand. To make any radical alteration would have been technically impossible, and moreover a gratuitous task, for the jester and more sympathetic view of the Jew could not find favor, or even understanding, in any circle of English life, let alone the inclusive public to which the Globe appealed. But what happened to the play under Shakespeare's touch was in a way even more remarkable.

Without making any fundamental change in character or action, Shakespeare psychologized the Jew, profoundly and sympathetically; and the result is a man as true to nature and as comprehensible as Marlowe's Barabas is grotesquely distorted and incredibly buffoned. Antonio "hath disgraced me * * * scorned my nation, thwarted my bargains, cooled my friends, heated mine enemies; and what's his reason? I am a Jew. Hath not a Jew eyes? Hath not a Jew hands, organs, dimensions, senses, affections, passions? fed with the same food, hurt with the same weapons * * * warmed and cooled by the same Winter and Summer as a Christian is? * * * And if you wrong us, shall we not revenge? If we are like you in the rest, we will resemble you in that." It is a speech in which Gentiles find little pleasure, but which is familiar to the thought of the Jew. Though Shylock does not pause or waver in the demand for his pound of flesh, the old story becomes measurably human and comprehensible.

The foremost biographer of Shakespeare, Sir Sidney Lee (himself a Jew and born Solomon Levy), has made an interesting study of the historic background of this plot and character. About the time Shakespeare was engaged in rewriting the old play, the chief physician of Queen Elizabeth, a cultivated and distinguished Jew named Roderigo Lopez, was accused of conspiring to poison the Queen and, more specifically, one Peres, whose surname was that of our merchant, Antonia. Lopez, was convicted and hanged at Tyburn in 1594.

The evidence was not complete and political joined with racial passions to procure the conviction. Elizabeth herself long hesitated to sign the death warrant. Sir Sidney conjectures that Shakespeare's sympathy with the victim colored and redeemed his portrait of Shylock. "Shakespeare's Jew," he says, "despite his mercenary instinct, is a penetrating and tolerant interpretation of racial characteristics which are degraded by an antipathetic environment. * * * It is Shylock (not the merchant Antonio) who is the hero of the play, and the main interest culminates in the Jew's trial and discomfiture. That solemn scene trembles on the brink of tragedy."

The forces that impelled Shakespeare to make this change doubtless worked in a large measure subconsciously; but few achievements of genius are greater than this, that instinctive sympathy and tolerance converted an old comedy of jew-bating into a drama that, in the view of a Jewish biographer of Shakespeare at in that of our modern Jewish actor and manager, verges upon tragic sublimity.

DEFENDS HIS INTERPRETATION

Warfield Explains Why He Has Humanized Character of Shylock.

In his dressing room at the final rehearsal of "The Merchant of Venice" before the New York opening, David Warfield discussed and defended his interpretation of the character of Shylock. Realizing that controversy was certain to arise over his treatment of the role, he explained why he felt justified in humanizing the character, particularly in the earlier scenes of the play.

"In the first place," said Mr. Warfield, "I want to emphasize the fact that I have not embarked idly upon this characterization after a mere four weeks of rehearsal, plus the five weeks or so that we have been acting the play out of town. When we make ready to essay a role like Shylock we must not go at it in the catch-as-catch-can fashion. I have studied it thoroughly—I have been studying it for years.

"The main point that I want to make is this—and on it I base my characterization: Shylock was not venomous and vindictive until his daughter had been stolen from him—and stolen from him by the same old crowd, if I may call them that. All of the abuses that had been heaped upon him culminated in his nefarious insanity at the end of the second act. At all events, I endeavor to show that he was nearly insane at this point. For surely no sane person would run through the streets, as he does at this juncture, and shriek of his bereavement.

"In the courtroom he is obsessed with just one notion—he wants the life of Antonio. He is cold, icy, adamant—nothing can move him. And, remember, he has the law on his side—for it was the law, even though the actual execution of a flesh bond was a rare occurrence. My point is this: that Shylock had no idea, when he asked for the bond stipulating a pound of flesh, that Antonio would be unable to meet its requirements. Antonio was a rich man—he had argosies on every sea.

"Shylock had no idea, at this time, of ever demanding the fulfillment of the bond—he was driven to that state of mind by subsequent events. And so I show him to be a very human person in the opening scenes, and a very weak person—excepting only for a moment in the scene with Antonio, when he comes to borrow. Probably the 'ancient grudge' line will be cited here to prove that Shylock was revengeful from the beginning, but such was not the case. It was no more than a colloquialism—a line carelessly tossed off, as any one at all is likely to toss off an exaggerated statement that he does not literally mean.

"It is in that vein that I have always conceived Shylock, and that is why I have been at pains to make him a human person. During our few weeks on tour, incidentally, I have received many letters from ministers and rabbis praising this interpretation of the part."

PLANNED TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Estimated That Belasco Spent $250,000 on His Production.

David Belasco's production of "The Merchant of Venice" at the Lyceum Theatre last night, with David Warfield as Shylock, has been in prospect for twenty years. It was shortly after Mr. Warfield came to Mr. Belasco to act "The Auctioneer" that the two men decided that some day they would join hands on a production of "The Merchant of Venice." As for the production at the Lyceum, its date was definitely determined a year and a half ago, and work on it has been under way since that time.

Many reports and rumors regarding the production have come from Mr. Belasco's workshop on Forty-fourth Street, but nothing of an official nature came until a few months ago when the bare announcement was made that Mr. Warfield would act the play. The most persistent rumor that issued from the Belasco Theatre had to do with the lavishness of the production. From such meager hints as came to hand, those familiar with the ways of the theatre estimated that Mr. Belasco was spending at least $200,000 before the curtain rose on his production. They recalled the fact that "Deburau" had cost $140,000 to produce, and according to all accounts "The Merchant of Venice" was to be a much more splendid production.

Questioned as to the sheer financial investment involved, Mr. Belasco yesterday refused to make public any figures.

Eats, Sleeps and Dreams Theatre.

"It is not important," was his reply. "As a matter of fact, it is quite a simple production—those who come anticipating something particularly lavish are likely to be disappointed. But, whatever it cost, it is all money that the public has given me, and now I am giving it back to them. I am not interested in bonds, or property, or the stock market. But I am interested in the theatre—I eat the theatre, and sleep theatre, and dream theatre.

"Mr. Warfield will act 'The Merchant of Venice' here for the balance of the season, in all probability, and then for a season on tour. I am telling the simple truth when I say that it does not matter in the least whether the cost of the production is ever recovered, so long as people think that it is well done. For I am frank to say that I rather like a little praise. 'Deburau' played at the Belasco Theatre for twenty-six weeks to average receipts of $18,000 a week, but never paid back the cost of the production. But people were kind enough to say that it was rather well done.

"Of course, it was inevitable that I would produce Shakespeare sooner or later. It has been, I assure you, rather an uphill climb—I have never been backed, and every brick in my theatre has been given to me by the public. What I have done is to go ahead and produce Shakespeare as I think Shakespeare should be produced. My first concern, when I planned the production, was to cast and engage the best people that I could get for the parts—I brought A. E. Anson from England, for example, to play the Duke, a rôle that is customarily doubled or else given to an inferior actor. As for my production—well, I am a realist. I have no great patience with what is called the more advanced school. Tragedy, to be real, must be presented in a real manner, and that I have tried to do."

Studied Venetian Architecture.

In pursuit of reality Mr. Belasco sent two men to Europe a year ago and they spent many months abroad. They visited Venice, where Ernest Gros, Mr. Belasco's scenic designer, studied Venetian architecture for months. In the sets at the Lyceum Theatre he has duplicated much of what he saw. His companion devoted himself to the finding of fabrics and ornaments appropriate to the period of the play. Much that he brought back is contained in the production, together with precise copies of certain tapestries that could not be purchased.

After rehearsing the play for four weeks in New York Mr. Belasco rented a theatre in Wilmington for a week, intending to give the first performance of the play in that city on a Friday night. For five days and nights dress rehearsals continued, but the assembling of the production proved so huge a task that it was found impossible to open as scheduled. The company remained for the week in Wilmington, rehearsing steadily and more than $9,000 was refunded to the Wilmington public for seats purchased for Friday and Saturday.

The production was booked for Ford's Theatre in Baltimore during the week following, with Monday night sold out long in advance. Again it was found impossible to open, but on the following night—Tuesday, Nov. 14—the first performance was finally given. There followed weeks in Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit and Washington, but in each of these cities it was found necessary to curtail the scenic investiture somewhat, owing to the limits of the stage. Several of the houses used in "The Merchant" are about forty feet in height, and it was found impossible to place these upon the average stage. At the Lyceum much of the fly-gallery has been torn out to make room for them.

To Continue Producing Shakespeare.

"I hope," said Mr. Belasco yesterday, "that I get sufficient encouragement to continue with the production of Shakespeare. I am planning a production of 'Romo and Juliet' for Lenore Ulric, although not for several seasons. 'Kiki,' of course, will endure for another season or two, and Miss Ulric will then be seen in a play that Edward Sheldon is writing for her. After that will come Juliet.

"'The Merchant,' of course, will go into Mr. Warfield's repertoire eventually. His immediate venture after Shylock, probably during the season after next, will be 'King Lear.' I am also very anxious to produce 'Henry IV' and 'Julius Cæsar'—for the latter I would naturally have to assemble a tremendous cast.

"As for Mr. Warfield's interpretation of the rôle of Shylock, I expect it to cause some discussion, of course—indeed, I shall be disappointed if it does not. He has conceived a characterization of his own—his own manner and style, and feeling. He could easily have imitated the great Shylocks of the past; he could have selected the high spots of their performances and endeavored to duplicate them. But he has not done that. He has conceived a different and very human Shylock—and yet he makes no effort to make him sympathetic. He gives him his hatred, but also his justification.

"Of course, he is certain to be criticized. The last thing that I would expect, or want, would be a unanimous verdict."

BELASCO PUTS IDEAS IN BOOK.

His Edition of "The Merchant of Venice" Contains Rearranged Text.

Some of David Belasco's ideas on "The Merchant of Venice" are contained in a preface written by him to a special edition of the play, privately printed by him for distribution among his friends. This volume contains the text as rearranged by Mr. Belasco, and as it was acted at the Lyceum last night by David Warfield.

In his preface to this volume Mr. Belasco says:

"All my life I have desired and purposed to produce the plays of Shakespeare. They were the chief part of my earliest study, and my love for them increased with my years. In youth it was my frequent privilege to see many of the best actors our stage has known in their finest Shakespearean embodiments, and, sometimes personating minor characters, to act in association with them. The first words that I ever spoke in the theatre were words of Shakespeare—those of the little Richard, Duke of York, in 'King Richard III.,' a part which, in childhood, I played at the old Theatre Royal, in Victoria, B. C., with the famous Charles Kean and Ellen Tree, his wife.

"Among the great players of Shylock for whom it has been my fortune to direct the stage and to rehearse the immortal drama of which he is the central and pervasive figure are McCullough, Barrett, Sullivan, Booth and—by no means least—William E. Sheridan. In various early barnstorming ventures of my own I indulged my dominant desire and presented 'The Merchant' and some others of the Bard's great plays—with, be it said, a simplicity of scenic investiture which would cause productions made in the Elizabethan manner to appear as lavishly overloaded with ornament. But such juvenile endeavors do not count; and circumstances have not, until now, permitted me really to begin fulfillment of my ambitious purpose—which I do with this oft-postponed but at last accomplished revival of 'The Merchant of Venice,' in which it is my privilege to present the leader of the American stage, my dear friend Mr. David Warfield, in one of the most exacting of test parts. In Shakespeare's own words: 'Joy be the consequence!'

Literature Heedfully Examined.

A whole literature of emendation, conjecture and commentary has grown up around the text and the characters its fellows. * * * I would here specify that the whole of that literature (containing much of folly and conceit as well as much of wisdom and learning) has been heedfully examined in preparing the play for its present revival, and that ample authority exists for each and every decision as to moot points embodied in this arrangement.

"It is, of course, to be conceded that neither the plots of Shakespeare nor those of any other dramatist should be overloaded with scenery. Also, it is conceded that where a clear, consistent, dramatic original text exists it should, as far as possible be adhered to.

"In this matter the first disagreement must necessarily come over the question of what constitutes scenic overloading. Shall we have the stage practically bare? Or shall we have it set to represent as closely as possible the scenes specified? A very small minority of the theatre-going public, which enjoys mere rhetoric and declamation, approves presentation of plays upon stages almost barren and most insufficiently illumined. The immense majority of that public, on the other hand, prefers and demands (and is therein reasonable and right) representations designed to create illusions; representations in which actors, impersonating and interpreting character, are required to suit the word to the action, the action to the word, and wherein, also, stage directors strive to suit the scenic investiture to the indications of time and place said to be dramatic and histrionic needs of plays hence specified. By the minority, such stage directors are those most often (and most unjustly) censured for overloading Shakespeare with scenery. * * *

The Play's the Thing.

"With the public, in a presentation of Shakespeare, 'the play's the thing': no revival of any of his plays that has depended for support merely upon display has ever had, at best, more than a fleeting prosperity; many of such productions have been theatrical failures. A diamond is always a diamond—but cut, polished and placed in a suitable and lovely setting it always shows to better advantage than when left, rough and imperfect, embedded in clay. To give to Shakespeare's plays, tragic or comic, their wholly adequate, due investiture—that, and nothing more—has been, and is, the honorable ambition of his most truly appreciative and reverent producers. Such, certainly, is my ambition in reviving 'The Merchant of Venice.' But to recognize that not everything which Shakespeare wrote is either good literature or good drama does not injure—on the contrary, it adds—in making satisfactory revivals of his plays. * * *

"The whole long and sometimes acrimonious controversy over proper methods of reviving the plays of Shakespeare upon the stage of today (whether in respect of the nature of investiture or the editing of the text) resolves itself into this:

"Should a producer utilize all the expedients, devices and improvements which incessant study and continuous scientific discovery and invention have developed during the last three hundred years or should he (not for a special, educational occasion but as a permanent policy) throw away ambition, and with it all the advancement that has been made in that long time, and revert to the crude, inferior, wholly inadequate methods which were in vogue (and which were condemned while they were in vogue) during the infancy of the modern theatre?

Innovations Suggested by Study.

"To do the latter, honestly and consistently, we should, among other things, have to banish women from our stage and to have such parts as Portia, Nerissa and the amorous Jessica represented by squeaking boys; to dispense with suitable music and the almost limitless advantages and all the exquisite beauties of electrical lighting; to forego the use of proper make-up (wigs, pigments, &c.); to do away with all adequate scenery, furniture and dressing; to present—for example—'The Merchant of Venice' not in the garb and the environment of the Venice of the sixteenth century, but in the cast-off garments of the nobility of Elizabeth's court, and in a rough, semi-barren environment, scarce dignified enough for a bear-baiting.

"The public certainly would not tolerate such ineptitude in management. Now is it possible for me to doubt that Shakespeare himself would eagerly have employed all the many invaluable accessories of modern stagecraft if they had been available to him. Therefore, in making this revival of 'The Merchant of Venice,' what I am sure Shakespeare would have done, what I am sure he would do if he were here today, that I have done—and availed myself to the full of all those accessories and aids to effect. But in doing so I have neither forgotten nor disregarded the sundry, insight and achievement of three centuries of precedent labor. Thus it will, I trust, be found that, while making innovations such as life-long study and experience have suggested, I have neither cumbered the stage with superfluous and hampering embellishments nor disregarded anything valuable in the traditions with which, through generations of genius, this great play has become encrusted."

WAGNER'S PIANO SHOWN.

Musicians See Instrument Brought by Soldier From Germany.

An invited audience, made up for the most part of New York musicians, was present to see the piano on which Richard Wagner had composed his "Ring" music half a century ago shown here at the Knabe studios last evening. The instrument was discovered in Berlin by Robert H. Prossey, an American soldier, and was recently brought by him to this country. Among those taking part in the impromptu program and in the audience were Joseph Schwartz, Rosa Ponselle, Albert M. Bagby, Mieczyslaw Munz, Dr. Eugene A. Noble, Henry Souvaine, Marguerite Namara, Erwin Nyiregyhasi and John Charles Thomas.

The original pencil score of Wagner's "Das Rheingold," which is now in the possession of Kurt Lehmann of this city, was also on exhibition. Berthold Neuer played the evening and Sigmund Spaeth made the announcements.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Tarnish," by Gilbert Emery, will be produced soon by John Cromwell, with Henry Hull in the leading role.

A play by Susan Glaspell, called "The Square Peg," has been accepted for production by Guthrie McClintic.

"Will Shakespeare" will come to the National Theatre on Jan. 1. "Fashions for Men," now at the National, will be moved to the Belmont. Deems Taylor has composed several songs for "Will Shakespeare."

Maclyn Arbuckle will soon be seen in a comedy by Caesar Dunn, to be produced by H. H. Frazee.

There will be a midnight performance of "Liza" at the Sixty-third Street Theatre on New Year's Eve.

"The Green Scarab," by John Stapleton, has been placed in rehearsal by James Shegreen. The cast includes H. Cooper Cliffe, Alexandra Carlisle, Victor Morley and Lillian Walker.

Lillian Owen's marionettes will give performances at the Princess Theatre next Tuesday and Friday afternoons and Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday mornings.

"The Moreland Case," a play from the Hungarian, opened last night in Rochester.

"Elsie," a musical comedy, with libretto by Charles W. Bell, had its first performance in Columbus last night.

The fortieth anniversary celebration at the Casino Theatre has been postponed to Jan. 9.

"Take a Chance," a musical comedy by H. I. Phillips and Harold Orlob, has been placed in rehearsal.

"Lola in Love" will open in Scranton next Monday.

"The Sporting Thing To Do," by Thompson Buchanan, will open out of town on Jan. 15. Emily Stevens will have the leading role.

Bertha Broad, who has played opposite Walter Hampden in "Romeo and Juliet," is planning to appear in New York in the part.

The Moscow Art Theatre will give Friday and Saturday matinees during its forthcoming engagement at Jolson's Theatre.

THE STRAITS AGREEMENT.

Another international compact, in which our Government admits that American interests are directly involved, has been completed with the United States dissenting, or at least standing aloof. After weeks of wrangling and fencing at Lausanne, the Turks have finally agreed to accept the terms laid down by the Allies for the purpose of maintaining the freedom of the Straits. Americans were present as friendly observers. The Russians were there as marplots. But when the Turkish delegates finally became convinced that there was perfect unity among the Allies, and that Russian intrigues could bring about no division, they threw over the Soviets and surrendered to the Allies. The American position was stated to be that this country could not join in the general treaty with Turkey. The reasons assigned are that our Government does not assent to a joint commission to supervise the execution of the treaty, and cannot consent to any limitations whatever upon the right of American ships of war to pass freely through the Straits.

Taking the last point first, it is no doubt an admirable principle for which our State Department stands. If the Straits and the Sea of Marmora are to be regarded as an international waterway, perfect freedom of navigation would seem necessarily to follow. Yet it is a question whether an abstract right ought to be too tenaciously asserted when everything concrete that we should ever desire to use is easily within reach. And examination of the details of the Straits agreement will disclose that all that is substantial is amply secured. The only doubt relates to the passage of vessels of war through the Straits. Commercial ships of all kinds are to have an unimpeded route both in peace and in war. Upon the passage of warships the Allies allowed certain restrictions. But these, on inspection, do not seem to amount to much.

It is agreed, for example, that the maximum force which a single nation can pass through the Straits into the Black Sea "must not surpass that "of the most powerful fleet of the "States bordering on the Black Sea "and existing in the Black Sea at the "time of passage." This relates to time of peace. Even then the Powers reserve the right to pass through three battleships at a time. The probability is extremely remote that the United States would ever, in practice, desire anything more than this. It is true that the same restrictions apply to warships in a time of war when Turkey is neutral. But it is significantly stipulated: "These limitations "will not be applicable to a belligerent Power to the detriment of its "belligerent rights in the Black Sea." This can only mean that if the United States were to be at war with Russia, or with Bulgaria, and found it essential to its belligerent rights to pass twenty or thirty men-of-war into the Black Sea, it would have the right under this agreement to do so. It would thus appear that the substance of all that our Government has demanded is ours for the taking, if we were to sign the general treaty with Turkey. It would doubtless be ours, even if we do not sign, as the terms of the agreement are universal and the United States would, in any event, be entitled to claim the treatment of the most favored nation.

It is announced, however, that this country is to seek a separate treaty with Turkey, and is to decline the place offered us on the International Commission for the control of the Straits. Our representatives at Lausanne have denied that this latter decision has anything to do with the fact that the matter may eventually be brought under the purview of the League of Nations. All will hope that this is true. It would be incongruous and somewhat humiliating if our Government were to take fright at a mere name in a way to prevent it from getting the thing it wanted done. Even when the full reasons are explained by the State Department for our refusing to go in with the other nations at Lausanne, for the purpose of obtaining jointly the rights which we have said that we consider vital, our position will remain ambiguous and awkward in the eyes of the world. It is much to be desired that nothing official coming out of Washington may be in such bad taste and so harmful to our prestige as the remark of Ambassador HARVEY in London that, while the United States would not share in making decisions reached by the Allies, it might not "tolerate" them. Americans do not wish to see the coat of arms of the State Department changed so as to look like a Dog in the Manger, Rampant.

WHAT GERMANY CAN PAY.

That some kind of American help is sought in deciding at what sum the total of German reparations ought to be fixed seems certain. The disclaimers from Washington relate mostly to the verbal form in which the step is described. It is explained that this country could not be an "umpire" or an "arbitrator." We could not dictate or even mediate. When Germany approached the United States more than a year ago with a request for our good offices, the reply was that we were not directly concerned, and that the only policy for our Government was that Germany should be required to do her utmost to make good her war damages. Still, if the new German Government, with the consent of France and England, should ask that a commission of impartial American experts study the whole question and report what amounts, and by what methods, Germany can pay, it is not to be supposed that President HARDING and Secretary HUGHES would refuse to entertain the suggestion. It might lead to a way of fulfilling the Administration's ardent wish to be "helpful" in unraveling the European financial snarl.

If this work is attempted there can be little doubt what conditions will be laid down. Germany must pledge herself in advance to be bound by the findings of the American experts. She must agree to carry out their recommendations, even if these mean rigid control of German public finance. An essential part of any scheme of the sort would be an initial moratorium and an international loan for the benefit of Germany. But that these things can be had only on what the Germans might think hard terms has just been explicitly stated by Mr. THOMAS LAMONT, whose views would undoubtedly be endorsed by any experts that might be sent to Germany. If the German Government is appealing to Caesar, to Caesar it must go.

ABSTINENCE AND PROHIBITION.

Representative WILLIAM DAVID UPSHAW of the Fifth Georgia District is a man worthy of all respect. Nobody can read his little biography in the Congressional Directory without feeling it for him:

> Educated in common country schools and public schools of Atlanta; received spinal injury from fall on wagon while working on farm in Cobb County, at the age of 18; on bed seven years as result of injury; dictated volume of inspirational, educational and religious sketches and poems, entitled "Echoes from a Recluse"; from proceeds of this book and platform lectures delivered from rolling chair entered Mercer University at Macon at age of 31; soon became interested in helping struggling boys and girls, and gave seven years to this work at Mercer University for men and Bessie Tift College, Forsyth, for women; founded the Golden Age, an undenominational magazine of good citizenship, at Atlanta, Feb. 22, 1908; active in the fight against saloons that made Georgia a prohibition State in 1907; spoke widely over America in prohibition cause under auspices of Anti-Saloon League and Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

A sincere and an earnest character, a prohibitionist of the missionary type and straitest sect. Such is the man who calls upon the conferring Governors at Washington, the President and Vice President and all the members of the Cabinet to "walk out in "the open and lift their hands before "High Heaven and take a new oath "of allegiance to the whole Constitu"tion and the American Flag." They have taken an oath to support the Constitution. It is the Eighteenth Amendment to which they are summoned to renew their allegiance. Such a wet cynic as Representative GALLIVAN of Boston might be cruel enough to suggest that Congressmen in general, and Southern Congressmen in particular, should take a new oath of allegiance to the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments. Mr. UPSHAW wants these dignitaries and every member of Congress sacredly to declare that, "regardless of what their "tastes and practices have been, they "will never again build up a bootleg"ger's barbarous business by drinking "any form or any amount of illicit "liquors at any dinner, at any function, or in any ballroom or any back "alley."

That would be a confession of offenses to which Mr. UPSHAW is not charitable if he attributes them to any of the magnates whose oaths he wants in the open. Doubtless there are men in office, as there are plenty of men out of office, who were able to lay in their private stock of liquors legally, and are now able legally to drink it. If Mr. UPSHAW has any proofs that officials partake of the bootlegger's forbidden juice, he should produce them. Instead, he is feeding more suspicion to "the plain people" who, he says, believe that many high officials converse familiarly with the demon denied to the commonalty. What the "plain people" who are not prohibitionists complain of is, not so much the known or suspected wetness of some official drys as the notorious fact that, under the benign sway of prohibition, anybody "with the price" can buy doubtful or deleterious strong drink. Beer has mostly vanished from the land. The farmer can make his own drinks at ease. Prohibition hampers the majority of former drinkers of mild and cheap stimulants. Large classes, and all the forehanded wets, it is powerless to reach.

In his zeal Mr. UPSHAW makes a curious admission. He wants the President to "issue a ringing Christ"mas proclamation calling every citi"zen, especially every official, to total "abstinence for the common good." That is, prohibition has failed and Mr. HARDING is asked to summon the country to renew that voluntary total abstinence which was increasing before the national attempt at compulsory abstinence began.

HAYS AND ARBUCKLE.

Mr. WILL HAYS is supposed to be a good politician. What internal politics of the movie industry may have reinforced the influence of the Christmas spirit in leading him to "pardon" ARBUCKLE has not been made known. But it was a serious tactical blunder. The Arbuckle case was one of the most important issues in what may be called the foreign relations of the movie industry—its contacts with outside opinion. This was more or less accidental. Mr. ARBUCKLE, though no edifying character, seems to have been only the victim of a mischance that might have happened to any man when drunk and disorderly and consorting with other drunk and disorderly persons; after two disagreements a jury acquitted him.

Nevertheless, he had become a symbol of all the vice that had been indulged in by movie people, or falsely imputed to movie people, anywhere in the world. Mr. HAYS excommunicated him to take the curse off the movies, and there was general approval. The "film czar's" present remarks about "live and let live," "another chance to make good," "starting the New Year with no yesterdays," and so on, are beside the point. Sometimes it is expedient that one man should be sacrificed for his group. Sometimes Christian charity comes too high. ARBUCKLE was a scapegoat; and the only thing to do with a scapegoat, if you must have one, is to chase him off into the wilderness and never let him come back. It will do the picture business no good to have him come trotting back into the parlor, bringing his aroma with him.

FLEET EQUALITY WITH ENGLAND.

About the relative strength of the British and American fleets the respective experts are wont to differ. It is always the navy on the other side of the water that is more powerful. The Washington treaty was to put the two fleets on a parity for ten years, but parity can be made an elusive term. If the fleets seem to be as equal on paper as the official reckoners of displacement, speed and gun calibre could make them, the plan is shot full of holes by critics; or the naval designers have effected improvements that were not foreseen. The Senate Naval Committee has been told within a day or two that the British fleet has forged ahead of the American, because the ten Queen Elizabeths, which carry eight 15-inch guns, now have elevations that increase the range to 30,000 yards, also additional anti-torpedo and anti-airplane armor. But as regards our own ships an exception seems to be made in favor of the Tennessee and California, of 32,300 tons' displacement (greater than that of any of the Queen Elizabeths), and of the Maryland now in commission and the Colorado and West Virginia, which are to replace the Delaware and North Dakota under the terms of the naval treaty. The Tennessee and California are equipped with twelve 14-inch guns, while the Maryland carries eight 16-inch guns. The Colorado and West Virginia will be sister ships of the Maryland. What all this means is that our naval designers in redrawing the plans for these five powerful American ships kept in mind the lesson of Jutland. In that sea fight many of the British ships had an inferior gun elevation as compared with the German.

After the war the Admiralty decided to raise gun elevations on the Queen Elizabeths and give them better protection against torpedoes and bombs. Apparently the work is still going on, for the Washington dispatch says that "the British have virtually com"pleted post-war modernization of "their 15-inch gun ships." The responsibility for not improving the battleships of the American fleet must rest either with the Navy Department or with Congress. The lesson of Jutland was headed in the case of our latest super-dreadnoughts. To Americans proud of their navy it is provoking, when the British set us an example in design and reconstruction. The armor protection of our battleships has been almost uniformly better than that of the British, but if there is room for improvement Congress should make the necessary appropriations as for other "modernization."

While Washington is viewing the changes on the Queen Elizabeths "with alarm," there is concern on the other side of the Atlantic about the scrapping of 13.5-inch gun battleships and battle cruisers to comply with the naval treaty, before the full ratification which was to insure its effectiveness. The Morning Post holds LLOYD GEORGE and Lord LEE responsible for eliminating these non-obsolete ships from the reserve. "Mr. LLOYD GEORGE," it says, "deliberately "threw away the reserve. The con"sequences of weakening the navy," it asserts, "may be extremely seri"ous"—that is to say, if the treaty should fail in the end. The relative fleet strength of the major sea-powers would then be: United States, 41 capital ships, Japan 28, Great Britain 28, but this must be counting some American ships that do not belong to the first line of battle and certainly includes all the ships of the three-year program on which work has stopped. At the same time, there can be no doubt that with the naval treaty on the scrap heap Great Britain would fall behind Japan as well as the United States in post-Jutland capital ships.

The British experts calculate that if the treaty is ratified the United States Navy will include five post-Jutland ships, Japan two and Great Britain one, the battle cruiser Hood of 41,000 tons. Great Britain has been authorized to add two post-Jutland capital ships to her fleet by 1925. "It will be observed," says The Morning Post, "that Great Britain will then "be inferior to the United States in "post-Jutland ships, and a little more "than equal to Japan." Two of the American post-Jutlanders will be 16-inch gun ships, individually weaker than the Queen Elizabeths with their 15-inch guns. On the other hand, the Maryland, Colorado and West Virginia will carry 16-inch guns. So will the two British capital ships to be completed in 1925. The truth, of course, is that looking ahead to 1925 the conference's parity job was pretty well done.

RAILWAY "INEFFICIENCY."

The Interstate Commerce Commission is holding hearings in regard to the relations of the railways of New England to their connections throughout the nation. All are in poor finances, and the question is how to divide the rates for the total service in a manner to give larger income to those whose earnings most need increase. Yesterday was published the testimony of a former Interstate Commissioner and Federal Judge condemning the railways for their poverty. He attributed it to the inefficiency of their officers. He testified that they were "lacking in virility, ingenuity and elasticity," and their "arrogance had "aroused the hostility of the public as "well as of their employés."

Such criticism from a responsible source might well have been accompanied by a hint of its basis. As it stands, it is a mere opinion at variance with the facts available to the public. The hearing itself shows that the railways are not free agents. The regulators fix the rates railways may charge and the wages they must pay. Judge ANDERSON asserts that the railways "provoked" the shopmen's strike, although the public information is that the men struck against the reduction of their wages by the Labor Board—that is, against an agency of the Government rather than against their employers. However the strike was provoked, the strikers lost it because public opinion supported the Labor Board rather than the unions.

It would be interesting to know by what standard this Judge tried the railways. They are surpassing their own previous standards of work done, because they have spent billions in providing themselves with facilities. At the same time their profits have fallen, and they have deprived themselves of dividends in order to increase their public services. Their capitalization is the world's lowest, and their rates among the lowest, despite the recent increase by the regulators who had previously so much more increased costs. To deny these statements is to deny the public records, and is to condemn the railways without disclosure of any proof that the railways are inefficient.

A probable basis for this opinion is afforded by the Judge's evidence—if opinions are evidence—that "we can"not have sane and adequate railroad "transportation from privately owned "corporations," and that the "experiment" must be abandoned. He would doubtless rule out as evidence the sorry showing of our Government shipping. More convincing is a comparison of the working of the railways in this country under public and private operation. Under Government operation they carried traffic cheap to shippers at the cost of hundreds of millions to the taxpayers to cover the deficit. Under Government operation in 1918 the railways earned not only 76 per cent. of the average of three years' private operation. In 1917 the Federal net was but 57 per cent. Was the Judge testifying or just talking?

LAW AND TREATY.

According to an Associated Press dispatch, an Assistant Secretary of the Treasury has ruled that Cuban imports put on the free list by the Cuban Reciprocity Agreement of 1897 are to stay on the free list, whether made dutiable by the Fordney-McCumber Tariff law or not. This seems a singular ruling. By the Constitution, a treaty has the same obligation as an act of Congress. Since the Chinese Exclusion case of 1890, which sustained an act of Congress passed in 1888, that conflicted, in some respects, with the treaty between the United States and China of 1880, it has been the accepted doctrine that a statute in conflict with a treaty, if a constitutional exercise of legislative power, may supersede that treaty on the subject or subjects as to which they are in conflict. To the extent it is at variance with the statute, the treaty is abrogated "as a part of the municipal law of the United States," though its international obligation is not destroyed.

A subsequent statute may override a preceding treaty, just as a subsequent treaty may override a preceding statute on a particular subject. The tariff of 1883 imposed duties on certain articles included in the Reciprocity Treaty between the United States and the then Kingdom of Hawaii. In his annual message to Congress, Dec. 1, 1890, President HARRISON wrote that he was "bound to presume "that the wrong done to Hawaii was "wholly unintentional." He hoped that Congress would "repair what "might otherwise seem to be a breach "of faith on the part of this Govern"ment." At any rate, only Congress could restore the omitted exceptions in favor of Hawaii. If Congress has seen fit to lay duties on certain commodities put on the free list by the Reciprocity Agreement with Cuba, what other power than Congress can restore those commodities to the free list? The Assistant Secretary's decision is said to have been "based on "the precedence given to treaties over "Federal laws." There is no such precedence in the Constitution. "This "Constitution, and the laws of the "United States which shall be made "in pursuance thereof; and all "treaties made, or which shall be "made, under the authority of the "United States, shall be the supreme "law of the land." Treaty and statute stand on the same footing. The latest of the two equals has precedence over the other, on a given subject.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Conspirators Against the Public.

That rather recently discovered, though never very hard to find, "third party" to every labor strike—the public—need not rejoice any more than the Attorney General says he does over the fact that eight trainmen out in California have been convicted of conspiracy to interfere with interstate commerce and are to be sentenced next week for a crime which, under the Federal laws, is very serious. The public can and will see, however, that, in this ending of the trial, there is reason at least for hoping that hereafter neither strikers nor strike leaders will forget that the public cannot safely be treated merely as a tool with which to enforce union demands—and so treated with indifference to what the consequences may be.

The eight men who have been found guilty of conspiracy are those, or some of those, who, in order to help the striking railway shopmen last Summer, abandoned several Santa Fé passenger trains at little desert villages, where, as the conspirators well knew and deliberately intended, the passengers, including many women and little children, would be subjected to great hardships and real perils to life because of the great heat and the nearly complete absence of the facilities for supplying with food, water and shelter a large number of travelers suddenly and unexpectedly marooned there.

The excuses for doing this outrageous thing—that the train equipment was out of order and armed guards had been stationed at the terminals—were not even colorable justification for it. The reason for doing it, of course, was to show the power of the strikers, and the apparent expectation was that it would create a general and insistent demand that the railways yield to the strikers. The power was shown, but the effect was the exact opposite of expectation. There was an instant cry of indignation from all parts of the country, and the strike leaders almost at once found themselves compelled to repudiate and censure what the trainmen had done.

Now the conspirators face heavy punishment, and nobody except themselves will think it undeserved.

Telling Anew a Tale Well Known.

Surprise has been expressed in some quarters that the trial now going on at Herrin, Ill., does not receive more space and more prominent position in the Eastern newspapers. Surely, say these critics, nothing could be much more "sensational," in the correct sense of that word, than the testimony given by eye-witnesses of that savage massacre of helpless prisoners who had surrendered under promises of decent, that is civilized, treatment by their enemies. And that such things can happen in the United States, they add, is sufficiently disquieting to make it the news feature of every day during which the trial continues.

What they forget is that the whole story of the massacre, in all its appalling details, was printed in practically all papers at the time, only a little while ago, when the killing was done. The court proceedings are bringing out practically nothing new except the identification by some of the witnesses of some of the men who did the shooting. That is, of course, highly important, if the evidence thus given withstands the attacks upon it by the defense, but as all of the men involved on both sides are wholly unknown beyond the Illinois coal field, their names are of little general interest. The witnesses for the prosecution certainly are telling the truth as to what was done at Herrin; whether their identifications are correct is for the jurors to decide, and until the verdict is rendered judgment on the prisoners at bar must be suspended.

Meanwhile, the public only is learning for the second time in a few months that between the Russian Bolsheviki at their very worst and Illinois coal miners in a rage with strike breakers there is little or nothing to choose. What makes this likeness the more alarming is the fact that so many of these miners are not recently arrived foreigners, but representatives of our older and supposedly best stocks.

"Their Spelling Worse Than Ours."

Whatever else may be said about the Poles by their friends or their enemies, the latter truly can say, and the former cannot deny, that they are going rapidly from bad to worse in selecting men to guide their national destinies. That is the progression, anyhow, so far as regards the names of the men chosen for this honorable but difficult and dangerous task.

General PRZEDZKI had a name which, while not exactly handsome in non-Polish eyes, yet looked well enough and could easily be pronounced by anybody—whether rightly or wrongly didn't make much difference. It even could be remembered and spelled. The name of the ill-fated President NARUTOWICZ excited only mild anxieties as to its termination, and the use of consonants in it, while generous, was not reckless.

But what can be said of or for the name of the new man, WOJCIECHOWSKI? Anywhere west of the Polish frontier that will be indeed a disquieting mystery—what children would call a sticker. While not quite as impossible of alien pronunciation—from the spelling—as some other Polish names, its appearance is distinctly terrifying.

Curiously enough, if one hears a Pole pronounce the names of his countrymen, the sounds he makes are not at all harsh; they tend, on the contrary, toward the suave and musical. The names then shorten up a lot, too, from their printed aspect, and their J's and Z's either disappear entirely or behave with a pleasing mildness.

But probably our "Schenectady" and "Poughkeepsie" and "Oshkosh" look a bit queer to the uninitiate, and as for the more or less Indian names—less rather than more, usually—that have been invented in recent years for the New England lakes that were ponds before big hotels were built on their shores, doubtless they would fill even the boldest of Poles with terror at first sight of them.

It's Enough to Scare the Boldest.

Out in Detroit the reckless driving of automobiles is taken as justification for suspecting the driver of insanity, and those indulging in it are sent to a board of alienists for examination.

That is an excellent idea. Enough of the old notion that madness was somehow disgraceful still lingers in most minds, and nobody likes—everybody, as a matter of fact, deeply hates and is not a little frightened by—the very suggestion that his brain is out of order. Hence, such examinations as they are making in Detroit well may be more effective in inspiring respect for the speed laws than is the threat of fine or imprisonment.

As yet nobody in Mr. Ford's city seems to have been convicted of out-and-out lunacy, but several mental defectives have been discovered, and they will sit behind the steering wheel no more. As for the others, they have had a lesson they will remember.

Our own guardians of life and limb would be wise to adopt the Detroit invention.

Cost of Theatre Tickets.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I desire to register a protest against your assumption that it is a matter of indifference to the theatregoer if he has to pay a premium of 50 cents. Undoubtedly the visitor from out of town, who comes here for a good time regardless of expense, will pay any price for extra good seats, and so will the New Yorker who is not obliged to consider the price exacted for a good play. But where there is one such person there are scores of intelligent men and women that live here who must choose whether they shall see a very few plays at an exorbitant price, as they view the matter, or a larger number of plays at a reasonable price for the privilege.

Do the managers prefer the patronage of the stranger, whose influence for the advance of our drama toward better things is, to say the least, problematical, or do they desire to encourage the steady growth of an intelligent clientele that can be counted on to bring steady and frequent support to the best plays offered, provided the price of tickets is kept within the lowest possible limits?

A WINTER FANTASY.

When the wood is white with Winter
And the birds have flown away
And the squirrels hide to feast upon their store,
Then when ice has gemmed the branches
And in velvet avalanches
Snow has covered all the frozen forest floor,
Did you know that fairies revel as they do when trees are green
And Titania holds her court upon the hill
With a robe of ermine streaming and a sceptre white and gleaming
And a throne of drifted silver high and still?

The pixy folk who hid themselves beneath the Summer's bloom
Are dark against the day for all to see.
There are hooded elves aswinging where brown leaves of oak are clinging,
There are gnomes in twisted limbs of every tree.
Where shadows blue and violet most delicately lie
There is the sway of fragile fairy wings,
And deep within the hollows that the frozen brooklet follows
Are gathered many shy, mysterious things.

Oh, the Summer's soft with blooming, and the fairies frolic then
In a secret wonderland of dusky green.
Now, no sheltering leaves enfold them, eager mortals may behold them
When the sun has lit the wood with magic sheen.
If you doubt that there are fairies, go and seek a frosty hill
Where the branches gleam like gems against the blue.
There in shining guise you'll see them, but you cannot hope to flee them
Till they've cast the spell of Winter over you!

TAXI IS FAMOUS WAR RELIC.

Cab Which Carried Reinforcements at the Battle of the Marne.

Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 21.—Turkish 2362G-1 was sakered into France's Valhalla of war relics today, there to preserve the gunnery of the "taxis of the Marne," which bore reinforcements to the French Army in that battle.

The ceremony lasted but a few minutes, but preparations for it began at daybreak, when every Paris chauffeur who participated in the memorable drive began to clean his cab for the event. People who hailed these sputtering taxis were astonished to see them sped past without heeding calls. They converged on the Invalides, where they were drawn up in formation to await their honored comrade.

At 11 o'clock 2362G-1 was driven through the gates by Louis Renault, who on Sept. 7, 1914, took it filled with soldiers to the Marne. It was halted before General Mallet ave. The veteran officer, after receiving the salute from an official of its operating company and delivering a stirring address, called for Etienne Germain, a chauffeur.

"Why the devil haven't you preserved your taxi?" he demanded of the blushed driver, who bore the Croix de Guerre with two palms in recognition of having a convoy from a German patrol. "It was that one we should have here."

"It was wrecked by shells and has gone to pieces," the valiant driver replied.

Following the ceremony the relic was removed from the court to the head of the principal stairs, where it will remain permanently.

BRENT URGES CLEMENCY.

New York Bishop Asks Harding to Pardon Political Prisoners.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—According to a letter made public tonight by the committee which is urging the release of political prisoners from Federal prisons, Bishop Brent of the Diocese of Western New York, has asked President Harding to let sixty-two political prisoners out of confinement. The letter reads:

> Dear Mr. President—I write to solicit your executive clemency this Christmastide in favor of the remaining sixty-two wartime political prisoners. I base my request on the following considerations:
>
> 1. The nations with whom we were associated in the war all promptly granted an amnesty to their political prisoners.
>
> 2. I am assured by competent lawyers who have examined the evidence in the case that these men are in prison solely for expressions of opinion in writing or speech.
>
> 3. This is a fitting moment in which to grant them an unconditional amnesty as an act of belated justice.
>
> 4. My observation leads me to believe that such a course would meet with the unqualified support of the vast majority of our citizens.
>
> Yours very faithfully,
> C. H. BRENT,

PASSION PLAYERS IN NEED.

Oberammergau Got Only $5,000 Above Expenses This Year.

LONDON, Dec. 21.—Times are hard in Oberammergau as a consequence of the mark's depreciation, but the Passion Players are enduring poverty rather than sacrifice the traditions of so many years by accepting the offers of motion picture companies and theatrical managers to give their play abroad.

Burgomaster Wilhelm Rits, in appealing to English friends of the players to buy their wood carvings as a means of augmenting their income, says in a letter published here that the parish, after deducting expenses, has the equivalent of approximately only £1,000 as its net return for the Passion Play of 1922. The gross receipts were 21,000,000 marks, equal to £2,300. In 1910 the play netted 1,500,000 marks, or £71,800.

The players have refused American offers for the film rights of their play which would have put them in possession of more wealth than ever they dreamed of owning. Theatrical producers have offered them tours abroad and have approached several individual members of the cast with contracts for separate engagements, but all in vain. The latest American offer is for a tour of the actors in a Biblical play in which a few scenes from their own production would be introduced.

But the villagers are content to follow their only industry—woodcarving—and prefer their products to the public at ridiculously small prices.

GEDDES TO SEE IMMIGRANTS

Ambassador Accepts Davis's Invitation to Inspect Ellis Island.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—Sir Auckland Geddes, the British Ambassador, formally accepted today the invitation extended him by Secretary Davis to inspect the Ellis Island immigration station. Secretary Davis will go to New York on Dec. 27. He will meet Sir Auckland Geddes there on Dec. 28, and together they will investigate conditions at the station, with particular reference to the care and attention given to British subjects entering the United States.

Following criticism of Ellis Island several days ago in the House of Commons, Sir Auckland called on Secretary Davis and asked that alleged hardships imposed on British immigrants be remedied. So that the Ambassador might see for himself how immigrants are treated, Secretary Davis asked him to observe conditions.

BOOK PRINTERS' SCALE FIXED

Judge Talley, as Arbitrator, Continues Present Wages and Hours.

The present wage scale and 44-hour week of the 6,000 printers in the book and job printing industry, with a payroll of $28,000,000 a year, is continued until next October, under a decision handed down yesterday by Judge Alfred M. Talley, acting as arbitrator between the Printers' League, the New York Employing Printers' Association and Typographical Union 6.

The scale provides $30 a week for day workers, $33 for night workers and $36 for midnight workers. The union had originally demanded a $6 a week increase, while the employers insisted upon a $10 a week wage reduction. Under the award the day workers will work 44 hours a week, night workers five nights of 40 hours and midnight workers five nights or 35 hours.

In his decision Judge Talley said that changes in living conditions did not justify the contention of either side to the controversy.

8,000,000 RUSSIANS IN NEED.

Dr. Nansen Reports a Shortage of 1,000,000 Tons of Cereals.

GENEVA, Dec. 21.—Russia will have a shortage of at least 1,000,000 tons of cereals this Winter, according to the International Committee of Russian Relief, headed by Dr. Fridtjof Nansen. Reports to the committee from Russian sources declare that, as a result of this shortage, food relief will be required for 8,000,000 people, while the Soviets themselves cannot support more than 3,250,000.

The importation into Russia of at least a million head of live stock, especially horses, which have decreased 50 per cent., is considered necessary to reconstitute the economic situation of the country.

CLEMENCEAU GIVES $20,000 TO STUDENTS

IN MEMORY OF YEARS HERE

Hopes Each Country Will Benefit Through Exchange of Education—Enjoyed the Attacks on Him.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (Associated Press).—Former Premier Clemenceau's American visit added $20,000 to the American Field Service Fund Fellowships, Stephen Bonsal, who managed the tour, announced today. The amount is the surplus of money received from lectures and newspaper articles by "The Tiger" after defraying the expenses of his trip.

The wartime Premier, it was explained, was unwilling to accept financial assistance for his mission and his own means were inadequate, so he accepted lecture and writing contracts to pay his way. He expressed the desire that any surplus be devoted, in memory of his student years in the United States, to the Fellowships, which are intended, among other things, to stimulate friendship between France and America through the education in each country of young men from the other.

The American Field Service was organized and directed by Representative A. Piatt Andrew of Massachusetts to enable Americans to do ambulance work in France before the United States had entered the war. It was in recognition of this that M. Clemenceau selected as the beneficiary of his tour the American Field Service Fund Fellowships, organized after the American Field Service had been disbanded with the end of the war, to perpetuate the names of 127 members by creating a like number of scholarships to send young men of each country to universities in the other. Only thirty have been established, however, because the greater part of the fund's total, set at $3,500,000, remains to be raised through contributions. "The Tiger's" surplus, it was announced, would make "Clemenceau scholarships" available to deserving students.

In expressing his interest in the aims of the American Field Service Fund Fellowships, according to Mr. Bonsal, M. Clemenceau voiced a desire that the young men of France and of America "learn the lessons of life together." He was especially eager that French youths should "digest the precepts of democracy through playing football and other American games in American institutions" and become definitely a part of college life.

Various agencies whose offers of financial assistance for the American tour were refused because of the ample provisions of his contracts, "The Tiger" suggested, could help his aim by contributing the funds to the fellowships. The considerable sum remaining after the cost of the tour had been deducted was said by Mr. Bonsal to be due to the co-operation of M. Clemenceau's friends. Railroad rates were reduced, a private car was lent and other economies were effected.

"The Tiger's" arrival in France yesterday recalled a presentiment he had voiced that he would die in this country. Mr. Bonsal, observing his happiness upon the completion of his second address at Chicago, his last formal engagement before sailing for home, asked about his emotion, and M. Clemenceau, telling of his presentiment in France that death would overtake him in the United States, explained:

"I was afraid, if that were so, that I should not be able to finish my task here. But it is ended now, and I don't care two pins."

M. Clemenceau's tour was replete with incidents which touched his sense of humor. According to Mr. Bonsal he was not offended by Congressional political or newspaper attacks but enjoyed them and welcomed them as giving to him an opportunity to make replies. The only incident he regretted was when he characterized as the desecration of the tomb of Lincoln during his pilgrimage of reverence there when photographers created considerable disturbance with shouts and flashlight explosions. The fumes choked him and he was forced to hasten to the open air.

The former Premier's conclusion upon leaving the United States was said to be that Americans had not misjudged the French so much as they had misjudged the situation in Europe. Closer political contact between the citizens of the two countries in coming generations, he was said to feel, must be effected if America's sacrifices in the war were not to be in vain. The coming generations, in his opinion, must "face the consequences of "what we have done and what we may have left undone."

With reference to reports that "The Tiger" ate sparingly, Mr. Bonsal asserted he consumed as much as any hearty eater. He displayed his great partiality for Parisian dishes by ordering onion soup was submerged in his desire for American dishes which had been his favorites during his exile.

OLDEST LETTERS IN WORLD.

Treasures of Art Museum's Egyptian Expedition on View.

The Metropolitan Museum of Art has three exceptional exhibitions of the greatest interest going on at the same time. In the Egyptian Department are its latest treasures exhumed by the Museum's Egyptian Expedition, which is one of the most carefully equipped of the many now at work in that rich field. Among these exhibits are letters, see scrolls, which are shown in the Museum cases and which have been deciphered; family letters of an old farmer grieving over his son, talking about family relations, the crops, the "7,000 loaves" of three different kinds of bread which that family—which is large while the loaves are small—is to feed upon. It is a human document which might have been written today.

The Museum Bulletin for December has a second part devoted to the work of the expedition, with many illustrations and articles by members of the expedition, reproductions of the letters and the translations. They are probably the oldest letters in the world.

Over principal doors there is an exhibition of extraordinary and varied interest in the print exhibition room and including many and rare books. A features of the exhibition is a collection of prints of the old master known only by the initials of the French engraver who came upon the market but whose the Metropolitan Museum was fortunate enough to obtain through the Albertina Museum at Vienna disposing of its duplicates. These prints are of the greatest charm.

The third exhibition is of cashmere shawls, which is a small item for a not large but varied exhibition shown in the delightful little room built by the Museum for the Altamont paintings which were there for a period. Every one interested in the beautiful weaves of the East and some of their European followers will enjoy this unusual opportunity. Many of the shawls are shown to be seen now for the first and perhaps the only time.

BAR LEADERS HONOR JUSTICE GREENBAUM

Jurists, at Dinner for Appellate Court Member, Tell of Bench's Salary Needs.

PENSIONS ARE FAVORED

Compensation and Age-Limit Retirement Are Unjust, Jenks Declares —300 Eulogize Lawyer.

Allusions to the inadequate compensation of Judges, the injustice of an arbitrary age retirement limit of seventy years and the failure of the State to provide a pension for retired Judges, as things that might well be changed, were made last evening by Almet F. Jenks, former Presiding Justice of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, Second Department, in a speech at a dinner in honor of Supreme Court Justice Samuel Greenbaum at the Hotel Commodore last evening. Justice Greenbaum, now a Justice of the Appellate Division, First Department, will soon leave the bench by resignation. Mr. Jenks resigned from the bench to re-enter private practice.

John Proctor Clark, Presiding Justice of the Appellate Division, First Department, also referred to the inadequacy of the salaries of judges and recalled many that had left his department to make a better living in practice. Justice Clarke said he considered this condition bad for the community.

"It takes at least a year to educate a Judge," he said.

More than 300 persons, including many judges and prominent members of the bar joined in honoring Justice Greenbaum, who will have completed twenty-one years of service on the Supreme Court Bench on Jan. 1, in addition to Judge Jenks and Justice Clark, George W. Wickersham, toastmaster, and Louis Marshall eulogized Justice Greenbaum as a man, a lawyer and a judge.

Job E. Hedges recalled that he was the man who placed Justice Greenbaum in nomination for the Supreme Court nine years ago. "It was at a convention at a time when it was thought proper to meet in the open instead of conspiring in secret," Mr. Hedges said.

"He was selected after a careful consultation which preceded the public deliberations. We were told that we needed an independent Democrat—if there is such a thing—and Justice Greenbaum was selected. I rose in that convention and as if there were a contest, denominated Judge Greenbaum to be nominated. I forced him through. And what is most remarkable, having received the nomination, he wrote me a letter the next day and thanked me for it."

Mr. Hedges, referring to the fact that he is receiver for the New York Railways Company, said that he was endeavoring to obtain a judicial decision, so far without success, on how much a dollar, invested in a transit company, might earn. "I hear rumblings that some one is going to try to get rid of me as receiver," he said. "So far as I am concerned I would just as lief that the city would fight the traction trust all the rest of my life. The harder they fight the better for me."

Others at the speakers' table were Judge Alfred R. Page, Justice Victor J. Dowling, Justice Edward R. Finch and Justice Walter Lloyd Smith.

Others present included Justice Vernon M. Davis, George Gordon Battle, Paul D. Cravath, Joseph P. Day, Henry D. Gildersleeve, William D. Guthrie, Daniel P. Hays, Judge John C. Knox, Judge Morris Kridel, Judge Edward R. La Fetra, Justice Aaron J. Levy, former Judge Frank C. Laughlin, Judge Edward J. McGoldrick, Henry Morgenthau, Alton B. Parker, John P. O'Brien, Morgan J. O'Brien, Luke D. Stapleton and John W. Goff.

Also Justice John M. Tierney, Justice Philip J. McCook, Justice Irving Lehman, Felix M. Warburg, Justice John V. McAvoy, Justice William P. Burr, Thomas F. Conway, Municipal Court Justice M. Warley Platzek, David Leventritt, Justice Francis B. Delehanty, Clarence J. Shearn, Samuel Strassbourger, William Rand, Oliver C. Semple, Henry W. Taft, Samuel Seabury and De Lancey Nicoll.

LADY GRANARD GIVES DANCE IN MILLS HOME

Cotillion Led by L. F. Holbrook Betts—Guests Limited to About 100.

Lady Granard, who is sailing at the end of next week for England, gave a dinner and a small dance last evening at the residence of her father, Ogden Mills, 2 East Sixty-first Street. The Earl of Granard arrived here in time for the function. The guests were limited to about 100.

Nearly all of the guests were young unmarried people, with a few young married couples and a very few older ones. There was a cotillion, led by L. F. Holbrook Betts, a revival of the old-time german, as it was often called, and which is a genuine novelty in dancing at the present time.

Fifteen and twenty years ago a dance was not considered complete without a cotillion, and often there were two leaders, leading at opposite ends. Favors, too, ranged from the clusters of flowers and cigarettes to solid gold cigarette and lip-stick cases, enormous ostrich plumes mounted on long staves for the girls and handsomely framed engravings for the men.

The favors last evening were simple. Lady Granard's mother, the late Mrs. Mills, always gave simple favors.

Mrs. Mills also limited the number of her guests, and last night Lady Granard's dance guests were also limited.

JEWISH CHARITY DRIVE ENDS

Dinner Gathering Cheers News That $1,000,000 Is Oversubscribed.

The drive of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies came to a close last night with the announcement at the inventory dinner of the "round-up" rally, held in the Pennsylvania Hotel, that $1,021,000 had been subscribed since the drive began last October.

The gathering cheered the announcement that the many trades divisions in the drive had exceeded their quotas, making it possible for the committee in charge to exceed the $1,000,000 needed for Jewish philanthropies. Mrs. Herman W. Block was in charge of the entertainment furnished for the dinner.

PAYS TRIBUTE TO PASTEUR.

Alliance Francaise Celebrates Birth Centenary of Scientist.

The centenary of the birth of Louis Pasteur was celebrated last night at the Waldorf-Astoria by the Alliance Francaise of New York. M. Gaston Liebert, Consul General of France; Dr. Ernest Lapiace, Professor of Surgery at the University of Pennsylvania, and Professor André Morize of Harvard University were the speakers.

Dr. Lapiace, a pupil of Pasteur's, called his teacher "the Christopher Columbus of all modern medicine and surgery. Measured by the good he has done humanity he is immeasurably the greatest man that ever lived."

PRINCESS ANASTASIA GLAD TO BE HOME AGAIN

Takes a Drive With Prince Christopher, Who Marvels at Skyscrapers and Crowds.

Fatigued by the excitement attending their arrival in this country on Wednesday, Prince Christopher and Princess Anastasia of Greece spent a quiet day yesterday, passing most of their time in their suite at the Hotel Ambassador.

Princess Anastasia was so glad to be back in her native land that she ordered nothing but American dishes at her meals. At dinner last evening the menu included oysters, Maryland broiled chicken and corn fritters as well as other distinctively American food.

The royal couple took a short drive about the city in the early afternoon. Prince Christopher marveled at the tall buildings and the shopping crowds on Fifth Avenue. On their return to the hotel they had tea in company with some intimate friends. The Prince chatted gayly of his first impressions of New York and said that despite the unpleasant weather he felt at home and had greatly enjoyed his first leisurely outing on American soil.

Prince Christopher was congratulated by his friends on the satisfactory manner in which he passed through the inquisitorial ordeal of the newspaper reporters. He said he enjoyed the novel experience and expressed himself as looking forward with delight to seeing the United States.

To her friends the Princess spoke of her joy at being once more in her native land. It is hoped that her short stay here would benefit her so that she might return to Paris in a month or so in perfect health.

During their stay here the Prince and Princess will not spend much time in society, it was said. They will pay visits to some of Prince Anastasia's relatives and will pass Christmas Day with her sister, Mrs. Henderson Greene of Montclair. Through her secretary last night Princess Anastasia said that she did not feel strong enough to grant any further interviews at present.

Leonidas Matlis, Consul General of Greece, with offices at 11 St. Luke's Place, said yesterday that he wished to correct the erroneous report that he and his staff went to the pier to meet Prince Christopher and Princess Anastasia.

"I was not at the pier nor was any member of my staff there," he said.

Among the members present to assist in the distribution of presents were Mrs. Edward Lawrence Rossiter, Mrs. Henry A. Stoddard, Mrs. William P. Chapman Jr., Mrs. Alexander McKay, Mrs. Frederic Sterry, Mrs. Benjamin A. Williams, Mrs. Edwin M. Miller and Mrs. William H. Pearl.

HOLIDAY RUSH FAILS TO CLOG MAILS HERE

Manhattan, Brooklyn and Bronx Offices Report Conditions Normal.

DESPITE MARKED INCREASE

Credit Is Given to Early Mailing, Careful Wrapping and Good Weather.

"All channels clear—no congestion whatever," was the Christmas mails situation at the Central New York Post Office as reported there yesterday. Yet the parcels mailed in Manhattan and the Bronx the day before, it was said, totaled 1,061,933, or 35 per cent. more than the same date last year.

From Brooklyn also came optimistic reports, Postmaster Walter C. Burton saying that the main office was in normal condition, in spite of a 20 per cent. increase in outgoing mail over any previous Christmas season, and a 10 per cent. increase in incoming letters and parcels.

Letters received for delivery were estimated at 6,000,000 yesterday, and the same number was predicted for today in the Manhattan and Bronx Boroughs, the normal daily figure being 5,000,000. From Dec. 18 to Dec. 23 sacks of mail for foreign delivery numbered 22,496, against 19,842 in the same period last year, an increase of 12 per cent. Mail for delivery in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, day before yesterday, was reckoned at 200 per cent. over Dec. 20, two years ago. Approximately 84,000 packages left New York City yesterday in 120 storage railway mail cars and 3,500 sacks of mail were taken from the arrived steamships Bathonia and Bourdonnais.

The money receipts at Manhattan and Bronx Post Offices from Dec. 1 to Dec. 17 were reported as $298,000 above the figures for the same period in 1921.

Credit for keeping even with Santa Claus's mail business was given by postal officials to the public's response to "early mailing" and "careful wrapping" campaigns, to fortunate weather conditions and to the pneumatic mail tubes now serving sixteen west side Post Offices from the Custom House to 59th Street and Eighth Avenue. With continued public co-operation, the peak of the Christmas rush today would be passed without congestion, it was said.

Government-owned motor trucks numbering 240 cars being added to their Christmas task by seventy-seven horse-drawn trucks hired on contract and by a fleet of both motor and horse trucks for deliveries in the residence sections.

ENRIGHT TO ADVANCE 35 AT FIRST OF YEAR

Four Inspectors Are to Be Promoted to Deputy Chief Inspectors.

Police Commissioner Enright will make thirty-five appointments in the uniformed force on Jan. 1, which will include four deputy chief inspectors, fifteen inspectors, one captain, five lieutenants and ten sergeants. The four men who are to be promoted to the highest rank in the Police Department under that of the chief inspector are Inspectors Cornelius F. Cahalane, Dominick Henry, Samuel A. Bolton and John O'Brien. Their new posts will bring increases in salaries from $4,900 to $5,300 each a year.

Under a recent reorganization of the department these inspectors have been acting as assistants to the chief inspector and as commanders of the department in his absence. One or more of the deputy chief inspectors will be required to be on duty at Police Headquarters every night, on holidays and Sundays and at such other times as the chief inspector may be absent.

The fifteen acting inspectors, who are to be made permanent deputy inspectors, have been acting as assistants to the inspectors commanding the various inspection districts. The salary of each will be $4,500 a year.

"I am now enabled to make these deserved promotions because the Board of Estimate has provided funds for that purpose," said Commissioner Enright yesterday.

Lieutenant Rufus J. Deyo, who has been acting captain of the Harbor Division for three months, is to be advanced to captain on Jan. 1. He will succeed to the vacancy caused by the death of Captain Louis Kreuscher, now of the Bedford Avenue Station, Brooklyn. Deyo was appointed a patrolman on Jan. 28, 1897. He has been a lieutenant since 1911.

Five sergeants are to be made lieutenants and ten corporals will be promoted to the rank of lieutenant. All of them are said to head the civil service lists.

TURKEY PRICES PROP, BIRDS MORE PLENTIFUL

No. 1 Western Fell to 48 Cents, Texans to 41 Cents, Market Editor Reports.

Turkeys should be plentiful and reasonable in price, according to P. Q. Foy, editor of The New York Daily Market Report. Mr. Foy said yesterday the moderate weather of Wednesday had permitted the free arrival into the wholesale market of turkeys, thus cleaning up delayed stock that had been on the rails because of cold weather.

"A great many carloads of Texas stock arrived too late for Thanksgiving and have been held in coolers and sold recently at from 40 to 45 cents," said Mr. Foy. "Yesterday the wholesale houses on Washington Street and in West Washington Market districts, as well as in the Chelsea district were congested with turkeys and prices fell to 48 to 50 cents on No. 1 Western, while good Texas birds were sold at from 41 to 44 cents.

"Some dealers who purchased their stocks early at a cost of from 52 to 54 cents will be compelled to charge the consumers 58 to 60 cents. Two of the leading retail dealers in Washington Market were offering their fancy Western turkeys at 60 cents and the Texas birds at 55 cents late yesterday, lowered their prices, and one stated that another cut would be made today."

BACKS AMERICAN MARINES.

Chamorro Declares They Do Not Meddle in Nicaragua's Affairs.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Dec. 21.—President Chamorro, referring in his message to Congress to the American marine guard at the legation, said the troops had nothing to do with the civil or political life of the country.

"The presence of the detachment of marines as a guard of the American legation," the President said, "neither affects the autonomy nor wounds the sovereignty of the country. Since this guard remains with the consent of the Government of Nicaragua, it is not an army of occupation or of intervention. It has nothing to do with our civil life and politics.

"It is true that the Opposition Party, with an obstinacy close to political delirium, has persisted that this guard meddle in our internal affairs, asking repeatedly that the marines be charged with supervising the elections, but this demand has always been refused by the State Department and by Nicaragua."

BEVY OF DEBUTANTES GREETED AT PARTIES

Misses Brokaw, Roesler, McCall, Cawthra and Arents Among Buds Introduced.

Mrs. Howard Brokaw gave a reception yesterday afternoon at her residence, 834 Fifth Avenue, for her débutante daughter, Miss Julia Brokaw, the reception being followed by a dinner and a party to the play, and later the guests attended the dance for Miss Polly McCall.

Receiving with Miss Brokaw during the afternoon were the Misses Kate Billings, Margaret Stone, Adele Kelley, Barbara Kellogg and Cathleen Vanderbilt. The young men for the dinner and play were Minturn Le Roy, Russell Lowell, Hugh Richards, Leo Jiranek, Alan Harriman and John Hagemeyer.

Mrs. Edward Roesler introduced her daughter, Miss Jessie Laidlaw Roesler, yesterday afternoon at her residence, 45 East Eighty-second Street, and after it Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, her aunt by marriage, gave a dinner and theatre party for the débutante. The young girls who received with Miss Roesler were the Misses May Hall Parsons, Nina Hudson, Ellen Douglas Whitehead, Christine Sloane, Mabel Cenover, Janet Hager and Marion Corneshall. These were all guests of Mrs. Laidlaw at dinner, and the young men asked in for the dinner and play included Lorraine Pitney, Cyril and Byron Sloane, Edward Roesler Jr. and the Messrs. Conover, Hammill and Bell.

Mrs. William Robinson Simonds of 350 Park Avenue entertained last evening for Miss Polly McCall, the débutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. McCall, with a dinner and small informal dance at the Club Royale, the latter being attended also by the members of Mrs. Howard Brokaw's dinner and theatre party. Mrs. Simonds's dinner guests included the Misses Betty Gilbert, Maude Smith, Kathryn Knight, Betty Hammill, Betty Condon, Hariot Reynolds, Helen Rice, also Walter Stokes, John Ficke, Lucien Williams, Richard Hall, John Wilson, John Kingsley, Clifford Brokaw, Gilman Hadra, John McGuire and Henry Guthrie.

Miss Elizabeth R. Cawthra made her début this afternoon at a reception that her mother, Mrs. Thomas A. Cawthra gave for her at Sherry's. WONDERS OF RADIO SEEN AT EXPOSITION

BOYS COMPETE FOR PRIZES

Two Couples Consent to Be Married by Radio and Will Be United Tonight.

A radio home de luxe suggesting to the enthusiast the possibilities of bringing the world to him and amateur receiving sets made by young America and a receiving set so large that a man may easily walk about the huge cabinet are among the many features of the American Radio Exposition which opened last night in the Grand Central Palace. The exposition, of which former Postmaster General Frank H. Hitchcock is President, will continue afternoons and evenings, Sunday excepted, until Dec. 30.

The ingenuity of amateur radio enthusiasts was never more demonstrated than in the exhibit of home-made receiving sets. A receiving set contained in an ordinary bill folder which has a receiving radius of thirty miles is being shown by Irving Weiss, a fifteen-year-old boy, of 867 Hunts Point Road, the Bronx. Other sets which are entered in the competition for prizes are contained in cigar boxes, reading lamps, suit cases and dinner pails. Many of the amateur sets display an excellence of workmanship, especially a set made by Antonio Petruccelli, 14, of 16 King Street.

A wide range of radio sets is exhibited by manufacturers. From a tiny receiving set which fits in the pocketbook and is operated by flapping open one of the wings to powerful receiving sets costing thousands of dollars, the exposition offers a variety of radio apparatus fitting the financial status of the purchaser. One set which attracted interest at the opening was constructed of gold and ivory.

A model of the radio station at Rocky Point, L. I., the most powerful in the world, has been installed, occupying several hundred feet of floor space.

The exposition is featuring the programs of the several broadcasting stations in the East. Those who prefer the program of WEAF to that of KDKA or WJZ may have their desire fulfilled by going to the appropriate section.

Prior to the opening of the exposition the backers advertised that they would give $100 in gold to the couple who would be married by radio in the presence of the spectators. More than fifty offers were received, it was said, one father offering to guarantee that his son would marry any girl the officials of the exposition picked out for the young man. Two couples were selected, instead of a single couple, and tonight at 8 o'clock they will exchange mutual promises on the same wave length. They are Miss Helen Keller, 21, of 20 West Eighty-fourth Street, and John Brunschweyler, 25, of the same address, and Miss Margaret Girstner, 778 Union Street, Brooklyn, and Joseph Woorm, 214 Sixth Avenue, in the same borough.

Another broadcasting feature for tonight will be an address by Rodolph Valentino, screen star, who will talk on "The Truth About Myself."

ALEXANDER DOLE DIES, AMERICAN SCULPTOR

Statue of Lincoln the Last Work of Author of Many Public Monuments.

BOSTON, Dec. 21.—Alexander Dole, sculptor, died here today at the age of 65. Since his retirement in 1911 he had made his home at Dedham, where he completed a statue of President Lincoln, his last work.

He was 65 years old. He was taken to Italy by his parents at an early age and there studied sculpture, music and painting. He acted as organist in Italian cathedrals and was made an honorary member of the Royal Raphael Academy of Urbino.

Returning to the United States in 1878 he settled in New York and rapidly became famous as one of the leading sculptors of his day in America. At the age of 25 it was said that he had executed more public monuments and statues than any other sculptor.

WILLIAM R. WALKER DEAD.

United States Steel Corporation Official Dies After an Operation.

William R. Walker, of 993 Park Avenue, who died yesterday morning in St. Luke's Hospital after an operation, had been assistant to the President of the United States Steel Corporation since its formation in 1901. He was born in 1857 at La Porte, Ind., and throughout his professional career had been closely identified with the iron and steel industry. His early associations were as chemist for the Crown Point Iron Company, Works Superintendent with Spang, Chalfant & Co., Works Manager of the Union Works of the Illinois Steel Company and later as General Manager of the South Chicago plant of the same company.

Possessing an exceptional knowledge of both scientific and practical aspects of the iron and steel business, Mr. Walker was noted for his achievements in metallurgical research and improvements he had brought about in operation and production. He was a member of the principal technical societies. Services will be held at two o'clock tomorrow afternoon in St. Thomas's Church, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-third Street.

Sir Edmund Robbins.

LONDON, Dec. 21.—Sir Edmund Robbins, manager of the Press Association from 1890 to 1917, died today at Bognor, Sussex. He was born in April, 1847, and after some years of newspaper work became identified with the Press Association upon its formation in 1870, simultaneous with the taking over of the telegraph system by the Government. He was made a Knight Commander of the Order of the British Empire in 1917.

CALDER MAKES PLEA FOR SHIP SUBSIDY

New York Senator Declares the Government is Unfair to International Mercantile Marine.

DIAL ATTACKS THE BILL

Motion to Displace the Subsidy Measure May Not Reach Vote for Another Week.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—The Ship Subsidy bill was discussed in the Senate for less than two hours today. Most of that time was used by Senator Calder of New York, who spoke in support of the measure. Mr. Calder also defended the International Mercantile Marine, and declared that, but for Governmental opposition, that company now would be operating a great fleet of passenger and freight carriers under the American flag.

"Instead of being criticised for the ownership of this tonnage," added Senator Calder, "it seems to me that they have been dealt with very unfairly by the Government and should be the subject of sympathy rather than of harsh criticism."

This was said in answer to Senator La Follette, who called attention to the fact that the International Mercantile Marine operates a large number of vessels under foreign flags. The company, he said, had offered to sell these vessels to the United States Government in 1918, but the deal was not consummated.

"From every point of view," said Mr. Calder, "I am convinced that there is no possibility of our maintaining an ocean-going fleet to carry American products overseas without the assistance of the Government.

"I cannot understand how Senators bring themselves to believe that the subsidy is a raid upon the Treasury. I am not speaking today as a Senator from New York. I am trying to look at the subject with the viewpoint of the entire country.

"New York City is the centre of activity of the civilized world, and we are the great market place of America. New York belongs to the nation. There is no city in all the world which belongs so completely to the entire country as does New York, with its Wall Street, its Fifth Avenue, its tremendous industries, its great shipping interests, its imports and exports. These are all yours. Through our gates pass the trade of the world.

"Government aid would help shipbuilding and all its allied industries; would give employment to tens of thousands of men. The extension of a ship calls upon every State in the country. We must have steel from Minnesota, copper from the Rocky Mountain States, lumber from the South and the Great Northwest, coal with which to operate the vessel, if she is a coal burner, from Pennsylvania or West Virginia, and oil from Oklahoma or Texas. The men who build the ships must be clothed; they must be fed; they must be housed, and the food, housing material and clothing come from every little hamlet and farm in this broad land.

"Of what interest is it to the American farmer or worker or miner if these ships are built in England or Germany if they are operated by English, German, Scandinavian or Japanese crews? There are so many elements from every standpoint that enter into this whole subject that the small amount of Government aid contributed to build and operate these vessels is insignificant when one comes to consider the great advantages that will flow to all of our people when built and operated by Americans."

When Senator Calder concluded Senator Dial of South Carolina made a short speech, in which he assailed the proposed legislation as unwise and contrary to American policy.

"We have granted special favors too recklessly through the Republican tariffs," Senator Dial declared. "The result is that almost everybody wants some sort of favor, and there are not enough favors to go around."

No effort was made today to get unanimous agreement to vote on the Norris motion to displace the Subsidy and take up the Rural Credits bill, reported last week from the Committee on Agriculture. It begins to look now as if that motion will remain before the Senate until the end of next week.

HELD FOR FORGING LABELS.

Syracuse Printers and an Engraver Arrested by Dry Agents.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Dec. 21.—Proprietors of two large printing plants, two printers and an engraver were arrested by Federal prohibition agents and local police today, charged with conspiracy, following the seizure of thousands of labels and seals similar to those placed on whisky and gin bottles by distillers and the Canadian Government.

Edward J. Tholens of the Tholens Press and Harry S. Kenyon of the Kenyon Press, are the jobbers under arrest. Arthur Tallifer and Leroy Hueber, newspaper employes who, according to the police admit they worked nights in a printing shop printing labels similar to those seized, are in custody with John Harwood, an engraver, who is accused of making the woodcuts from which certain of the labels were printed.

Meanwhile, prohibition agents and the police of Central New York are searching for four or five more men who they believe are implicated.

William Brennan, directing the prohibition agents of Central New York, said the arrests were about the most important made in Central New York since prohibition went into effect.

INDIVIDUAL SHOPS FOR MEN

A Christmas Special for Men!

150 of Our Fine $65 & $70 Ulsters Lowered to $48

Christmas will indeed be merry for the man who is fortunate enough to find one of these splendid coats as a gift on Christmas morning—even if he has to make the gift to himself!

They are warm, rugged storm ulsters and heavy town ulsters. All are double-breasted. They are made of soft fleeces, sturdy cheviots, colorful tweeds in rich browns and grays, soft tans and warm heathers. Many have finely blended plaid backs.

The sizes range from 34 to 46, but there are only 150 ulsters in the group, so early choosing is advisable.

Every garment is tailored to the rigidly enforced WANAMAKER standard.

$17,748 FOR NEEDY SETS NEW RECORD

ANONYMOUS GIFT OF $2,208

John D. Rockefeller Jr. Sends Annual Family Check — Two $1,000 Contributions Made.

LEHMAN ANNUITY RECEIVED

Rumsey Hall School Boys Raise $137.30 at Enthusiastic Meeting—Appeal Is Answered From Cuba.

The sum of $17,748.26, far exceeding that contributed on any one day during the present or any past campaign, was received yesterday for the neediest cases.

This makes a total of $112,303.27, which is less than $13,000 behind the complete response of a year ago. This indicates full provision for a year for a second hundred of New York's neediest cases and possibly for a third hundred. The hundred cases are typical of other thousands. As far as contributions go the additional cases in their turn will be helped, as the first hundred are.

Contributions for the neediest came yesterday from some of the wealthiest people in the country and from some who today are feeling sharply the pinch of poverty themselves. Gifts ranged from $1 to $2,208. The varied list included the annual check of the family of John D. Rockefeller Jr., the annual check from the estate of Charles Lehman, who put the neediest cases down in his will; $15 from the officers and crew of the steamer Polarine; $137.30 collected at a wildly enthusiastic meeting of schoolboys at Rumsey Hall, Cornwall, Conn.; the anonymous check of $2,208 from a leading figure in Wall Street, dollars from widows and small checks representing the hoarded pennies of children. From Havana, Cuba, came a gift of $25 each from Robert E. Pollock and Elenita Pollock.

There were sixty-eight contributions in memory of dear ones, including many large sums, one being a check for $1,000 in memory of Marian Barber Gutterson. A contribution of $1,000 for Case 24 and others came from G. T. Woodward, Hotel Lafayette, Washington, D. C.

The letter from the well-known financier including the big contribution said:

"Enclosed please find my check for $2,208 payable to the order of the Hundred Neediest Cases fund, $480 is to go to Case 98. The contribution is from my mother, $400 is for Case 111; this contribution is from my son. $800 is for Case 22; this contribution is from my wife. $728 is for Case No. 44, which is from myself."

Annual Rockefeller Check.

The check for $900 came from six members of the John D. Rockefeller Jr. family. A check for $50 already had been received from John D. Rockefeller 3d. John D. Rockefeller Sr. began by setting aside part of his first earnings and giving it to charity, increasing the amount and proportion steadily, until he now is understood to have given away far more than he has retained. This method of giving had become a family tradition. For years the neediest case has been on the list of the second and third generation. The contribution yesterday was accompanied by the following letter:

26 Broadway, New York,
Dec. 19, 1922.

Gentlemen:—I am directed by John D. Rockefeller Jr. to send you the enclosed check to the order of THE NEW YORK TIMES for $900 to cover the following subscriptions to the One Hundred Neediest Cases Fund:

Master Nelson A. Rockefeller	$40
Master Laurance S. Rockefeller	30
Master Winthrop Rockefeller	20
Master David Rockefeller	10
Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller Jr.	800
	$900

Kindly acknowledge receipt and oblige.

Very truly,
ROBERT W. GUMBEL.

The annuity of $25 bequeathed to the neediest cases by the late Charles Lehman came with a letter from Baldwin Schlesinger, executor of the estate, who said:

"Enclosed please find check of $25 for Cases 1 and 2. This is the amount bequeathed by Mr. Charles Lehman, deceased, to your annual fund. I am executor of his estate, according to which I select two of the worthy cases as published by your paper every year. I am also enclosing a check for $5, which can place in the general fund, from

"Yours truly,
"BALDWIN SCHLESINGER."

More Group Contributions.

Group contributions yesterday included the following: Seventh class of the Berkley Institute, $24; Eighty-sixth Street Bridge Club, $1.25; employes of a big store, $12.50; grocery order division of the Corn Products Refining Company; Mother's Club of Public School 56 of Queens, $10; Mount Neboh Lodge, F. & A. M.; officers and crew of the steamer Polarine, $15; second grade of the Social Motive School, $7; the boys of Rumsey Hall, $137.30; young women of the Legal department of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, $25, and the Alumni Association of the School of Mines and Chemistry, $5.

The gift from the Rumsey Hall boys was received with the following letter:

Rumsey Hall, Cornwall, Conn.,
Dec. 20, 1922.

Gentlemen—I am glad to enclose a check for $137.30 to be given to one of the neediest families or distributed.

The money was collected last night from enthusiastic Rumsey Hall boys who emptied pockets and allowed no one to escape their pleading.

One boy said it was the happiest evening he ever spent and they all feel their Christmas will be a happier one than usual because they know they have helped some one less fortunate than themselves.

Sincerely yours,
LILLIAS R. SANFORD.

Little Girl Scouts Help.

The following are from other letters from contributors:

Sallie Anne Edith Kline, 315 West Ninety-eighth Street.—I enclose $2. My Girl Scouts, in order to pass their tenderfoot tests, had to earn some money by their own efforts, doing something not in the daily chores. They decided after they had turned the money in that instead of using it for the movies or soda uniforms they would send it to Case 32 which seemed so pitiful to them. They are all little east side, First Avenue kiddies. Please list it coming from Hannah, Rosaline, Tillie, Dinah, Eva and Fannie, each of whom earned 50 cents.

A Faithful Reader—My Christmas would be poor indeed if I could not answer your earnest appeal to help the unfortunate poor. If I cannot give in large measure I can give cheerfully a little bit.

Mrs. George B. Ford, 124 East Thirty-ninth Street—Enclosed please find small annual contribution—a little less small this year—to the Hundred Neediest Cases. Please apply it to any case that has not been designated by a giver. The check represents the amount which I have refrained from spending this Christmas on useless gifts. Let us hope that THE TIMES will never fail to remind us how to be better neighbors at least once a year.

Mrs. Knight, Bethany, Conn.—I am sending $1.50 from myself and three children hoping it will help a little. I am sorry I could not send more. I read the different cases to my little children and they begged of me to take the money out of their little savings bank so they could help just a little. I did not like at first to send so small an amount but when I read others were doing so I felt I could do the same. Of a little help is worth a great deal of pity.

Josephine M. Graham, Stamford, Conn.—I am enclosing my check for $2. I should like it used for Case 3 in memory of my dear mother who was blind for two years before her death and whose name was Mary, the same as the dear old lady in Case 3. After reading the article, A Study in Charity, I do not see how one could refrain from sending something, however small, to the neediest cases.

Other Messages.

Duncan MacInnes, Chief Accountant, Department of Finance—Will you kindly place my check herewith enclosed in your Hundred Neediest Cases Fund?

Henry Wade Rogers, United States Circuit Judge—I am enclosing my check as a contribution to the fund you are raising to relieve the Hundred Neediest Cases in New York.

Mrs. Stella B. Hamblin, Oriskany Falls—I live in a small up-State village where there are no needy—every family has enough to eat, wear and is comfortably warm, not according to New York City standards, perhaps, but sufficient for comfort. I am enclosing check for $10 to be used for two cases, No. 1, 2, 3 and Case No. 88. If either is already provided for, apply on 30, or any other, especially where there are old people. Sympathy is always aroused for children, but we often neglect the aged.

Kenneth and Thomas A. Wright Jr.—I would like this money to go to the one which has the least money of the neediest cases. My brother Kenneth and I earned this money selling Xmas cards. We are only 6½ and 9½, so we're not very good salesmen.

Mary D. Brannock—When we read about all the suffering around us we cannot help but feel how well off most of us are, although this fact is not appreciated by many people. The help your fund is giving these unfortunate children will certainly make better Americans of them when they grow up and this fact alone makes the investment worth while.

Contributions received already in behalf of the Stedmans have greatly cheered that old couple, whose story is as follows:

CASE 15.

Outlived Their Savings.

Mr. and Mrs. Stedman are almost 75 years old. Their golden wedding anniversary is approaching. Both have been hard-working and frugal during their half-century of married life. They had laid up a few thousand dollars, and believed that they were provided for to the end of their lives. Six years ago age and ill-health made it impossible for Stedman to work any more. The few thousand dollars might have seen them through, but the cost of living went up so high that their money melted away until they are penniless. There is a small insurance policy for their burial, but nothing more. They have no children or near relatives.

Amount needed, $572

Case reported by the Catholic Charities, 114 East Forty-seventh Street. (Telephone Vanderbilt 3420.)

After receiving their Winter coal and other help, Mr. Stedman wrote as follows to the visitor from the society:

"My very kind young lady, I wish you a merry Christmas and a great many of them for your charity to us in our sickness and distress. I am confined to bed most of the time. Father M. visits me frequently and heard my confession and gave me communion in bed last week. I can't find words to express my thanks for your fine donations.

"May Jesus, Mary and Joseph watch over you and bless all your undertakings for the alleviation of the sick and distressed.

"A Sister from the Visitation nuns comes regular every day and stays some time to cheer me up. God bless the holy nun."

Appeal for Case 8 Answered.

Case 8 was that of Mrs. Young, an American woman with little girls 4 and 6 years old, who have been living in destitution in the Flatbush section of Brooklyn. She had been the wife of an American missionary. On leaving Persia her husband, father, mother and baby daughter were murdered before her eyes by Turkish bandits. The publication of Case 8 brought many inquiries and much help for the woman, and further developments have made the appeal for the family unnecessary. This is explained as follows by Theodore W. Hanigan, Financial Secretary of the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities:

"When the Youngs fell into the hands of the Turks all their possessions were lost. Most important of these proved to be the citizenship papers which Mr. Young had taken out while he was studying to be a missionary in America. There seemed to be very little hope of tracing through the facts in the case for many months, but a happy solution of part of Mrs. Young's difficulties came to her the other day in the form of a notice that a widow's pension for her two children would be granted this month. The State Department has acted quickly and effectively.

"In the meantime the Bureau has enabled Mrs. Young to start a course in training which will make her self-supporting or at least able to supplement the pension, so that she can bring up her children according to the standard that the family was used to before they went to Persia to do missionary work. The Bureau will continue to render advice and assistance to the family for some time to come, but feels that money enough already has been provided to cover actual needs."

A Willing Sacrifice.

Contributions and offers for help came in numbers yesterday for Julia, the 17-year-old mother, whose child was born yesterday. One young girl who had been betrayed in similar fashion and who has herself a child 16 months old, called with $6 at the offices of the State Charities Aid Association. The girl keeps her own child and earns $30 a month doing housework, but she insisted that she could spare $6 from her savings for another poor girl worse off than herself.

When she found that the mother and her baby were being well cared for she asked about others and was struck with the plight of Judith, a deserted young mother, who had twins. She gave the $6 to be used for Judith, whose story is as follows:

CASE 67.

Needs Help for a New Start.

Judith, 20 years old, had no relatives and supported herself by clerical work in a large office. Several men were attentive and she chose the wrong one. Soon after their marriage he deserted her. She is now trying to make a living for herself and twins, six months old. The twins have spent most of their lives so far in hospitals and convalescent homes. First the girl was at death's door, then the boy. They are attractive babies and have been almost spoiled by the attention lavished on them in hospitals. The mother needs help until she can get a new start.

Amount needed, $300.

Case reported by the State Charities Aid Association, 105 East Twenty-second Street. (Telephone Gramercy 1454.)

Letters from Contributors.

B. H.—I am enclosing a $5 bill to be used on any case you think fit. I was going downtown to put the $5 in the bank, but I read the paper and saw there were others that needed it more than I. I will let the bank account go for some other time and give this money as a Christmas present to the needy.

Joanna B. Haines—I am a little girl who will be 7 years old the day after Christmas. I overheard my mama and daddy talking about this wonderful charity and I want to do my little bit in helping some poor unfortunate little girl to have a pleasant Christmas.

M. R. G.—I am enclosing a small check to help out the neediest cases in memory of a friend who had passed away this Autumn for some old person who is ill.

Low Rock Jr., 232 West 110th Street—Enclosed please find a $2 bill for the neediest poor which my brother Toby, 10 years old, and myself, Low, 12 years old, have saved.

Anonymous—This is preferable to be given to any poor foreigners alone in a strange land.

Anonymous—I have been in bed for six months and obliged to have help to take care of me, so that we find ourselves poor indeed at this time. I had thought the little I could do was not worth while but in response to your appeal for even the smallest donations to help swell the total, I am enclosing my check for $2 as an earnest of what I should like to do and hope to do another year.

Mrs. S. R. Bradley, Nyack—Enclosed please find check for $15 for Case 86. It includes a contribution earned by my little girls of 10 and 8.

Weston T. King, 14 Fern Street, New Rochelle—I am enclosing check for $2 from a little boy who talks a great deal to be applied to Case 38, the little boy who hardly talks at all.

Selects Neediest Cases Fund.

Lupton A. Wilkinson, Inc.—This office, I feel sure, is more than normally qualified to exercise discrimination in the matter of charitable giving. Its directors handled publicity for several of the most successful fund-raising campaigns just after the war and as a result were consulted on numerous others. Our investigation during the consideration of a long sequence of opportunities to close contracts for such work led us to two conclusions; first, that the primary test which should be applied to any appeal is the proportion of the gift to which may be absorbed in collection expenses or other overhead, and second, that the prevalence of too great overhead is widespread.

We ourselves decided, with a few notably well-managed organizations as natural exceptions, not to lend ourselves in the future to financial campaigns publicity. I do not mean to hint that there is not an adequate range of places to which a giver can allocate his contributions with utmost confidence. We so feel, however, that because of the long-established integrity of your fund and its absolute donation of collection expenses, it should stand first among home charities in the consideration of New Yorkers.

We are therefore dividing our contributions this year between the Neediest Cases and the Clothing Remittance of the American Relief Administration, the latter for optional application among the appallingly needy of Russia. Enclosed you will find check for $100.

Appeal Is Unlimited.

The Rev. Philip W. Fauntleroy, Lake Mahopac—Referring to the statement made in your columns that the benefit of the help given to any one of the neediest cases extends beyond the confines of your great city, I wish to supplement that statement with the amazing fact that such benefit extends even unto the very throne of Jehovah himself, since One who sits thereon has declared to us that every one who helps any of the least of these His brethren who is sick or hungry or naked or in need, will in the great day of final reckoning be regarded and rewarded by Him just as though he had given that help to Himself. And in my judgment it is inconceivable that any one who believes this can fail to avail himself of the opportunity now afforded of thus many times helping our Saviour Himself in the persons of the many hundred of His brethren whose cases you present. Certain it is that this consideration alone suffices to move me to send you herewith the following sums: One-tenth of the Holy Communion, Lake Mahopac, $10; Church of St. John the Baptist, Carmel, $10; the Rev. Philip W. Fauntleroy, $5.

J. R. J.—In memory of my father, who would have been quick to help such a man, Luigi Tedesco, the recently blinded father of three small children reported among the first lot of cases in the neediest cases.

J. P.—You ask for the support of small contributors, so are enclosing my check for $3 to go toward the relief of the stenographer, ill with tuberculosis, who was the main support of her mother, who, in turn, is now caring for the daughter.

F. P. F., Richmond, Va.—For the struggling grandmother and her brood of four. May she be as dear to them as mine was to me.

Robert M. Nugent—Will you please be good enough to pass on the enclosed check for the benefit of one of your 100 needies cases. I hope that your wonderful success of last year may be small in comparison with the fund you will undoubtedly secure this year.

Thousands in Need.

The hundred printed cases are typical of many thousands to which the six charitable organizations are now giving emergency help. Two hundred such cases were helped last year. More than ever before, in all probability, will be relieved through the year ahead by contributions for the neediest.

The cases below are therefore printed by way of an appeal for hundreds of other cases like them. These cases have not been closed by specific contributions. Money intended specifically for them will be used for them. All of the 100 cases will be provided for by the general fund and a hundred or two hundred others. The following are typical stories:

CASE 90.

Four Babies Keep Her Busy.

When the husband died the mother tried to find work which would enable her to support her four children, but the care of the little ones and the housekeeping was a day's work in itself. She became sick and discouraged from attempting to do too much. The oldest of her four is 7 and the youngest 2. She needs help so that she can spend more time in attending to them.

Amount needed, $672.

Case reported by the Charity Organization Society, 105 East Twenty-second Street. (Telephone Gramercy 4066.)

CASE 42.

Fell on the Street.

The husband deserted, leaving Mrs. G. penniless with three children—Andrew, 15 years; Henry, 7, and Edward, 13 months. Andrew then quit school and earns $10 a week in an office. His mother took in washing. She also obtained a warrant for the arrest of her husband to compel him to support the family. Each night, after finishing her work, she took the baby in her arms and visited the former haunts of her husband with the warrant. One night she fell in the street, instinctively saving the baby from being hurt. She lay there in a faint and was taken away in an ambulance. Overwork had caused a heart attack. When help was provided for the family Andrew was found to be very weak and pale. He had heart trouble, too, and required rest and treatment.

Amount needed, $600.

Case reported by the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities, 69 Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn. (Telephone Main 8200.)

CASE 58.

Too Old and Too Young.

The husband, 72 years old, cannot work because of his age, and the wife, 55 years old, cannot go to an institution for the aged because of her "youth." If she were 60 years old, the arbitrary minimum for admission, she and her husband would be placed together in a home for aged couples. The old man is very feeble. Though much younger, the wife is in poor health and cannot go out to work. The savings of many years of industry and thrift have been eaten up. They have no children or near relatives to help them.

Amount needed, $720.

Case reported by the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies, 114 Fifth Avenue. (Telephone Gramercy 7170.)

CASE 39.

Father in Jail.

Mrs. B. is struggling to take care of her six children—twins of four months, boys of 11 and 9 and girls of 8 and 3. The family has been hit very hard. They had a respectable name for many years. They lived economically, saved money and thought they saw prosperity ahead. Then father invested everything he had in a printing plant. He was on the verge of losing all when temptation came in his way. He accepted an order for illegal work, was caught at it, convicted and imprisoned. His wife and the children who have reached the age of understanding are crushed, but they love him as much as ever. They need help till he can come back and make a new start.

Amount needed, $500.

Case reported by the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities, 69 Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn. (Telephone Main 8200.)

CASE 29.

Father Died Suddenly.

Mabel was surprised to find that her new home was motionless when she moved into the top floor of a tenement house. She never had lived in a permanently anchored place before, and complained that the new home didn't go. All her seven years she had lived on a boat. She and her sister Hilda, 12 years old, and their mother and father, had been the inhabitants of a canal boat. They were always in one another's company and had no friends on the quitside. They were bereaved in a terrible manner, for one day, while they were near their father as he worked on the boat, he dropped dead of heart disease. The widow almost died from shock. She is now working hard and hopes to take care of them eventually, but help is required for some time.

Amount needed, $540.

Grandmother Back at Work.

Pneumonia has killed off the family of Mrs. A. one at a time until only she and four grandchildren are left. Her husband was the first victim. Her son supported her until he died of the same disease. Then, to avoid being a burden, she went to work in a factory. Next her daughter and son-in-law died of the disease, leaving four children ranging from 4 years to 10. During the three years since then the grandmother, now almost 60, has worked for them. She puts in a long day in the factory, in addition she cooks, does the housework and looks after her family of four. Her working hours often have been from 5 in the morning until 12 at night. The children are well trained and reflect the fine character of their grandmother. Ralph, who is now 12, earns $2 a week running errands after school. The older ones look after the younger ones down to the baby, who is 4. After the case of the grandmother managed to get along, but recently neighbors saw that she was rapidly killing herself by overwork and reported this to the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities. She was found to be in a serious condition. The doctor forbade her to work another day. Her heart is worn out and she is barely able to do light housework. She cannot bear the thought of having the children institutionalized.

Amount needed, $500.

Case reported by the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities, 69 Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn. (Telephone Main 8200.)

No agents or solicitors are authorized to seek contributions for the neediest cases.

Checks should be made payable to the "Hundred Neediest Cases Fund." Contributions may be sent to THE NEW YORK TIMES, Times Square, New York City, or to any of the following organizations which present the cases:

THE NEW YORK ASSOCIATION FOR IMPROVING THE CONDITION OF THE POOR, 105 East Twenty-second Street.

THE STATE CHARITIES AID ASSOCIATION, 105 East Twenty-second Street.

THE CHARITY ORGANIZATION SOCIETY, 105 East Twenty-second Street.

THE BROOKLYN BUREAU OF CHARITIES, 69 Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn.

THE CATHOLIC CHARITIES, 114 East Forty-seventh Street.

THE FEDERATION FOR SUPPORT OF JEWISH PHILANTHROPIES, 114 Fifth Avenue.

Every cent of the contributions, all of which are tax-exempt under the Income Tax law, is used wholly for the benefit of the family or individual for whom it is sent. No deduction is made for incidental expenses, the cost of administration being borne by the six organizations.

SARAZEN WILL BE PRO AT BRIARCLIFF

National Open Champion Signs Two-Year Contract to Serve at New Course.

GOES WEST NEXT WEEK

Youthful Golf Star to Make Exhibition Tour With Jock Hutchison—His Big Earnings.

Gene Sarazen, the former Westchester County caddie boy, who now holds the national open and the P. G. A. golf championships, will defend his titles next year as a representative of the metropolitan district.

This became known yesterday when Chauncey De Forw Steele, manager of the new Briarcliff Lodge, located at Briarcliff Manor on the Hudson, stated that the youthful champion had signed a contract as club professional at the new golf lay-out. The negotiations were completed in Mr. Steele's office yesterday afternoon and call for Sarazen's services over the next two years.

Under the terms of the contract, Sarazen will be allowed to compete in the various tournaments as well as exhibition matches, conditions over which the champion and the Board of Governors of the Highland Country Club, near Pittsburgh, split a short time ago. While nothing was given out as to the amount of money Sarazen will receive in his new berth, it is expected that the sum will approximate $10,000 a year.

The new course, consisting of twenty-seven holes, has been designed by Devereaux Emmett, the well-known architect who is responsible for many of the leading courses in the country, and will be ready for its official opening on March 1. The championship course of eighteen holes will have a total yardage of 6,500 yards. The nine-hole course will serve as a practice course and will be less arduous than the other, which has been designed chiefly as a championship test.

Opening Attraction Planned.

It is planned to arrange a four-ball competition between pros and amateurs as the opening attraction. In this the present plans call for Sarazen, the new club professional, and Jim Barnes, Pelham pro and former national open champion, to play Jess W. Sweetser, national and metropolitan amateur champion, and his predecessor, Jesse Guilford of Boston.

Sarazen will leave New York in a few days now to begin his tour, which will keep him engaged in golf from the first of the year until the Winter season closes. He has teamed up with Jock Hutchison, winner of the British open championship in 1921, and they will tour the Pacific Coast and the South, probably winding up in the North and South at Pinehurst. Hutchison was here from Chicago yesterday for a brief sojourn. He and Gene will leave here on Christmas Day.

It is their plan to make a bid for the British open title in the Spring. In addition to winning the event two years ago Hutchison last year finished in third place, a stroke behind Barnes and Duncan, who were tied for second, the only two strokes back of the winner, Walter Hagen. For Sarazen it will be his first attempt in the British championship, and already the British golf critics, realising the youngster's ability to negotiate the links over there, have taken tales carried back to the other side by the British stars who were here last Summer, are sounding the warning. It may be, however, that both Hutchison and Sarazen will be forced either to forego their contemplated trip abroad or give up playing in the American national, the decision now resting with the United States Golf Association, which, at its annual meeting in Pittsburgh on Jan. 7, will fix the date of the American event. The members of the P. G. A. have requested that the governing body move the date of the American open up into June, and such action would probably prevent golfers from participating in both the British and American opens, inasmuch as the British have already set their date for June 14-15.

Sarazen's Sudden Rise.

No golfer in history has enjoyed the sudden rise to prominence in quite the same degree as Sarazen. A year ago he was a comparatively unknown, without fame and, as a corollary, without wealth. He numbered among his close associates and friends those who saw in him possibilities of a great golf future, but up to that time he had done nothing to warrant the prediction that he was soon to be acclaimed the outstanding golfer of the year among the professionals.

His star first flashed in the golf firmament two years ago at the Inwood Country Club, where in the 1921 P. G. A. championship he downed Jock Hutchison, the titleholder and the British open champion as well, by a one-sided margin. Last Winter Sarazen went South and at the conclusion of the season he was the outstanding figure of the Winter tournament play. His biggest stake was the winning of the Southern open at New Orleans, which brought him in his first big prize, $1,000.

Then followed in order the winning of the national open championship at Skokie last Summer from perhaps the greatest field that ever competed for that trophy; his victory in the P. G. A. championship at Oakmont, in which he defeated some of the leading players in the world at match-play competition, and last his notable victory over Walter Hagen in their home-and-home, 72-hole match for what was advertised as being the unofficial world's championship.

The night after his victory Sarazen was rushed away to the hospital suffering from an acute attack of appendicitis. He was operated on successfully and has spent the intervening weeks at Miami and in New York, recuperating for his task.

Victories Bring Big Money.

Just what his skill in the royal and ancient game has brought him is shown in the fact that, whereas a year ago he was just one of the many, earning perhaps $5,000 per year, he has already earned in the neighborhood of $10,000 through his exhibitions, prizes, gratuities and royalties and, by the end of 1923, his earning power will bring him in possibly $25,000 more, making a total of approximately $35,000 since he snatched the national open title away from John Black, the Pacific Coast professional, and Bobby Jones, the Atlanta amateur star, at Skokie last Summer.

He will probably receive in the neighborhood of $2,000 from his tour this Winter, in addition to his salary as pro at Briarcliff and what he makes from exhibitions during the coming Summer and Fall, roughly $10,000. Should he succeed in winning the British open title or succeed in the national or P. G. A. here next Summer, the last named figure will doubtless be doubled.

Sarazen is barely turned twenty-one. His professional career started when he was assistant to George Sparling at Brooklawn. It is Sparling to whom he gives credit for his success as a golfer. From Brooklawn he went to the Highland Country Club, where he remained two years. Upon his winning of the two titles Sarazen and the Pittsburgh club officials were unable to agree upon the terms of his 1923 contract. Gene asking for $5,000 in addition to sales privileges and permission to be away from the club for tournaments and exhibitions. The difficulty was unable to meet Sarazen's terms and the parting of the ways resulted.

Football Star to Wrestle.

IOWA CITY, Dec. 21.—Johnny Heidt, star centre on the University of Iowa football eleven, winner of four "e's" for his work on the gridiron, started the final stretch of his career as a college athlete when he reported to Coach Mike Howard for the Iowa wrestling team.

Harding Felicitates Pfann On His Election as Captain

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Dec. 21.—Warren G. Harding of Marion, Ohio, President of the United States, has taken cognisance of the election of George R. Pfann as captain of the next Cornell football team. The new Cornell leader is a native of Marion, Ohio, and his folks have known the Hardings for years. When Pfann's election was announced The Cornell Sun wired President Harding of the honor that had been paid a fellow-townsman, and this morning Pfann, about to start home for the holidays, received a congratulatory telegram from President Harding, felicitating him on the honor that had been bestowed upon him and stating that Marion should be proud of the achievements of one of her sons. Pfann was too modest to give out the telegram, but admitted the substance as given above.

FRISCH DECLARES HE IS NOT DISSATISFIED

Says Giants Have Treated Him Fairly and Does Not Want Union Office.

Frank Frisch, the Fordham Flash, is all perturbed over the linking of his name with the new Players' Union as a candidate for the Presidency. With his usual speed Frankie telephoned the Giants' office yesterday and tried in vain to get in touch with John McGraw, who was away for the day. In McGraw's absence the Flash poured his tale of woe into the ear of Secretary Jim Tierney, the tale consisting of the following statements: That Frank does not like the idea of his name being mentioned in connection with an office in the union; that people may judge from that that he is dissatisfied with the way the Giants have treated him; that Frankie is not dissatisfied and merely joined the union to stick with the other players, never dreaming that they would nominate him for President.

However, it seems that Frisch's fears are groundless, for he now has a second rival for the leading office, besides which the balloting is said to be going heavily in favor of George Burns of the Cincinnati Reds, who was one of the two original nominees. The new candidate is Jacques Fournier of the Cardinals, and, although the outlying precincts are not yet in, it looks as if Frisch will run second to Burns, who is favored because of his longer term of service in the major leagues.

Fournier's Name on Revised List.

Fournier's name as a Presidential nominee appears on a revised list which came to light yesterday. Here is the way the ticket lines up now: President, Frank Frisch, George Burns and Jacques Fournier; Vice President, Jake Daubert, Cincinnati; Arthur Fletcher, Philadelphia Nationals, and Zack Wheat, Brooklyn; Financial Secretary, Billy Southworth, Boston Braves; Dave Bancroft, Giants, and Jimmy Johnson, Brooklyn; Recording Secretary, Lee Williams, Philadelphia Nationals; William Doak and John Lavan, St. Louis Cardinals.

On the Board of Directors, each club but Chicago and Pittsburgh will be represented by one player. The absence of those two clubs stems from the recent statement of President Heydler of the National League that the organizers of the union met with little success among the Cub and Pirate players. The fact that no player will represent either team is taken to mean that no members were obtained from those sources.

The American League, of course, is entirely unrepresented. Despite Ray Cannon's assertion that ninety players have been scrutinized from that circuit, no trace of them can be found. Every one of the ninety seems to be in hiding. The failure of Cannon and his associates to work among the American Leaguers is the most mystifying feature of the players' movement. Either they intend to ignore the Johnson league entirely or else they plan to round up the National League faithful first and then start a drive in the junior circuit.

Giants Have New Physician.

Dr. William J. Walsh, in his day a crack pitcher at Fordham, was appointed to be club physician to the Giants yesterday, succeeding Dr. William Bender, whose private practice now prevents him from continuing with the baseball work. Dr. Walsh was at Fordham from 1912 to 1916 in the college and medical school. After graduation he had a brief trial with the Giants, but decided that medicine was a better field for him than baseball. Now he is back again, this time to look after the health and well being of McGraw's champions. He will begin his duties with the opening of the season on April 17.

Secretary Tierney professed total ignorance concerning any offer to trade Jess Barnes for Luque of the Reds. It wouldn't be a bad trade for the Giants, for the Cuban would be a first rate pitcher with anybody but the Reds, who usually give him only one or two runs and then ask him to win on that working margin.

FARRAND TO ATTEND ATHLETIC MEETING

Cornell's President Will Represent University at Collegiate A. A. Gathering.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Dec. 21.—For the first time in the history of Cornell its President will officially represent the university at a meeting devoted to the interests of college athletics. It was announced on the Hill today that President Livingston Farrand has designated himself as Cornell's delegate to the seventeenth annual meeting of the National Collegiate Athletic Association to be held in New York next week.

Romeyn Berry, graduate manager, and Professor C. V. P. Young, physical director of the university, also will attend in the capacity of visiting delegates, but President Farrand will speak for and vote for Cornell. He is keenly interested in athletics and a football fan of the first water, being a conspicuous figure in the Cornell cheering section in the Penn. game last Thanksgiving Day. Until a few years ago Cornell held aloof from the association, now her President is her delegate.

GEORGIA COACH RESIGNS.

Stegeman Quits Football Post to Join Faculty.

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 21.—Herman J. Stegeman, former University of Chicago star and for the last three years head coach at the University of Georgia, has resigned from that position to become Associate Professor of Physical Education as a member of the Faculty. The department of physical education was created here only recently, and it is expected that Coach Stegeman will assist his successor in an advisory capacity.

New Haven Sells Players.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 21.—The New Haven Eastern League Club has sold Sterling Strykat, pitcher, and Marty Shay, shortstop, to the Worcester Club, it was announced today. The consideration was not made known.

AMERICAN TENNIS STANDARD ADOPTED

International Conference at London Agrees on Rule for Resiliency of Balls.

FOOTFAULT IS DEFINED

U. S. L. T. A. Interpretation Accepted — World Championship Question Nears Settlement.

LONDON, Dec. 21 (Associated Press).—Representatives of all the principal tennis-playing nations, meeting here, agreed today to standardization of the rules of the game.

The American standard of required resiliency in the balls was adopted. Heretofore the governing body of no other nation has made a specific rule as to resiliency, but only as to size and weight.

The American provision for a rest period after the third set in men's matches and after the second set in women's, it was decided, should hereafter be universally followed in international contests. The various nations may, however, modify this rule for purely domestic matches.

Up to the present the English have not allowed rest periods, and critics have complained that this has resulted in stamina being more important than skill in long and close court battles.

A new international footfault rule was adopted, and this also is substantially the same as that effective in the United States. The footfault rule laid down by the United States Lawn Tennis Association provides that before commencing to serve the server shall stand with both feet at rest behind the baseline and within the limits of the centre mark and sideline. From the time of taking such stand and until the racquet strikes the ball both feet shall remain behind the baseline and at least one foot shall remain on the ground.

Ratification Necessary.

The unified rules agreed upon today must be ratified by the individual governing bodies of the various nations.

The American resiliency rule, which was adopted, provides that the balls shall have a minimum bound of forty-five inches and a maximum of sixty inches when dropped from a height of 100 inches upon a concrete base in a temperature of 68 degrees Fahrenheit.

This is expected to work to the immediate advantage of visiting teams, as heretofore the balls used in England have not been as lively as required in America; consequently American players competing here had to accustom their play and strokes to the lower bound, while Britishers visiting America have been handicapped by the extreme liveliness of the balls.

The delegates adopted the English standard of size and weight, which varies but slightly from that obtaining in the United States. (The U. S. L. T. A. requires that balls shall measure not less than 2 9-16 inches, nor more than 2 10-16 inches in diameter, and shall weigh not less than two ounces nor more than 2 1-16 ounces.)

A sub committee, of which Henry W. Slocum, the American representative, is a member, was appointed to meet tomorrow for the purpose of putting the new universal regulations into proper phraseology.

Question of World's Championships.

The Americans' objection to the International Tennis Federation agreement granting Wimbledon the right to stage the world's championships in perpetuity was the subject of informal discussions today. While all the delegates were silent as to the definite outlook, they agreed that the concord among the tennis officials was the true keynote, presaging an early agreement on the matter.

Mr. Slocum said this concord was such that "it looks as thought we would now be able to reach an agreement on any subject."

Some of the delegates hinted that one possible solution was to do away with the world singles title altogether, declaring it unwanted and unneeded in the realm of tennis.

The opinion of tennis enthusiasts gathered outside the room where the delegates sat in secret, was, however, that the public craves duly crowned titleholders, and it was rather generally conceded that the titular matches were not without their value from a monetary standpoint.

America is not a member of the International Federation, and Mr. Slocum, who is a former national champion of the United States, attended its meeting by invitation. The English are eager to bring America into the Federation, and the other member nations are also desirous of a new system of awarding the championships, but it was thought unlikely that the question would get beyond informal discussion at the present session.

English tennis officials, as well as Mr. Slocum and the French, Belgian and other delegates, expressed confidence that the whole matter would be smoothed out before the Summer tournaments. The English delegates point out that before they can relinquish the right to hold championship matches in this country the Federation must obtain the consent of holders of its securities by sale of which funds for the erection of the stadium at Wimbledon were raised.

MAY COACH W. AND J.

Heisman of Penn Receives Tentative Football Offer.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 21.—John W. Heisman, formerly head coach of the Penn football team, may coach Washington and Jefferson next Fall. Several officials of W. and J. have approached Heisman tentatively on the subject, but he is undecided what to do. Friends of the Red and Blue mentor do not believe he will accept. "Heisman is devoted to Penn and will give all his time to his alma mater," said one Penn athletic head. "He has received offers to coach at least nine or ten other colleges, but has turned them all down."

EVANSTON TEAM REWARDED

Nineteen Northwestern Football Players Receive Letters.

EVANSTON, Ill., Dec. 21.—For the first time in the history of the university, members of the Northwestern football team were awarded their letters at exercises open to the students and the public yesterday. The awards were made at the Purple Chapel exercises by Dr. O. F. Long, Chairman of the Athletic Committee. Head Coach Glenn Thistlewaite and Assistant Coach Maurice Kent. Nineteen "N's" were awarded to members of the varsity squad.

INJURED PLAYER BETTER.

Kirk, Michigan Eleven Star, Is Recovering From Accident.

YPSILANTI, Mich., Dec. 21.—Bernard Kirk, University of Michigan football star, injured in a recent automobile accident here, was reported by physicians today to be improving. For a time last night it was feared meningitis might develop, but this condition has disappeared today. Kirk's skull was fractured.

Christmas is only three days away. Make checks payable to the HUNDRED NEEDIEST CASES FUND and mail to The New York Times, Times Square, New York.

Langlen-Mallory Tennis Feud May Be Renewed at Wimbledon

LONDON, Dec. 21 (Associated Press).—A renewal of the tennis feud between Mlle. Suzanne Langlen and Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory next Summer seemed a probability today. A cablegram from America stating that Mrs. Mallory planned to come to Wimbledon in quest of the women's title brought the announcement from A. H. Muir, Suzanne's manager, that the French star would also participate in the Wimbledon tournament.

PANTHER PLAYERS GET BIG SEND-OFF

Pittsburgh Football Team Leaves for Palo Alto to Play Leland Stanford Eleven.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 21.—The Pittsburgh Panthers were given a great send-off tonight as they boarded the Pennsylvania Railroad train on their way to Palo Alto for the Leland Stanford contest. There were twenty-five players in the party, augmented by coaches, trainer and newspaper men, and, although the University of Pittsburgh is closed for the Christmas holidays and the students scattered to their homes, a great crowd of them gathered at the Union Station, headed by the Pitt Band, and the railroad depot resounded with the cheers and college yells as Glenn Warner led the warriors through the gates to the platform. The veteran coach would not predict a victory, but said he expected the Blue and Gold to uphold the honor of the East in the post-season contest.

Several thousand relatives and friends of the team were also on hand, giving them the biggest send-off ever accorded a Pitt team. They will arrive in Chicago tomorrow morning, where they remain three hours, and then board a Chicago, St. Paul & Milwaukee train for the West.

The players will be given exercise on the train en route to the coast and will have at least four days after arriving in which to get the kinks out of their muscles.

PENN STATE ELEVEN FACES HARD TASK

Southern California Has Strong Team, but Easterners Are Favored to Win.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 21.—The coming East-West football game on New Year's Day at Pasadena will lack some of the championship features which have characterized these clashes in the past, as both Penn State and the University of Southern California have been defeated. The University of Southern California team, however, has lost only one contest, dropping its game with California by a score of 12 to 0. Coach Henderson has concentrated on the defense this year, in the hope that he would be able to hold California to a small score. This he succeeded in doing, but his team has suffered in its offensive game as a result.

Southern California has some wonderful material and should be able to play almost any kind of a game, if it were not for the fact that it lacks a strong punter. The line is strong, being composed of big and active players, including Hawkins, a guard who, it is believed on the coast, can outstrip any guard in the country. He usually beats his ends down the field on punts. Captain Galland is the other guard. The tackles are big and powerful, and the ends are fast, while all of the players tackle low and hard.

In the backfield are Baker, Campbell, Kincaid and Dolley, with four substitutes about as good. Baker is a powerful line plunger and Campbell and Kincaid run the ends well. The team has a good passing game, but has been lacking in a versatile attack. A strong kicker also would make the combination far more dangerous. In kicking California had it all over the Los Angeles players, as both Nisbet and Morrison are wonderful punters.

If Penn State is at its best and is a truly representative team, it is expected that it will defeat Southern California. But the climate may make a great deal of difference and Penn State may be forced to play the game on New Year's Day in a temperature of 60 degrees. If Penn State shows at its best it should win. It is believed here that the University of California could beat either team by two touchdowns.

Results of former East-West games at Pasadena, as follows:

Jan. 1, 1916—Washington State College, 14; Brown University, 0.
Jan. 1, 1917—Oregon University, 10; University of Pennsylvania, 0.
Jan. 1, 1920—Harvard University, 7; Oregon University, 6.
Jan. 1, 1921—University of California, 28; Ohio State, 0.
Jan. 1, 1922—Washington and Jefferson University, 0; University of California, 0.

WEST VIRGINIA HAS WORKOUT IN WEST

Mountaineers' Eleven Indulges in Ten-Minute Drill at Small Kansas Town.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWTON, Kan., Dec. 21.—The first opportunity for a workout was offered the West Virginia football team en route to the Coast at this small Kansas town late this afternoon. Only ten minutes were available, but the men climbed into old shirts and trousers and for that period went through a spirited drill under the direction of Coach Spears.

Findings were received here from the Coast to the effect that C. J. McCarty, well-known Eastern official, would work in the game as the fourth official, Eckersall, Thorp and Van Surdam having been previously agreed upon.

The train carrying the Mountaineers lost almost two hours in Kansas City this morning and the Penn State team traveling on a later section of the same train, the California Limited, is now leading in the cross-country trip of the two Eastern elevens.

FOUR TEAMS TO SEE GAME.

Other Elevens Invited to Witness New Year's Clash at Pasadena.

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 21.—Four college football teams will see the University of Southern California and Pennsylvania State football teams clash here New Year's Day in the tournament of roses—the annual East-West gridiron clash. Invitations have been accepted by the football teams of West Virginia, Pittsburgh, Gonzaga and Utah Agricultural College.

Case School Reappoints Coach.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Dec. 21.—Reappointment of Harry Canfield as head coach of the Case School of Applied Science football squad for 1923 was announced today.

PRINCETON TO PLAY NOTRE DAME ELEVEN

Rockne's Team Will Come East Oct. 20—Meets Army in New York a Week Earlier.

NOTRE DAME, Ind., Dec. 21.—The University of Notre Dame football team will play the Princeton University eleven at Princeton on Oct. 20, 1923, Knute K. Rockne, director of athletics at Notre Dame, today announced his football schedule for next season.

It provides for ten games and includes contests with West Point, Georgia Tech, Nebraska and Carnegie Tech. The Army game, set for Oct. 13, will be played at New York City instead of at West Point as heretofore. Notre Dame's season will open on Sept. 29 and end on Nov. 29. Coach Rockne's schedule follows:

Sept. 29, Kalamazoo at Notre Dame; Oct. 6, Lombard at Notre Dame; Oct. 13, West Point at New York City; Oct. 20, Princeton at Princeton; Oct. 27, Georgia Tech at Notre Dame; Nov. 3, Purdue at Notre Dame; Nov. 10, Nebraska at Lincoln, Neb.; Nov. 17, Butler at Notre Dame; Nov. 24, Carnegie Tech at Pittsburgh; Nov. 29, St. Louis at St. Louis.

Army Game on 13th.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Dec. 21.—The Army-Notre Dame football game will be played in New York in 1923, Army football authorities announced today. The contest is down on Army's schedule for Saturday, Oct. 13, but no site in New York City has yet been selected for the game. This matter is now under advisement by the interested parties. Since the Army will meet Knute Rockne's eleven in the metropolis the cadets will play three of the nine games on their next year's program away from home, as arrangements have already been made to play Yale in the Bowl at New Haven on Nov. 3. The Army-Navy contest is always decided on neutral grounds, and there is no reason to believe otherwise of this detail of next year's service battle. Either New York or Philadelphia will probably be chosen as the site for this important game.

COLGATE QUINTET DEFEATS ITHACANS

Cornell Stages Late Rally, but Loses Close Contest by Score of 36 to 31.

Special to The New York Times.

UTICA, N. Y., Dec. 21.—Colgate's quintet got away to a 7-point lead in the first half to win over Cornell here tonight by a 36-31 score. Cornell staged a rally in the last half and the score stood 32-30, but field baskets in the closing moments turned the tide in the Maroons' favor.

Livermore was easily the star of the Colgate five, his floor work and shooting ability being the outstanding feature. Captain Herman also played a good game at guard. For Cornell, Captain Luther stood head and shoulders above his team-mates. In addition to making four field goals and nine foul points, he played a wonderful floor game.

Colgate was the first scorer, Livermore caging a foul and following it with a field basket soon after the start of the contest. Cornell came back strong, and led the Maroon by 4 points at one time. But coach Bill Reid's athletes staged a rally and led at half time, 19—21.

In the second half Cornell tried desperately to overcome a seven-point lead, but the Colgate defense kept down their scoring and the Maroon athletes maintained their lead.

MANHATTAN BEATS ST. JOSEPH'S FIVE

Local Basketball Team Gains Victory Over Philadelphians by 30 to 18.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 21.—Manhattan College, with a brilliant passing game, proved too strong for the St. Joseph's College five tonight, the New York basket ball players registering a 30 to 18 victory. Manhattan, after losing to Villanova and Navy by close scores, came here intent on scoring its first victory, and its play could not have been better. The visitors tallied nine times from the field, while St. Joseph was able to get only four field goals.

In the first half Manhattan got off to a 16 to 8 lead, mainly through Driscoll's good foul shooting. He tossed baskets on eight of eleven chances from the foul line.

Brilliant passing in the second half gave Manhattan a decided advantage, and six field goals were scored, Eddie Meehan, at centre, made three of these, two on passes from O'Mella. Gene Meehan scored twice, also on passes.

The line-up:

MANHATTAN (30).		ST. JOSEPH'S (18).
O'Mella	L.F.	Oakes
G. Meehan	R.F.	Hagens
E. Meehan	C.	Gannon
Driscoll	L.G.	Devine
Sullivan	R.G.	Hosey

Goals from floor—E. Meehan (4), G. Meehan (3), Driscoll, O'Mella, Oakes (2), Devine (2). Goals from foul—Driscoll (12), Devine (10).

Substitutions—St. Joseph's: Carr for Hagens, Mallio for Gannon, Gannon for Carr, Hagens for Gannon, Gannon for Mallio.

Referee—Lewis. Time of halves—20 minutes.

UNION FIVE TRIUMPHS.

Defeats St. Lawrence University Quintet by 21 to 12.

Special to The New York Times.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Dec. 21.—The St. Lawrence University basketball five lost here tonight to the Union College quintet by the score of 21 to 12. The game was well played. The visitors spurted after the first half, but were unable to offset the lead Union obtained early in the game.

The line-up:

UNION (21).		ST. LAWRENCE (12)
Nitchman	L.F.	Connery
Bartley	R.F.	Hunt
Bellinger	C.	Colon
Simmons	L.G.	Bird
Faber	R.G.	Atwood

Goals from field—Bellinger 3, Simmons 4, Hunt, Bowler, Atwood. Goals from foul—Simmons 7, Atwood 2, Bird 4.

Substitutions—Union: Cornell, Leitzell, Waterman, Rita. St. Lawrence: Torrey.

Referee—Tilden. Time of halves—twenty minutes.

H. S. FIVE WINS AGAIN.

Passaic Beats Ocean City, 109 to 18—Is 91st Straight Victory.

The famous Passaic, N. J., high school basketball quintet which has gone through three seasons undefeated, establishing what is said to be a record, embarked on its fourth season with an overwhelming victory yesterday when it defeated Ocean City High School five by the score of 109 to 18. Fritz Knothe, star on last year's unbeaten team, was the shining light in yesterday's victory. Playing at his old guard position, Knothe dropped many long shots through the circle in addition to defending his position in fine style. The victory over Ocean marked the ninety-first time that the Passaic five has taken the floor and emerged a victor.

St. Paul Hears Tom Gibbons Is Offered Dempsey Match

ST. PAUL, Dec. 21.—Tommy Gibbons, local heavyweight, who recently outpointed Billy Miske in ten rounds, has received an offer from a New York promoter for a match with Jack Dempsey, it became known here today. Gibbons was asked to state the terms he would ask. "If Dempsey can be induced to enter the ring with me there will be no squabble over terms, so far as I am concerned," Gibbons said. "Any date suits me. All that is necessary is to get Dempsey's signature."

LYNCH TO DEFEND HIS TITLE TONIGHT

Will Meet Midget Smith in Bout for Bantamweight Championship at Garden.

The much discussed Joe Lynch-Midget Smith fifteen-round bout for the world's bantamweight championship will be held in Madison Square Garden tonight. There has been some doubt in boxing circles about Smith's ability to make the required weight of 118 pounds, but the Harlem boxer pulled a surprise yesterday by hopping on the scales and tipping the beam at the necessary notch. This is the first time that he has made the bantamweight limit, but he declared yesterday that he had had no difficulty in getting down to weight and that he felt on edge for tonight's contest.

"I am sorry I have never made the weight before," he said, "for I have never felt more fit. This is an opportunity of a lifetime for me and I am going in there to finish the job as quickly as possible. Santa Claus has been mighty good to me in the past week and I hope he continues the good work in my behalf."

Smith evidently had reference to the lifetime of his suspension at the hands of the New Jersey Boxing Commission in order that he might fulfill his contract for the Lynch bout. The lifting of the suspension was not an unmixed blessing for the Harlem battler, however, as he underwent a severe lacing at the hands of Irish Johnny Curtin in order to meet the demands of the New York and New Jersey boxing boards. Previous to the Curtin contest the Garden officials announced that Smith's chance to meet Lynch depended on his ability to dispose of Curtin. While he failed of this objective, Midget did give Curtin a lively tussle and Richard reconsidered first decision and decided to let the match go through as originally scheduled.

While the outcome of the Smith-Curtin bout cannot help but make Lynch favorite in tonight's contest, many close followers of boxing contend that Smith, a rushing, tearing fighter, is the type of boxer who will give the champion plenty of trouble. Lynch has trained diligently and is reported to be in tip-top shape. Lynch counts on his left to hold the charging Smith at bay while he is piling up points at long range.

Almost as much interest is evinced in the outcome of the semi-final of twelve rounds between Lee Williams, former bantamweight champion, and Battling Harry Leonard, as in the main event. Williams is attempting a comeback and from all accounts he should give a splendid account of himself. He is meeting a young, aggressive boxer in Leonard.

Two more bouts are carded. A six-rounder will show Eddie Shea of Chicago against Joe Ryder of Brooklyn. The curtain raiser of four rounds will bring together Louis Guglielmini of the Gas House and Mannie Jacobson of Denmark.

It was announced yesterday that part of the proceeds of tonight's show will go to a New York Christmas fund.

GETZEL IS DEFEATED IN BOXING TOURNEY

Amateur 112-Pound State Champion Loses to Kerenski in Crescent A. C. Bout.

Harry Getzel, Union Settlement boxer, who captured the New York State amateur title in the 112-pound class at the State championships held at Madison Square Garden recently, ran into trouble last night when he entered the inter-city bouts conducted by the Crescent Athletic Club, Brooklyn. Appearing in the semi-final round with Sam Kerenski, Educational Alliance boxer as his opponent, Getzel was unable to store up enough points to give him the decision and the verdict went to Kerenski.

Ben Butler, Trinity A. C. boxer, had batted Frank Jerry's eyes open in a special bout in which Butler opposed Mike Arraste, representing the Russo-American A. C. Butler was awarded the verdict by the Judges at the end of three rounds.

In the 126-pound class Benny Rothwell of the Pastime A. C., the New Jersey State champion, made short work of his opponent, Irving Badger of Philadelphia. Rothwell put his rival away in the first round of the battle. Rothwell repeated his performance against Paul Gulletta, National A. C. boxer, in the final, putting his man away in the initial round.

Perhaps the most sensational bout of the night was that which brought together Jack Carter, unattached athlete, and Leon Gutowski of the Bay Beach A. C. After knocking out Patsy Austin of Boston in the third round in the semi-final, Carter lost the final to Gutowski, but put up a courageous battle. Although knocked down in each of the first two rounds, he came back in the third, but the judges' decision went to the Bay Beach amateur.

The summaries:

Stations—J. P. Morgan, Vincent Astor and J. Harvey Lader.

BASKETBALL ZONE RULE IS MODIFIED

Regulations Governing Free Throws Changed by Intercollegiate Committee.

Interpretation of the new rules which have been put into effect to govern basketball during the coming year occupied the attention of the members of the Executive Committee of the Intercollegiate Basketball League at its meeting at the University of Pennsylvania Club here last night.

Among the topics discussed were the new zone rules, which the rulemakers incorporated in this year's regulations for the purpose of speeding up the game and differentiating between fouls which affect the scoring and those which do not; dribbling, out of bounds and other features of the 1922-23 code.

It was decided by the committee to depart somewhat from the rules laid down for play and the Intercollegiate league will this season allow two free throws only for fouls which are committed within the limits of the foul zone and which affect the offensive team in two particulars: when the player fouled is in the act of actually shooting for the goal or dribbling.

The meeting was presided over by W. McKinley Barber, President of the league. Secretary D. W. Kemp Jr. was also present, as were representative coaches of the various institutions constituting the league.

PURDUE'S CAPTAIN OUT.

Masters of Basketball Team Undergoes Operation.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Dec. 21.—Purdue's hopes of repeating its 1921-22 performance in winning the Big Ten conference basketball championship received a setback following the operation on Captain Masters, star forward. It is now doubtful if Masters will be able to play until the middle of the season. With this exception, the team is well set for the title journey, for three other members of last year's team are available. They are Eversman, Gallivan and Holwood. Miller was the only member of the quintet to be graduated.

GREB BOUT CALLED OFF.

Light Heavyweight Champion Not to Meet Delaney.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Dec. 21.—Harry Greb will not defend his American light heavyweight championship title against Jimmy Delaney of St. Paul here on the night of Jan. 8 as scheduled.

Greb's manager telegraphed Dan Lackey, local promoter, today that because of injuries received in his recent bout with Bob Roper and other difficulties Greb would be unable to appear.

CHAMPION BEATEN IN SQUASH MATCH

Coward Loses to Fink in Straight Games, but Yale Club Downs Crescents.

COLUMBIANS VICTORIOUS

Blue and White Seven Takes 4 Matches to 3 for Princeton—Pulleyn Wins From Cromwell.

METROPOLITAN SQUASH TENNIS LEAGUE STANDING, CLASS A.

Team	Won	Lost	P.C.
Yale Club	4	0	1.000
Harvard Club	3	1	.750
Columbia Club	2	2	.500
Princeton Club	1	3	.250
Crescent A. C.	0	4	.000

The defeat of the national squash tennis champion, Thomas R. Coward, was the sensation yesterday afternoon in the concluding matches of the first round of the Class A team tournament for the Metropolitan League championship. The Yale Club beat the Crescent Athletic Club by a score of 5 to 2, but the Elis' foremost player was forced to accept defeat at the hands of R. Earl Fink. The upset was made additionally surprising by the fact that the Crescent ace won from Coward in straight games, 15—12, 15—12.

The Yale Club retained its place at the head of the Class A race with an unbroken sequence of four victories, with the Harvard Club in the runner-up position. The Columbia Club broke a tie for third place with Princeton, winning by a score of 4 to 3. A default by one of the Princeton Club players proved costly. Matches in the second round of the Class A tournament will start next Thursday.

Fink was runner-up to Coward in the recently concluded scratch tournament of the national association. In that match Coward won by 3 games to 1. In reversing the verdict on his home courts yesterday Fink was irresistible. It was not merely that he outsteadied the champion, but he outplayed him in other ways. He almost never made a mistake. He kept the ball low and he hit hard, but he almost never landed in the tell-tale. To match his extraordinary accuracy was his ability to handle the terrific pace of the champion's shots, even including the latter's ferocious drives along the side walls. Fink used good judgment in taking his position in the fore part of the court, where he handled Coward's smashes to especial advantage. His skill in keeping the ball in play and in mixing his shot finally wore Coward's resistance down. The Yale Club star experienced difficulty in returning Fink's service effectively. Fink scored several service aces, and on other occasions forced weak returns, which he promptly annihilated.

Fink Takes Lead.

The first game was decided in seventeen hands and the second in fourteen. Fink, with runs of 3 in his first and third hands, led at the start of the opener, but Coward went into a lead of 9—6 in his fourth turn at service, and was never headed after that, although Coward kept at his heels until the count was 12—12 for Fink. Two aces in his seventeenth hand game Fink the game.

In the second session, Fink scored three times in his second hand and Coward five times. Both went scoreless for three hands. It was nip and tuck from there on. Coward led at 6—4 and 7—6, and they were tied at 8—all in the ninth. Then Fink drew ahead at 11—8, only to have Coward come back immediately with a corresponding run of 3 for 11—all. Fink made four aces in the succeeding hands, while the champion was scoring once for a final count of 15—12.

The point scores follow:

FIRST GAME.

Fink.. 2 0 8 0 2 1 0 0 2 0 0 0 2 0 0 2—15
Coward 1 4 0 2 0 1 0 0 0 1 0 1 0 2 0 0—12

SECOND GAME.

Fink..... 0 3 0 0 0 1 1 2 3 1 0 2 1—15
Coward.... 0 5 0 0 0 1 0 1 0 1 0 3 0 1 . .—14

Yale's noted football quartet, Carrol T. Cooney, Douglas M. Bomeisler, Clyde Martin and Otis L. Guernsey, won three of four matches. Cooney was the only one defeated. He lost to H. V. Crawford by 15 to 7, 1 to 15, 15 to 10. Martin played Andrew Baxter Jr., a curiously noted match. Each won a game at 15 to 14 and then Baxter's defense crumpled completely, the Yale man taking the rubber, 15 to 1. Auguste J. Cordier and C. J. MacGuire won for the Blue in straight games. Both teams missed the services of one of their regulars, Livingston Platt being absent from the Yale seven, while Charles M. Bull Jr., through illness, was unable to compete for Crescent.

Farrelly Defaults Match.

R. L. Farrelly of the Princeton Club was unable to appear for his match with M. L. Cornell in the series on the Princeton Club courts, and the resultant default was enough to tip the scales in the Columbia club's favor. In actual play, the result hung upon the meeting between J. W. Pulleyn Jr., of the Blue and White and Jarvis Cromwell. They were the last pair to take the court and the team score when they started was 2 to 3. Pulleyn won by scores of 15 to 10, 13 to 15, 15 to 11. Cromwell looked like the winner until the very last stages of the third game. He led early in the game at 4 to 1 and 6 to 2. Pulleyn at the start landed many balls into the tell-tale and was also prone to get hit by the ball. He rallied remarkably, however, and smashed his way to victory by rills up and down the side walls. He never gave Cromwell a chance when the latter had service. Pulleyn fairly slaughtered his opponent's delivery and whenever it was hard-in placed well for the chance to kill the ball.

Harold R. Mixsell, No. 1 man for Princeton, won easily from Irwin H. Cornell, but Frank Kidde won the point back for Columbia at the expense of John Taylor. Frederick S. Keeler was the remaining winner for Columbia, while George Brackenridge and T. M. Denison scunted for the Orange and Black.

The summaries:

Yale Club 5, Crescent A. C. 2.

R. Earl Fink, Crescent, defeated Thomas R. Coward, Yale, 15—12, 15—12; Auguste J. Cordier, Yale, defeated C. Holland Seeks an American To Coach Olympic Athletes

BOSTON, Dec. 21.—Holland wants to put the preparation of its athletes for the 1924 Olympiad in the hands of an American. Coach Jack Ryder of the Boston College and Boston A. A. track teams received a request today from athletic enthusiasts in Holland to name a man qualified to act as coach for that country. Ryder recommended William H. Mealdx, an Olympic veteran, and former holder of the world's record for the 440-yard hurdles.

FASCISTI TO HELP OLYMPIC ATHLETES

New Italian Government Promises Appropriations to Defray Expenses of Team.

ROME, Dec. 1 (By Mail).—The advent of the Fascisti Government to power will have favorable influence upon the development of sport and athletics in Italy. Premier Mussolini's Cabinet is composed mostly of young men between the ages of 30 and 40, the majority of whom at some time or another have taken active part in some branches of athletics and have retained a deep interest in sports. Mussolini himself is an expert fencer and his Under Secretary of State, Finzi, besides being one of Italy's most renowned aviators, was at one time one of the best 5,000-metre runners in the peninsula.

The first effects of the assumption of leadership of the Government by Mussolini in the field of sports already have been seen in the promise made by the Premier that appropriations of funds to defray the expenses of the Italian Olympic team to Paris in 1924 would be forthcoming. The Olympic preparation in Italy, which had been stagnant throughout the Summer owing to lack of funds and consequent lukewarm enthusiasm, has taken on a new lease of life, and followers of athletics in Italy are rejoicing.

The preparation of the Italian Olympic team will be directed especially toward the 5,000 and 10,000 metre races and the marathon. Although sprints will not be neglected, the Italian Olympic Committee feels that they have better material for the distance events. It is the intention of the committee to have four full Olympic distance marathons run between now and the departure of the Italian team for Paris in 1924. The last one will take place about January, 1924.

Signor Tonetti, Vice President of the committee, is sanguine that Italy has a first-class chance of carrying off the blue ribbon of the Olympic games. In Valerio of Turin and Ringo of Fregorio of Milan Italy claims to have discovered worthy successors to Dorando Pietri, whose dramatic failure in the marathon at London and subsequent races in America against Tom Longboat, Johnny Hayes and Alfred Schrubb are well remembered in sporting circles. Both Valerio and Fregorio can run all day. What they lack just now is final speed for the last two or three miles. However, they have both negotiated the distance well under 2 hours and 50 minutes.

In the 5,000 meters Italy will present Ernesto Ambrosini of Milan and Prhno Ellena of Rome. Ambrosini ran a good second to Paavo Nurmi at Paris some time ago, forcing the record-breaking Finn to the limit in order to win by ten yards in 15 minutes and 1 second.

Travesi of Milan and Fiorentino of Livorno are the best men for the 10,000. Fiorentino, who was champion of Italy in 1920, but was off form last season, is stepping in great shape just now, but he will rest up during the Winter. He recently turned in 32 minutes 2 1-5 seconds.

The sprints, shot put, javelin and discus throwing are giving the committee much concern, and they do not look forward to earning any points in these events, unless some phenomenon should come to light between now and 1924. The best sprinter Italy can boast just now is Zucca of Turin. His time for the 100 meters is 10 4-5 seconds.

In the aquatic events Italy expects to make a good showing. The Genoa quartet, as Hagicalupo, Costa, Malito, Sachner and Panero are known, will give a good account of themselves in the tank.

Amateur boxing, especially in the featherweight and lightweight classes, may also prove point winners for Italy, according to members of the Olympic Committee.

SIX FAVORITES ARE BEATEN IN SOUTH

Form Players Suffer a Severe Jolt in Races at New Orleans Track.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 21.—The mortality in favorites at the Jefferson Park race course this afternoon made the occasion a dismal one for the followers of form despite a beaming sun and a track in better condition than for many previous days. Six public choices in a row fell by the wayside, and every one of them was a soundly beaten animal. Three of them managed to struggle home in second place, but the other three were outside the money.

The place of honor on the program was accorded to the Terre Bonne Claiming Handicap, an overnight affair, which attracted to the post nine horses belonging to the second flight of those now in training here. Hidden Jewel, the veteran son of Disguise, owned and trained by A. Swenke, disposed of the competition with very little ado, beating Mrs. R. McGarvey's filly, Avispa, by a liberal two lengths for the chief prize. P. J. Lavin's odl chestnut racer, Valor, was a rather distant third.

Hidden Jewel, as fit as skilled care could make him, had speed to ignite. Lang, who had the mount, gave the gelding his head in the early stages of the six-furlong journey, and he moved into a lead of four lengths over the favorite, Raleo, within half a mile. The latter grew weary as the stretch turn drew near and allowed Avispa to take up the task of chasing the flying leader.

Finds Task Too Great.

The filly tried her best under the urging of Jockey Chalmers, but could never get near enough to threaten Hidden Jewel, which was eased up in the last 100 yards. Valor staged a plucky finish and wrested the show position from Raleo by a goodly margin.

The winner covered the route of six furlongs in footing which was still slow, although much improved as compared with recent conditions, in the creditable time of 1:14 2-5.

Jockey Lang scored a double, and thereby annexed the riding honors. His other winner besides Hidden Jewel, was Spring Vale, R. Warfield's mare, which captured the second race, also a six-furlong event, at the juicy odds of 10 to 1.

Spring Vale was rushed to the front immediately upon the rise of the barrier and was never headed, although Lang went to the whip to withstand the closing dash of Smart Guy, the favorite. Under this stimulus Spring Vale again drew away and won by a good length. Winneconne took the short end of the purse.

British Liner Beaten.

T. J. Pendergast's British Liner was installed as favorite for the mile-and-a-sixteenth race which closed the card. There was heavy backing, too, for Transient, and when the latter ran away three-quarters of a mile before the start the talent's hopes of cashing on the public choice were enhanced.

It was not to be, however. Natural, the entry of C. J. Lyons, made a mere exercise gallop of the event, beating British Liner by half a dozen lengths. Amanda drew down the rest of the money.

DR. JOHNSON LEADS FIELD.

Captures Featured Race at Tijuana —Crystal Ford Second.

Special to The New York Times.

TIJUANA, Mexico, Dec. 21.—Eight of the best horses stabled here competed in the handicap which was the starred number of today's racing program, and Dr. Johnson, a Bright's sprinter, led the band at the close of the six-furlong test. Crystal Ford, which now races in the silks of the Clifton Stable, captured the place, and Captain Clever, G. Van Gordon's candidate, ran third.

The track, for the first time since the local meeting opened, was in prime condition, and Dr. Johnson covered the three-quarters of a mile in 1:16 2-5, within a couple of seconds of the course record. There was considerable backing for Halu in this race, but the brown gelding was not prominent.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE—For all ages; claiming; purse $500; five furlongs. Colonel Matt, 109 pounds (L. M. Fator), $4.80, $3.40, $2.40, first; Miss Dunbar, 109 (Lee), $3.20, $3.40, second; Velvet, 109 (Ralls), $2.80, third. Time—1:02 2-5. Broiaski, Hester H., Plantagenet, View, Ermitana, W. C. Deeley and Norfield also ran.

Hemphill, ex-Yankee, Alive; Plans for Burial Abandoned

Former officials of the New York American baseball club yesterday abandoned plans to raise a burial fund for Charley Hemphill, former Yankee star, when they learned that he was not dead. The Charley Hemphill who died here on Tuesday never played baseball, it was said by a sister of the dead man, Mrs. W. A. McKnight of Jersey City. Wide publication of the news of the supposed death of the old player and the contemplated raising of a fund resulted in an investigation which revealed the mistaken identity arising from the similarity of names. The former player is engaged in business in Toledo.

THE BOY IS FIRST IN HAVANA FEATURE

Captures La Punta Handicap From Belle of Elizabethtown on Muddy Track.

HAVANA, Dec. 21.—The mudders had their opportunity for the first time at the present meeting at Oriental Park this afternoon when heavy showers before the running of the first race made the going sloppy. The change in footing caused but little change in form as there was a solid bottom to the track.

The featured race, the La Punta Handicap, a dash of six furlongs, furnished the best contest of the afternoon. There were only four starters and they passed the winning mark in a compact bunch, the winner turning up in The Boy. He hugged the rail and made all his own pace but was forced to a driving finish to defeat Belle of Elizabethtown by a head. Master Hand, starting for the first time at this meeting, was third, beaten by half a length for the place, with Chief Sponsor last, half a length back. The early pace was very fast, The Boy running the first half in forty-seven seconds.

Flegan added another to the winning list of races scored by the W. R. Coe stable. He was ridden by J. Callahan and won by a good margin from Gonwithim.

Harry Riegel showed a fancy for the going and won the second with ease. She raced into the lead after passing the half mile pole and kept increasing her advantage during the remainder of the trip, winning at the end by a half dozen lengths from Sir Jack.

Ras made a runaway affair of the third. He was in hand all the way and at the end led Hohokus by four lengths.

Duke of Wington made all his own pace in the fifth, and in a driving finish defeated Horeb by a length.

Former President General Menocal was among visitors this afternoon, accompanied by his son, Raul Menocal, and his cousin, Dr. Frank Menocal and Dr. Eugenio Molinet.

Jockey Glick was suspended for five days for rough riding, and Gatner drew three days for disobedience at the post.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE—For two-year-olds; claiming; purse, $500; five and a half furlongs. Flegan, 106 pounds (J. Callahan), $4.40, $3.20, $2.60, first; Gonwithim, 108 (Fields), $3.20, $2.50, second; Conundrum, 102 (Obert), $2.80, third. Time—1:09 1-5. Abe Sablotasky, Rockabye, Courtier and Brushwood also ran.

SHANNON IS GOLF VICTOR.

Scofield Also Wins in Semi-Finals on Pinehurst Links.

PINEHURST, N. C., Dec. 22.—R. C. Shannon 2d of Massapequa and E. L. Scofield of Stamford will meet in the final of the first annual club golf tournament of the Pinehurst Country Club tomorrow. Shannon played against John D. Chapman of Greenwich in today's semi-final round and won by 3 and 2. Scofield came through at the expense of John D. Armstrong of New London, whom Scofield defeated by 2 and 1.

Shannon's victory over John D. Chapman was in the nature of an upset. He started out by winning the first two holes, taking the first with a birdie 4 and the second with a 6, and he was 3 up at the tenth hole. Then Chapman took three in a row and evened the match, only to lose it when Shannon reversed the process and gathered in the fourteenth, fifteenth and sixteenth in rapid succession.

CUBANS MAY INVADE U. S.

Proposed Plans Call for Class B Yacht Races at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—Yacht races of an international flavor between the Chicago Yacht Club and Cuban yachtsmen await only the obtaining of a trophy, Señor Francis P. Caballero, Cuban Consul here has announced.

Plans for the race have been discussed he asserted, and the use of Class B boats has been proposed because of their lightness and facility of movement. The races would be held on Lake Michigan as well as off Havana.

Billiard Results.

R. M. Steinbugler received a setback in the New York State amateur three-cushion championship tourney last night when he met defeat at the hands of H. L. Burk in one of the tournament games played at the Recreation Academy, Brooklyn. Burk's victory in his concluding game gave him a place at the top of the list, although Steinbugler still has a chance to tie Burk provided he wins from Charles Hanf in tonight's match, which will decide second place.

The score of last night's match was 30 to 17, and in addition to the victory, Burk also established a new record by completing the match in thirty-six innings. He had five runs of three, while Steinbugler had a high run of five. The victory gave Burk a record of five victories and only two defeats.

In another game in the same series Hanf defeated R. H. Everett by the score of 30 to 29 in thirty-six innings. Hanf tied the tournament high run record with a high run of six. Everett's best cluster was four. The third game played last night was won by Peter Farace, who defeated Everett by the score of 30 to 29 in sixty-one innings. Farace's high run was four, Everett's 5.

The tournaments will come to a close tonight when two games will be played. Jack Van Gelder and H. J. Millwood will be contestants in one and Hanf and Steinbugler in the other. The last pair are now tied with six victories and two defeats. To play-off for first place will be decided some evening next week, probably Tuesday.

Two games were played in the Manhattan pocket bill

NAVY ANNOUNCES THREE SCHEDULES

Southern Trip Features the Baseball List—Lacrosse and Track Dates Also Arranged.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 21.—Three schedules of Spring sports were announced today by the athletic authorities of the Naval Academy. A feature of the baseball card is the Southern trip, during which the midshipmen will meet University of North Carolina at Raleigh March 30, and Richmond College at Richmond, Va., March 31. It will mark the first time that any Navy team has gone south of Washington for a game.

Navy will play the Military Academy nine at West Point on June 2. The rest of the baseball schedule will be played at home.

The track and field team will engage in two meets away from home—the Pennsylvania relays at Philadelphia April 27 and 28, and at West Point with Army June 2.

All the lacrosse games will be played at the Naval Academy.

The at-home dates follow:

BASEBALL.

March 29, Syracuse.
April 4, Amherst; 18, Harvard; 21, William and Mary; 25, Carnegie Tech; 29, North Carolina State.
May 2, Catholic University; 5, University of West Virginia; 9, Washington and Lee; 12, University of Pittsburgh; 16, Georgetown; 19, University of Pennsylvania; 23, Gettysburg; 26, Delaware; 30, St. John's.

LACROSSE.

March 21, Stevens.
April 14, University of Maryland; 21, Lehigh; 28, University of Pennsylvania.
May 5, Penn State; 15, John's Hopkins.

TRACK AND FIELD.

April 21, University of Pittsburgh.
May 3, Columbia University; 12, Penn State; 26, Carnegie Tech.

BROWN FIVE DUE TODAY.

Basketball Team Will Meet Brooklyn Poly Prep and C. C. N. Y.

The Brown University basketball team will arrive here today for a game with Brooklyn Poly Prep in Brooklyn tonight and C. C. N. Y. in New York tomorrow night. Coach Walter M. Snell will bring a squad of ten players with him as follows:

Captain Joslyn, Dugan, Tuckerman, Wilson, Bacon, Danzell, Williams, Wagenknecht, Peters and Smock.

The coach has been drilling his men hard sice the opening game with Northeastern College and expects that they will give a good account of themselves in the games played here. After the C. C. N. Y. game, the players will go to their homes for the Christmas holidays, returning to Providence on Jan. 2.

FIVE TEAMS TO COMPETE.

College Chess Tournament Will Open Next Tuesday.

Cornell, Pennsylvania, City College, New York University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology will meet for their annual chess tournament at the rooms of the Marshall Chess Club, 135 West Twelfth Street next week, beginning Tuesday. As it will be necessary to contest five rounds, it is likely that the students will be busy until Saturday, before the championship, now held by the M. I. T. team, will be decided. The New England students, who won last year for the first time, will have two of the members of the champion team in line in W. W. Adams of Dedham, Mass., and I. Brimberg of Brooklyn. Thomas M. Edison of West Orange, N. J., son of Thomas A. Edison, has been selected for the third board, with Arne Lier of Christiana, Norway, at the fourth board. Play will begin at 10 o'clock each morning.

The list of players from which the five teams are to be selected follows:

Cornell—G. G. Neidich, '23; P. E. Allen, '23; C. K. Thomas, '21; J. Singer, '26; D. C. Haight, '26, and W. J. Bryant, '24.

Pennsylvania—G. O. Petty, Wharton, '25; S. T. Kosovsky, Mech. Eng., '26; Fred Casciato, Wharton, '25; John Harper, Arts, '24, and Henry E. Everding, Wharton, '24.

City College—A. Santaelena, '25; E. Tholfsen, '24; R. Grossman, '23, and M. Levine, '23.

New York University—H. Kabatsky, A. Adams, M. Diamond, W. Namenson, N. Sirota and S. Alpern.

Massachusetts Institute—W. W. Adams, '23; I. Brimberg, '24; T. M. Edison, '23, and Arne Lier, '23.

SKATE-SAILORS TO RACE.

Second Season of Sport Will Open at Lake Hopatcong, N. J.

The second season of skate sailing as an organized sport will be opened by a series of races in conjunction with the ice carnival and Mardi Gras at Lake Hopatcong, N. J., over the New Year's week-end. The meet will be held under the auspices of the Skate Sailing Association of America. This association will hold six official meets which will be the basis of point-scoring for classes A, B, and C and a women's championship.

These meets will be open to all amateurs whose sails comply with the association's ratings, on which information may be obtained from the office of the Secretary at 47 West Thirty-fourth Street.

The schedule for the season follows:

Dec. 30, 31 and Jan. 1—Lake Hopatcong (N. J.) Trophy meet, in conjunction with local ice carnival and Mardi Gras.

Jan. 6 and 7—Unofficial meet at Greenwood Lake, N. Y.; 13 and 14, Long Branch, N. J.; 20 and 21, open dates; 27 and 28, Nyack, N. Y. (either Rockland Lake or Hudson River, according to conditions).

Feb. 3 and 4—Greenwood Lake pennant; 10, 11 and 12, Lake Hopatcong Consolation Trophy; 17 and 18, open date; 22 (Washington's Birthday), Red Bank, N. J.; 24 and 25, open dates.

MEX PETE JUMPS 84 POINTS IN A DAY

Small Floating Supply of Spectacular Stock Sends Shares to Record High.

GOES TO 322, CLOSES AT 300

Pan-American Petroleum Still Exchanging Its Shares for Mex Pete, Doheny Says.

Mexican Petroleum common stock, in which fortunes have been won and lost on the New York Stock Exchange, advanced 84 points on the Exchange yesterday to 322, the highest price at which it has sold since the company was organized. The buying was of small volume and confined mainly to lots of 100 shares each, but because of the small floating supply little stock was offered, thus making it necessary for those who wanted the shares to bid up the price after each transaction.

Closing at 258 on Wednesday, the stock opened at 262 yesterday, an overnight gain of 4 points. Then by leaps of 5 to 10 points between sales the shares moved up to 322. Then a reaction set in which carried it down to 300, the closing price. The net gain for the day was 42 points.

Since the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company late in October announced that it would accept all outstanding stock of the Mexican Petroleum Company in exchange for stock of the Pan-American Company, speculation in Mexican Petroleum has been on the wane because of the small floating supply in Wall Street. Many speculators who had previously bought and sold the shares refrained from making commitments for fear of creating a technical position that would send the shares skyward. But during recent weeks even in the absence of activity the stock had been slowly but steadily moving into new high ground.

Many reasons were given in stock market circles for the sharp advance yesterday. The one which appeared most plausible was that with the floating supply becoming smaller each day, as a result of the exchange for stock of the Pan American Company, the few shorts believed still to have commitments outstanding, cover them in fear of a "corner."

Another explanation, and the one most generally accepted, was that the Pan American Petroleum & Transport Company was buying the stock in the open market in order to take in the remainder of stock of the latter company with the intention of eliminating the Mexican Petroleum Company as a corporate institution. The report had it that the company was willing to buy the stock up to 320@8, when this price was reached it was said that buying from the source which caused the rise ceased. Buying from other circles, however, pushed the price to 322. When this demand was satisfied, the stock immediately dropped back to 300, the price named as the limit at which Pan American would take stock.

Edward L. Doheny, Chairman of both Pan American Petroleum & Transport Company and Mexican Petroleum, when asked yesterday if the former company was buying the stock of the latter in open market, said there was no foundation for the report. He said that neither the company nor any of its officers were buying the stock in the market. He added however, that stock was still being taken from original holders when satisfactory explanation was given to the company that delivery could not be made at the time the offer to take the stock was announced. He said that about 10,000 shares had been turned over to the company within the last few weeks.

The exchange of these 10,000 shares of Mexican Petroleum for Pan American stock, he said, reduced the outstanding Mexican Petroleum stock to 18,000 shares common and 7,000 shares of preferred. The stock exchanged was taken on the basis as the stock was received from holders who turned in their shares within the time limit set by the company, except that the stock dividend of 25 per cent. announced in November and recently paid, was taken into consideration. As a result of the stock dividend, the holder of one share of Mexican Petroleum exchanged now will receive 3 1-3 shares of Pan American, whereas the original terms before the stock dividend were 2½ shares of Pan American for each share of Mexican Petroleum.

It was learned yesterday that the Mexican Petroleum Company had changed the terms under which its outstanding 8 per cent. bonds could be exchanged into the stock of the Pan American Petroleum and Transport Company. This change was in view of the first 25 per cent. stock dividend announced in November. Under the terms it is understood that the price of Pan American stock to be taken in exchange for Mexican Petroleum 8 per cent. bonds is 68.17. On this basis, it is said, the holder of each $1,000 bond of the Mexican Petroleum Company may convert said bond into 11.34 shares of the Pan American B stock.

INDICT SIX IN SEATTLE FOR NAVY YARD THEFTS

Federal Agents Allege Big Conspiracy and Recover Large Quantities of Radio Equipment.

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 21.—An alleged conspiracy to steal thousands of dollars' worth of Government property from the United States Navy Yard at Bremerton has been uncovered by Federal agents, they announced here today after a Federal Grand Jury had returned indictments charging Clifford G. Mekeel, Navy Yard employe, and Gerald Lee Clark, Bremerton merchant, with stealing equipment from Government warehouses.

The specific charge in the indictments against Mekeel and Clark is the theft of vacuum tubes and radio headsets valued at about $70. Officers working on the case have, however, recovered radio equipment valued at several thousand dollars, said to have been stolen from the navy yard, and have traced shipments of other goods to many cities and towns in the Pacific Northwest, Federal agents said. More than a score of other persons were said to be involved.

Six secret indictments were returned by the Grand Jury and bench warrants were immediately issued.

WARNED TO CEASE WOOING.

Greek Writer Ordered by Court Not to Send Love Letters to Widow.

A sentence of one year on probation with the warning that if he does not keep away from the complainant in that time he will be sent to the workhouse was passed yesterday in Washington Heights Courts upon George Petriedes, 40 years old, Greek editorial writer of 625 West 156th Street, arrested Saturday night on a charge of annoying Mrs. Effie Chambers, widow of 611 West 156th Street, by sending her ardent love letters.

"I hope you have cooled off by now," said Magistrate William A. Sweetser after reading the report of probationary officers who investigated the editor's character. The report stated the man was highly regarded by his associates, and of good character.

WAR FINANCE REPORTS AID GIVEN FARMS

Nearly Half a Billion Dollars Was Advanced in Loans Up to the End of November.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—The American farmer has demonstrated that when properly financed he can weather the worst economic storms, the War Finance Corporation declared in its annual report sent to Congress today. The report set forth that 41 per cent. of the money advanced to the agricultural industry had been repaid either in advance of maturity or when due.

Advances by the corporation saved the industry many millions of dollars, the report declared, explaining that the corporation's officers believed its activity had proved as beneficial in the restoration of confidence as in the actual pouring of cash into spots where credit was tightest. The loans had made it possible for thousands of farmers to handle their products in an orderly fashion, it was added, and the confidence instilled in them through the knowledge that money was available acted as a stabilizer, the value of which the report said could only be estimated.

"It is impossible," the report continued, "to estimate the full effect of the aid given by the corporation to the livestock industry, because calamities that are averted can never be measured. It is generally recognized, however, that by providing as it did financing for more than 6,900,000 head of livestock, the corporation checked the demoralization in the industry, gave the stockmen a breathing spell, stabilized the market, and turned the tide away from disaster toward recovery and reconstruction."

The effect of the corporation's activity on the livestock industry was typical of that on many other phases of agriculture, it was added, and satisfaction with the assistance rendered has been expressed to the corporation in countless ways.

"Large as is the number of advances made by the corporation," the report said, "it falls far short of indicating the number of farmers who benefited from them; for, even those farmers who have had no financial assistance, directly or indirectly, have nevertheless been aided by the general improvement in the credit situation in their own communities, in neighboring districts, and in the country as a whole, as well as by the stabilization of markets for the many products of agriculture."

The report added that the gradual decrease in the number of applications for loans further reflected the general benefit which the corporation's operations have had on the agricultural credit situation. Advances for agricultural and livestock purposes totaling $433,447,000 in thirty-seven States had been approved up to Nov. 30. Of this $182,895,000 went to 4,400 banking institutions; $77,761,000 to 113 livestock loan companies, and $172,827,000 to 32 co-operative marketing associations.

WORE MOTHER'S SHOES, JUDGE BUYS BOY PAIR

Adjourns Truancy Charge to Take Elderly Negress and Son Shopping.

Magistrate George W. Simpson adjourned the Municipal Term Court unexpectedly yesterday to do some Christmas shopping with Mary Glover, an elderly negro woman of 227 East 141st Street charged with violation of the Compulsory Education Law. Attendance Officer Lawrence Wollman asserted that her son Eugene, 14 years old, had not been in school on Dec. 18th and some time prior to that.

Mrs. Glover appeared in court with a mysterious bundle wrapped in newspapers under her arm. When asked by Magistrate Simpson to answer the charge she told him that Eugene couldn't go to school because he had no shoes, and that the $12 a week earned by her daughter was not enough to pay a $6 rent and support herself, her daughter, Eugene and another son eight years old. She said that Eugene was wearing her own shoes in order to appear in court.

"What are you wearing?" demanded Magistrate Simpson. Mrs. Glover showed him a pair of sneakers, once white, but long since black from the slush of early snows.

"Haven't you any other shoes than that?" asked the Magistrate.

Hereupon Mrs. Glover untied her bundle and exhibited the only other shoes the family possessed, two pairs of the vintage of 1920 with gaping holes in their bottoms and sides. Magistrate Simpson examined this new evidence carefully.

"This is a terrible case," he said. "Court is adjourned—come with me, Mrs. Glover."

Pedestrians along Park Row were much surprised a few minutes later to see a tall, well dressed gentleman guiding an elderly negro woman and her boy toward a shoe store. When the trio came out the woman was wearing her own shoes and the boy was grinning from ear to ear because he had a new pair of $6 boots on his feet.

"Think of it," said the Magistrate, "only three days before Christmas. This case will be adjourned until Jan. 4, so that Eugene can show me how well worn his boots are from walking to school."

Jury to Get Southmayd Case Today.

Before the attorneys in the contest of the will of Miss Emily F. Southmayd began summing up yesterday before Surrogate Foley, the charge of undue influence on the part of Allen W. Evarts, personal attorney and business adviser of Miss Southmayd, who renounced a cash bequest of $30,000 to testify in support of the will, was dismissed by the Surrogate. The case will go to the jury today on the issue of mental incompetency alone, after a trial of two months.

100% Dividend in Honolulu Sugar.

HONOLULU, Dec. 21.—The stockholders of C. Brewer & Co., sugar factors and commission merchants, have voted to declare a stock dividend of 100 per cent. and to increase the capital stock from $4,000,000 to $8,000,000. An extra dividend for December of 3 per cent. on the present capitalization also was voted, making the total dividends for the year 17 per cent.

BUSINESS NOTES.

In answer to a questionnaire sent out by the Silk Association of America, ninety firms have declared their intention of closing tomorrow, while eighty-four say they will close at the majority on Saturday.

The Textile Mills Corporation, High Point, N. C., manufacturers of cotton, mercerized and fibre hosiery, have opened a local sales office at 366 Broadway, where Howard D. Jobe will be in charge. Mr. Jobe has covered the territory East of Chicago for this concern for a number of years. The line is sold to the jobbing and expert trade.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Vandewart Company, Inc., 11 East Thirty-first Street, it was decided that, inasmuch as the company has experienced a very successful year, a gift of 10 per cent. of the weekly salary be given all employes. Executives of the firm will receive a substantial bonus.

Ben Pett will now cover the South for the Washington Leather Goods Company, 38-30 East Tenth Street. Bert Maier will cover local territory, Baltimore, Wilmington and Washington, D. C. Mr. Pett was twenty-two years with Hauser & Wellf, while Mr. Maier was fifteen years with the same firm. Frank L. Scott will continue to travel from Denver to the Coast. Ben Spitz will cover the Middle West, while Harry Schechet will see customers in his usual territory.

Burlap Prices Show Advance.

More active trading here in both light and heavy burlaps, coupled with a sharp advance at Calcutta as a result of heavy buying there, brought about higher prices in the local market for this merchandise yesterday. The buying at Calcutta pushed prices up generally about 30 pence a hundred yards, which resulted in the respective quotations here of 7 and 8.75 cents for 40-inch 8-ounce and 40-inch 10½-ounce cloths. Afloats were held on the basis of 7.10 cents for 8s and 8.85 cents for 10½s, with December-January shipments quoted at 7.40@7.50 cents for the former and 9 cents for the latter. The rise is believed to be the beginning of a bull market that will last for some time.

Willing to Sell Them "Seconds."

One of the more prominent concerns selling hosiery direct to the consumer by means of house-to-house canvassers, in seeking an outlet for "seconds," has recently attempted to dispose of them to retail stores with some of its canvassers are in direct competition. The current bulletin of the National Association of Hosiery and Underwear Manufacturers contains a letter sent by this concern to a retailer in the Middle West, which says in part: "We have made a flat price of $4.50 per dozen, net ten days, on these sub-standards to the stores of your State which we have invited in on this, and the price is the same regardless of the store and the quantity they can use. All that we will require of you is that you feature these goods in your store in such a manner as would warrant our giving you the exclusive sale."

Raw Silk Situation.

More activity is noted in the local raw silk market and prices incline upward, in sympathy with the stronger primary markets. Attracted by the low quotations of last week, according to H. L. Gwalter & Co., Inc., large interests have re-entered the market freely. They are covering their needs in many instances for January-February delivery in anticipation of higher prices after the turn of the year, when buying on the part of the mills will become more general. Statistically, the market is exceptionally strong, with little stock in sight in any quarter apart from the Yokohoma supplies, where arrivals will fall off in consequence of the closing down of the filatures over the Winter months. The Yokohama market has been strengthened by renewed buying for American account, which since the close of last week absorbed about 7,000 bales or more. Prices have gained 30 yen per bale and reelers are reluctant to sell. Canton has been quite active and a fair amount of business has been booked for American account, favored by a drop in silver exchange. Shanghai continues quiet, with steam filatures above the parity of Japanese silks.

To Eliminate Bad Shirtings.

A campaign looking to the ending of the use of inferior shirtings has been decided on by the National Association of Shirt Manufacturers. Inasmuch as the use of vat dyes is essential to obtain fast colors in these materials, the members of the association will hereafter use the term "vat colors" in conjunction with "fast colors," but, in order to prevent misuse of these terms, manufacturers will be actively discouraged from using the expression "vat colors" unless such dyes have actually been made use of. Another move of importance to the shirt industry and the public that has been decided on by the association, according to a statement issued yesterday by Secretary A. F. Allison, is to take steps to end the misuse of the term "broadcloth." This fabric has become very popular for shirtings in the last three years, and the association will give all the aid it can to the Federal Trade Commission, or any other agency, in abolishing the misuse of the word.

January Clothing Offerings.

Although opposition to clearance sales next month has been manifested by certain local clothing retailers, there seems little reason to believe that these events will be less general. It is pointed out that many clothiers need the business this season because of the comparatively slow movement of suits up to this time. They have had an excellent demand for overcoats but, it is said, this has only partly made up for the comparative dullness in suits. A further indication that the sales will be featured strongly out of town is the fact that quite a few retailers in the last week have been in the market, looking for cheap values to use as "sugar" to help in the moving of their stock. The number of such buyers visiting the local market is thought likely to increase after the turn of the year. Many are also looking for overcoats for these sales, which accounts for the continued seasonal activity of manufacturers of these garments.

More Call for Stout Wear.

In studying the stout-wear situation as it developed this Fall, manufacturers of these garments say the possibilities in the broadening of the demand have been amply illustrated. Retailers' sales have been good from the time the season opened, with many of them reporting that the stout customer was turning to specialized garments more and more. The number of retailers who gave marked attention to this class of trade also increased. The manufacturers are therefore now opening their Spring lines with strong assurance of a good season. As was evident during the Fall, the aim will be to produce slenderizing effects in the garments. This is the big point which has been played up and which is declared responsible for the success, as the former lines had little or no appeal. Special treatment will be given the suits to achieve this end, with the three-piece kind especially prominent, as in the case of the regular "lines."

Fall Woolen Prices.

That stage in the preparation of the heavyweight woolen lines has now been reached, it is understood, where definite price quotations for the forthcoming opening have been formulated. Heretofore these have been more or less of a tentative and approximate nature as further indications of market conditions were necessary. But, while known only to a few, it is believed price ideas have now been developed into concrete form. Just what they will reveal in the matter of advances by the leading producer the trade would like to know. It seems practically certain that no average recession below the advanced Spring level will be made, as raw wool prices are deemed to prohibit this. But on certain staples and semi-staples, particularly some featured cloths, there will undoubtedly be close pricing. The relative position of woolens and worsteds in the prospective range is considered of major importance.

Gray Goods Sales Lighter.

With the approach of the holiday, gray goods are quieting down locally, and yesterday's business, from all accounts, was substantially less than that of the day before. Further contract business was done in printcloths, however, on the basis of 10¼ cents for 38½-inch 64-60s and 11 cents for 39-inch 68-72s, both for January-March delivery. Sellers were asking 9 cents for 38½-inch 60-48s. Lightweight sheetings were a bit more active than the heavy ones yesterday, though neither appeared to be especially sought. Five-yard sheetings were held at 9¾ cents, and 5 cents was asked for 6.15s. Some contract business on 5.50s was reported at 8⅜ cents, with 8¼ cents paid for some spot cloths of this construction. For 72-80 pajama cloths buyers paid 11¼ cents, and sateens were firmly held on the basis of 18 cents for 39-inch 4.20s.

Will Combine Their Models.

One of the most novel plans yet attempted to increase business in women's ready-to-wear garments is to be undertaken soon as a result of a meeting of representatives of the United Waist League of America with those of several of the leading local skirt manufacturers. The plan provides for the interchange of blouse and skirt models by the manufacturers who take part in the movement. This will not only bring about a better display of both classes of merchandise, it is contended, but it will be mutually effective in keeping them before the buyers. While the blouse manufacturers will not actually endeavor to sell the skirts they use for display purposes, or vice versa, the possibility of indirect sales of both by suggestion is always present. Manufacturers willing to take part in the movement are now being listed by the Waist League, and a second meeting in connection with the matter will be held in the near future.

Bandannas Well Liked.

Among silks of a so-called specialty nature, the demand for bandannas continues strong. They are being offered in local stores of prominence, and an increasing call for them is reported from those which serve the resort trade. At first they were considered by some to have possibilities of sale for only a short period. But certain distributers of them say their vogue abroad appears unabated and that the Spring demand will be substantial. The number and variety of the designs in which they are being produced is large, with Paisley and Oriental effects among the more noteworthy. Color has been stressed, and practically every high shade is available.

PHILADELPHIA BANKS MERGE

One Directory for Bank of North America and Commercial Trust.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 21.—A $10,000,000 bank merger was announced today, when the Directors of the Bank of North America and of the Commercial Trust Company met separately and approved a plan to consolidate under the name of the Bank of North America and Trust Company. The capital and surplus of the merged banks will be $10,000,000.

The Bank of North America is the oldest in America, founded in 1781 by Robert Morris as one result of financing the American Revolution. It is said to be by act of Congress the only National bank in the United States operating without the word "National" in its title.

John H. Mason, President of the trust company, will become Chairman of the board, and E. Pusey Passmore, President of the National bank and former Governor of the Philadelphia Federal Reserve Bank, will be President.

Capital Increase Fees May Swell State's Income by $500,000.

TRENTON, Dec. 21.—Since the first of last month the corporation department of the Secretary of State's office has been literally swamped with the filing of certificates of increase of capital stocks by corporations.

The object of the increases appears to have been to declare stock dividends.

Secretary of State Thomas F. Martin anticipates collection of approximately $500,000 by the corporation department in filing fees for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923.

He also stated that the State would receive several hundred thousands of dollars additional through franchise taxes imposed upon miscellaneous corporations.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Most Changes in Stocks Fractional, a Few Violent Advances—Exchange Firmer.

In legitimate business from the general public, yesterday's stock market dwindled to small proportions, but it was something of a fieldday in sales and purchases by professional speculators to and from one another. In the course of this highly useful demonstration, a number of stocks were put up 2 points or more; but the position of highest dignity was achieved by that longtime favorite of Stock Exchange manipulators, Mexican Petroleum. To get into their own hands a good part of the outstanding shares, then bid the price up 30 points or so in a single week and then let it sell down to where it stood before, has been a familiar practice of the gentlemen identified with the property. Yesterday the stock gave a new exhibition, fully in character. Having been put up 16 points this week before Wednesday's closing, it was advanced 64 more in the earlier hours yesterday, and ended the day only 22 points below the highest.

There was no secret about the matter. By means of a continuous process of turning Mexican Petroleum stock into another "holding company," the shares actually outstanding have been reduced nearly 95 per cent. Application of the abounding manipulative energies of the group behind the stock to the trifling supply remaining could hardly produce any smaller movement. To this it is necessary to add, however, that the performance was a Wall Street scandal, and that it would as rightly invite the lash of the constituted authorities as did the similarly impudent "Stutz Motors" exploit of 1920.

Further though not rapid recovery in foreign exchange rates brought sterling to $4.64¾ yesterday, a price very nearly half-way between the low point of the previous day's reaction and the high point of a week before. This quick recovery from the decline that had followed the 19-cent advance in barely a fortnight is an interesting side-light on the market's attitude. Judging by precedent, the rate should now fluctuate for some time in the neighborhood of present figures. But on the other hand, not only has the European economic situation been changing somewhat rapidly but the political atmosphere is just now charged with electricity. Since last week we have learned what will not be done about a German loan and German reparations, but before very long we may conceivably learn what is going to be done. Many proposals which the dispatches describe are manifestly tentative; but the adjourned conference of Premiers reconvenes at Paris eleven days from now, and meantime the United States Government has certainly entered the field of negotiation.

The outstanding point of interest in the weekly Federal Reserve report was the decrease of $15,300,000 in gold holdings. This is not as large as the $27,100,000 decrease of the first week in December, which was shown by the subsequent week's $15,400,000 increase to have been partly a matter of bookkeeping. But "gold in transit" does not affect comparisons over a long period, and the salient fact is that, with something like $25,000,000 surplus of gold imports over gold exports since Oct. 11, the gold reserve at the Federal Banks has decreased $44,070,000 in the period.

The explanation is not difficult; any one can discover it by counting the lately unfamiliar $20 gold certificates in his Christmas pocket-money. Outlook for the money market is plainly enough indicated in the week's $44,200,000 reduction of rediscounts, making $89,400,000 reduction in two weeks after $90,300,000 expansion in the preceding fortnight. Equally interesting, and in the opposite direction, was the system's increase of $77,500,000 in note circulation during the past week; which not only brings it to the high point of the year but to the highest since the second week of October, 1921.

MONEY.

THURSDAY, DEC. 21, 1922.

Stock Exchange call loan rate firmed to 5 per cent. near close, from an opening and renewal at 4½, but majority of loans were arranged at minimum. Borrowers freely bid 4¾ per cent. for fixed period loans, while banks continued to ask 5, on all maturities. A few loans for near dates were arranged at 4½ per cent. Inquiry for commercial paper has broadened, but without quotable variation in discount of 4¾@5 per cent.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC GAINS.

Net Operating Income for Eleven Months is $43,504,087.

The Southern Pacific Company in its report of November operations showed gross business amounting to $24,099,231, an increase of $2,180,321 over November a year ago. Expenses mounted $36,020 to $17,068,677, and net railway operating income for the month stood at $4,918,358, an increase of $2,277,671 over a year ago. The gain in net earnings was due to increased gross business, of which freight traffic amounted to $1,564,198 more than last year, passenger revenues $207,846 more and express revenues $241,019 more.

For the first eleven months of the year the company showed gross revenues of $239,062,567, a decrease of $10,138,786 as compared with the corresponding period of 1921. Railway operating expenses for the eleven months were $175,618,333, a decrease of $16,909,451, and net railway operating income stood at $43,504,087, an increase of $6,085,051 as compared with a year ago. During the month of November this year the management spent $4,596,320 for maintenance of equipment, an increase of $614,706 over last year, and $3,194,789 for maintenance of way, a decrease of $485,944 from a year ago.

Moon Motors Reports Earnings.

Net earnings for the nine months ended Sept. 30 of the Moon Motors Company are placed at $552,126, which, after preferred dividend, is equivalent to approximately $3.50 on the common stock. The corporation's January production schedule is for 1,000 cars.

CONSOLIDATED OUSTS BRAID

Expels Member for Dealings With E. M. Fuller & Co.

The Board of Governors of the Consolidated Stock Exchange of New York yesterday expelled J. Harold Braid of the firm of Braid & Vogel from membership in the Exchange. The expulsion was for violation of sections 1 and 4 of Article III. of the by-laws. The vote for expulsion was unanimous. The specific charge against Braid, who had been a member of the Exchange since Feb. 16, 1922, was furnishing fictitious names for E. M. Fuller & Co.

Braid was the State's most important witness at the first trial of E. M. Fuller, but disappeared when Fuller was brought to trial a second time. He had been summoned to appear before the Board of Governors of the Consolidated Exchange yesterday afternoon, but did not appear and nothing was heard of him.

Approve Sterling Products Increase.

Stockholders of the Sterling Products Company at a special meeting held yesterday approved an increase in the company's stock by authorizing the sale of 100,547 additional shares of stock of no par value. Stockholders of record Dec. 29 will be given the privilege to buy this new stock at $50 a share on the basis of one share of the new for each five shares now held. The proceeds of the sale will be used to buy the business of Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company, Inc.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Reverses in Stock Prices.

Following the reaction in prices on Wednesday, the general market recovered yesterday, and more than made up the losses reported on the preceding day. The oil stocks were again most prominent, with a sensational gain in Mexican Petroleum and accompanying strength in Pan American issues. Other petroleum stocks which were higher included California Petroleum, General Asphalt, Royal Dutch, Sinclair and Houston. The Standard Oils, both those listed on the Exchange and those traded in over the counter, were similarly strong, with sympathetic strength in the unlisted independent issues. The activity and advance in the oils is in part due to short covering, but Wall Street asscribed it also to the belief which prevails in the trade that higher prices for crude will be witnessed shortly after the close of the year. In the general list the prominent issues included Baldwin Locomotive, which moved up 3¾ points; United Retail Stores and American Locomotive Marine preferred, which had been heavy of late in connection with dividend uncertainties, moved up to 48¾ during the day on reports that a $1.50 semi-annual dividend would be declared, whereas previous rumors had it that the dividend would be passed. Railroad stocks as a group were firm, partly as a result of the car-loading returns published late Wednesday. Reading, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway and a few others scored gains of a point or more.

The Rise in Mexican Petroleum.

Mexican Petroleum was again the star performer on the Stock Exchange, yesterday. The stock sold up to 322, the highest at which it ever sold in the history of the company. At that level it showed a gain of 64 points over the close of Wednesday. At its final price of 300 it showed a net gain of 42 points. Virtually all the transactions were confined to lots of 100 shares. There were many reports circulated in the financial district to explain the rise. It was said generally that the company was buying the stock in order to absorb the small floating supply, which now amounts to little more than 18,000 shares, this representing stock that has not been turned into Pan-American's treasury under its recent offering. Officials of the company, however, denied that either the company or its officers were buying the stock in the open market, but said that any outstanding stock would still be exchanged if satisfactory explanation was given. On the Stock Exchange it was reported that the company would buy all stock offered up to 300. The explanation which was generally accepted was that a few remaining shorts decided to cover before the floating supply became much smaller, and that a severe "squeezing process" had been applied to them.

Stock and Bond Markets.

Stocks, taken as a whole, took the centre of the stage from bonds yesterday. There was a sufficient amount of pyrotechnics in a selected few stocks to keep the stock market on tiptoe all day, but in the bond market just about all of the interest centred in the first two hours, after which the bond traders had little to do but twiddle their thumbs and discuss next year's market. The flattening out of trading did not appear to weaken the tone. It was merely a widening of the bid and asked prices on most bonds, which usually are active to a point where dealings drop off and, in the language of the traders, the market "oiled on their hands." One incident of the day was the rise in the new United States Treasury 4¼s to the highest point reached since the October reaction.

In the Season of Good Wishes.

In making up his list of Christmas presents one market follower extended it to include a few theoretical wishes which might be made. He suggested that the one wish of the shipping industry this year is for a subsidy; of the steel and railroad industries, less governmental interference; for copper, a big German loan; for the petroleum industry, more and more automobiles. The list might even be extended to individual stocks. Texas Company would probably ask for less friends; Mexican Seaboard for more friends; North American Oil for a market; the independent steels, forgiveness for their wartime price policies; Piggly Wiggly, a pool manager who would not go short of the stock; Pan American Petroleum, all of the Mexican Petroleum floating supply; Davison Chemical, less silica gel; Central Pacific, knowledge of just whether the big boss will be Union Pacific or Southern Pacific; all Standard Oils, less Senatorial attention; Chesapeake & Ohio, the price of the Van Sweringen "call"; United States Steel common, protection from its fool friends who agitate for a distribution of the surplus.

***

Buffalo & Susquehanna.

Another outstanding upturn in the market yesterday which created wide interest was the sale of 200 shares of Buffalo & Susquehanna Railroad, the first transaction since last March. The stock closed at 115, an advance of 42½ points, and a movement which was explained in local financial quarters by the special dividend of $10 declared recently, payable Dec. 30 to stock of record Dec. 15.

***

New Bond Offerings.

In addition to the foreign bonds to be offered in the New York market when the year turns, as enumerated in this column yesterday, it is learned that there are several important deals under way for new domestic financing, some of which, at least, will be with common and preferred stocks and some with bonds. One of the important automobile companies is angling for a new bond issue to retire its floating debt; there probably will be stock financing to complete terms of a steel merger now brewing, and a bond issue for the packing merger under consideration. In addition, one sugar company wants to retire bonds and issue stocks therefor, provided the market holds; there may be new financing in connection with an equipment company merger, and one or two additional textile companies are dickering for new money, to retire floating indebtedness and start them off again with a clean slate. Taken all together, from present indications, a very pleasant and lively time is going to be had by all in the investment market during the early part of the year.

Michigan Central.

The sale of five shares of Michigan Central stock at $830, an advance of $20 over the last sale, revived the report yesterday that the New York Central, which already controls 90 per cent. of the company, was seeking to gain the minority stock. Officials of the company explained that they have expressed their willingness to certain banking interests to purchase additional Michigan Central stock if it were offered them at the right price, and it was assumed in transportation quarters that the jump in the stock was due to this situation. As of December, 1921, the New York Central owned $16,819,300 of the total outstanding issue of $18,738,000.

The "Ex-Strike" Railway Shares.

Substantial advances were made yesterday by many of the railway shares, a development which created wide interest on account of the lethargic attitude of these stocks lately. There was little news mentioned as accountable for the rise, but one railway specialist observed that the big bulk of the advances were registered by the companies who settled with their strikers early in the Fall on one basis or another. According to his survey, the railways in the Eastern territories which had not yet settled with the shopmen had about 40 per cent. of their equipment in the repair shops or awaiting repairs, while the other roads were making money, with the result that advice to clients was, "Buy the ex-strike stocks." Advances of a point or more were made by Chesapeake & Ohio, St. Paul common, Northwestern, Lehigh Valley, New York Central, New York, Chicago & St. Louis, Norfolk & Western, Reading, Southern Pacific and Union Pacific.

Central Indiana Power Company

7% Cumulative Preferred Stock

Price 90 and Accrued Dividend to yield 7.78%

Listed on the Chicago Stock Exchange

The territory served includes Indianapolis and other prosperous and growing cities and towns in Indiana with a total population in excess of 500,000.

Through the construction of a 40,000 K. W. central station on its own coal lands, the company is inaugurating a comprehensive plan to provide for the power requirements of this territory which greatly exceed the supply.

The consistent increase in earnings and the excellent field for large and profitable growth of business make this preferred stock a particularly desirable investment.

PAN-AMERICAN BUYS ARKANSAS OIL PLOT

Acquires 120 Acres in Smackover Field and Has Started to Drill Well.

PLAN 22 STORAGE TANKS

Output of District Is of Low Grade, but Is Suitable for Fuel Purposes.

The Pan American Petroleum and Transport Company which now owns approximately 97 per cent. of the capital stock of the Mexican Petroleum Company has bought acreage in the new Smackover oil field in Arkansas, according to an official announcement made by Edward L. Doheny, Chairman of the Board of Directors.

According to Mr. Doheny the company has taken over 120 acres in the Smackover field and has already started to drill a well, the rig having already been placed, according to latest telegraphic advices. In addition to this, he said the company has taken over an additional 160 acres which will serve as a tank farm to store the oil as it is produced.

The tank farm will consist of 22 storage tanks with a capacity of 80,000 barrels each. Two tanks were in the field and were purchased by the company to be moved to its property. The contracts for the remaining twenty tanks have not been let as yet, as many companies are bidding for the business and it will take a few days before all bids can be scrutinized.

The oil produced in the Smackover field is of low grade, but can easily be used for fuel. The price quoted at present time is low in comparison with oil produced in other sections of the country, but this is because of the large production for which there are inadequate facilities to bring to market. The situation has been relieved to some extent by the completion of a pipe line a few days ago by the Standard Oil Company of Louisiana, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

The amount of Pan American Petroleum's investment in the field or the price paid for the new acreage was not made public.

BONUS FOR MANY EMPLOYES

Banks and Brokerage Firms Announce Christmas Distributions.

Nuberous banking institutions and brokerage firms yesterday announced the declaration of Christmas bonuses for employes. The Metropolitan Trust Company, following its practice of many years, will pay its employes an amount equal to 10 per cent. of their salaries for the current year. In addition, the firm will give a dinner party at the Hotel Astor.

The trustees of the New York Trust Company declared the usual Christmas bonus to officers and employes. Directors of the Fulton Trust Company voted a bonus of 10 per cent. of the annual salary for each employe. The same amount is being distributed by the Chamical National Bank. The Federal Foreign Banking Association will distribute a bonus amounting to 5 per cent. of the annual salary. The Bank of America's foreign department held its annual Christmas dinner last night. Edward C. Delafield was the guest of honor.

Among the brokerage houses which distributed bonuses to employes were Edward B. Smith & Co., which is distributing amounts varying according to length of service, ranging from 10 to 50 per cent. of their salaries, and L. D. Stanton & Co., whose employes received 20 per cent. of their salaries. The annual Christmas party of the employes of the American Surety Company will be held in the company's offices today.

YELLOW TAXI FINANCE PLAN.

To Retire Preferred Stock and Increase Amount of Common.

The Yellow Taxi Corporation of New York yesterday announced the details of its plan of recapitalization. The company, whose Board of Directors is made up entirely of local men, will retire the 5,500 shares of preferred stock now outstanding at $110 a share. The common stock, of which there are now 10,500 shares, will be increased to 100,000 shares of no par value. The present holders of common stock may exchange their holdings for the new issue.

A statement issued by the company yesterday says that a block of the new stock will be distributed on the New York Curb Market by Block, Maloney & Co., at $55 a share. The proceeds of the sale of this stock will approximate $2,500,000, and of this part will be used to retire the preferred stock and the remainder to purchase 500 additional cabs. These cabs will be purchased at once, as the order for them has already been issued. At the same time the company will construct five new garages in addition to the five already in operation.

Drivers and other employes of the company will be given the opportunity to subscribe for from one to five shares, to be paid for over a period of two years. Many employes hold the old common stock and will participate in the new arrangement.

No Action by Pacific Development.

Stockholders of the Pacific Development Corporation at their meeting yesterday took no action in regard to the proposed reorganization plan calling for the financing of the Anderson & Meyer Company, Ltd., a subsidiary. The meeting was adjourned subject to the call of the Chairman.

Royal Bank of Canada Report.

The annual statement of the Royal Bank of Canada for the fiscal year ended Nov. 30, shows total assets of $479,362,366, of which liquid assets are $216,048,331. The deposits amount to $372,003,961, of which $277,595,862 bear interest.

Stock Offered to Employes.

As a forerunner to an offering of a block of common stock of Fleischmann Company in the near future, it was announced yesterday by W. E. Hutton & Co. that a block of the shares has been offered to employes of the corporation at $25, on a partial payment plan.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The Guaranty Trust Company of New York announces that it has been appointed trustee as well as registrar and paying agent under the Green Engineering Company first mortgage dated Oct. 1, 1922, securing $225,000 principal amount of first mortgage 7 per cent. gold bonds maturing $75,000 face amount annually on Oct. 1, 1924, 1925 and 1926.

The Equitable Trust Company of New York has been appointed registrar of the stock of the Vacuum Oil Company.

Henry Goldman Jr., Thomas G. Campbell and Cyprish A. Toolan will be admitted to the firm of L. M. Prince & Co. on Jan. 1, 1923.

Walter J. Lee has joined the bond department of Chauncey Hayes & Lord.

H. B. Mundorff, formerly with the Federal Reserve Bank, is now associated with Parker, Robinson & Co. of 120 Broadway in their sales department.

Harris, Abbott & Co. announce that Robert P. Clarke will be associated with them in their bond department after Jan. 1.

Edward W. Clucas has issued a circular discussing the relative investment features of Cities Service series "B" and series "C" debentures.

Charles J. Peabody will withdraw from the firm of Spencer Trask & Co. on Jan. 1, after an active partnership of thirty-five years.

MANY CORPORATIONS INCREASE DIVIDENDS

Prairie Pipe Line Now on an Annual Basis of $8, Following 200 Per Cent. Payment.

VICTOR TALKING MACHINE $2

Several New England Textile Companies About to Declare Stock Dividends.

The Directors of the Prairie Pipe Line Company yesterday declared a quarterly dividend of $2 a share on its increased capital, thus placing the stock on an $8 annual dividend basis. This dividend is payable Jan. 31 to stock of record Dec. 27. Only recently the company paid a 200 per cent. stock dividend, so that the payment declared yesterday is equal to $6 a share on the old stock on which $5 quarterly was paid, $3 of which was regular and $2 in the form of an extra payment.

The quarterly dividend on the capital stock of the Singer Manufacturing Company was increased yesterday from $1.25 to $1.75 a share, payable Dec. 30 to stock of record Dec. 15. Stockholders of the company recently approved an increase in capital from $90,000,000 to $120,000,000, from which Directors were expected to declare a 33 1-3 per cent. stock dividend. It was said yesterday the company would not declare the stock dividend for the present.

Directors of the Victor Talking Machine Company yesterday declared the first dividend on the common stock since the capital of the ompany was inreased recently. The dividend amounts to $2 a share quarterly and is payable Jan. 15 to stock of record Dec. 30. The regular dividend on the preferred was also declared payable as of the same dates. The dividend of $2 a share declared on the common stock is equal to $14 a share paid on the old stock before the stock dividend was distributed.

The Pacific Gas and Electric Company, according to advices received in Wall Street from San Francisco, has declared an extra dividend of $2 a share on the common stock in addition to a regular quarterly payment of $1.50 a share. Besides the extra dividend, the regular dividend is an increase over that paid in the previous quarter, which was $1.25 a share. Thus the stock is placed on a $6 annual basis as compared with $5 paid previously. The regular dividend is payable Jan. 15 to stock of record Dec. 30. The extra dividend is payable to stockholders of record Dec. 30, subject to the approval of the California Railroad Commission.

An extra dividend of 10 per cent. was declared on the common stock of the National Licorice Company yesterday. The dividend is payable Jan. 9 to stock of record Dec. 21.

The semiannual dividend of 8 per cent. declared on the capital stock of the Mexican Eagle Company is equivalent to 39.8 cents a share at the present rate of exchange. The dividend, which is payable Dec. 31, will be distributed by the American Exchange National Bank upon presentation of Coupon 20 for common shares and 27 for the preferred.

A special meeting of the stockholders of the Sanford Mills of Sanford, Me., has been called for Dec. 27 for the purpose of approving an increase in capital from $2,500,000 to $7,500,000. It is understood that the new stock will be distributed in the form of a 200 per cent. stock dividend. The Lowell Bleachery Company, according to Boston advices, has increased its capital from $800,000 to $1,200,000 for the purpose of declaring a 50 per cent. stock dividend. The dividend will be paid to stockholders of record Dec. 15. The Algonquin Printing Company has increased its capital from $500,000 to $1,000,000 for the purpose of declaring a 100 per cent. dividend.

LOWER LONDON RESERVE RATIO, NOTE ISSUE UP

Further Reduction of 20,514,000 Francs in the French Paper Currency.

The weekly statement of the Bank of England shows the following changes:

Gold coin and bullion	Decreased £2,228

Ratio of reserve	17.02	14.63	7.75

The Bank of England's official minimum discount rate remained unchanged at 3 per cent., to which it had been reduced from 3½ on June 15. At this date of 1921 the rate stood at 5 per cent., in 1920 at 7 per cent., at 6 in 1919, 5 in 1918 and 1917, 6 in 1916, and 5 in 1915 and 1914.

The weekly statement of the Bank of France shows the following changes, in francs:

Gold in hand	Increased 132,000
Silver in hand	Increased 147,000
Notes in circulation	Decreased 20,514,000
Treasury deposits	Decreased 2,139,000
General deposits	Increased 5,860,000
Bills discounted	Decreased 151,986,000
Advances	Decreased 27,523,000

The State borrowed from the bank 500,000,000 francs. Advances by the bank to the State are now 23,200,000,000 francs, against 24,500,000,000 francs a year ago this week.

The principal items in the statement compare as follows with the same date one and two years ago, in francs:

Gold	5,534,530,825	5,524,164,900	5,499,977,860
Silver	288,984,000	279,582,495	265,768,595

LONDON, Dec. 21.—The Stock Exchange here will be closed Dec. 25 and 26 and Jan. 1.

FAVORS ARBITRATION BILL.

It Will Save Business Men Millions, Says Charles L. Bernheimer.

The Federal Arbitration bill, which was introduced yesterday in the House by Congressmen Ogden L. Mills of New York and in the Senate by Senator Thomas Sterling of South Dakota, will save the business men of the country millions of dollars each year, according to Charles L. Bernheimer, Chairman of the Committee on Arbitration of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York. Mr. Bernheimer, who is recognized as an authority on arbitration, was largely instrumental in having bill drawn.

In speaking of the measure yesterday Mr. Bernheimer said that it would go a long way to cure the "cancer of modern business," the cancellation of contracts which were said to tie up $3,000,000 worth of goods in this country during 1919 and 1920.

"If this bill is enacted," said Mr. Bernheimer, "as I confidently believe it will be, contracts between individuals, corporations and firms doing an interstate business, providing they have agreed to arbitrate, will be made enforceable, valid and irrevocable, just as contracts made in New York State under the terms of the Walton act are today."

MAIL ORDER SALES GROW.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. Up 30%, Montgomery Ward & Co. Nearly 50.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—Sears, Roebuck & Co.'s sales for December are expected to show an increase of from 30 to 35 per cent. over a year ago. Those of Montgomery Ward & Co. are expected to show a gain of nearly 50 per cent. above December, 1921.

It was reported that Sears, Roebuck & Co. would close 1922 with about $17,000,000 debts and in April would call their $16,500,000 notes due next October, but President Rosenwald said: "We have had no such plan in mind."

"We have had a large business," he added, "the heaviest for December, at least in respect to the number of orders, on record. In the first two and a half weeks we averaged at the rate of more than 1,000,000 orders weekly in the four stores. Prices averaged a little less than a year ago."

Exchange Seat Sells at $93,000.

The New York Stock Exchange membership of Clarence H. Hensel was sold yesterday to La Motte T. Cohu, for $93,000. The seat of Benjamin Fleisher was sold to Thomas M. Howell for $91,000. The last previous sale was for $93,000. The membership of W. Heyward Drayton, 3d, was transferred to Worthington Davis for a nominal consideration.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Tone of Exchanges Strong, Despite Narrow Dealings and Professional Market.

Despite the fact that pre-holiday influences were felt in all centres yesterday, and the market was only mildly active, foreign exchanges exhibited a firm to strong tone, with the majority of them closing at or near the top prices of the day, overcoming entirely the midday uncertainty.

Sterling, for instance, in comparison with the $4.65⅞ of the previous day, sold but fractionally lower than that point, and then advanced to $4.64¾, closing at $4.64⅞. Francs followed much the same course, although the range was a much narrower one than in sterling, while lira maintained its entire gain from 5.06 to 5.09 cents.

Most of the bankers and foreign exchange dealers here say that the market is to large extent a professional one, small in volume, and ruled almost entirely by the activity at London. Possibly the most interesting development of the week at this centre has been the increase in offering of common and grain bills, most of them drawn in terms of sterling exchange.

In the subjoined table the quotation on sterling represents dollars and decimals of a dollar; all others represent cents and decimals of a cent. Quotations preceded by the decimal mark indicate a price measured in fractions of a cent.

OFFER BOND ISSUE OF TOOL COMPANY

S. W. Straus & Co. to Market $1,500,000 of Bullard Machine to Yield 6½%.

PLACE CONTINENTAL CAN

Private Investors Acquire $2,000,000 of 7% Cumulative Preferred Stock.

An issue of $1,500,000 6½ per cent. first mortgage serial coupon bonds of the Bullard Machine Tool Company of Bridgeport and Fairfield, Conn., maturing in from two to fifteen years, was purchased yesterday by S. W. Straus & Co. The bonds will be offered at par. They constitute a closed first mortgage on the land, buildings and equipment, owned and to be acquired by the borrower. The coupons are payable June 15 and Dec. 15.

The $2,000,000 of additional 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock of the Continental Can Company, Inc., recently authorized by the Board of Directors, has been placed with private investors by Lehman Brothers and Goldman, Sachs & Co. at a substantial premium. This places the entire amount of unsold treasury stock of the corporation in the hands of investors. The corporation will close the current calendar year with earnings of approximately $8 a share on its no par value capital stock that will be outstanding after the new shares of common stock have been issued in exchange for the present $100 par value stock. Recently the Directors declared an initial dividend of 75 cents a share on this non par value stock, or at the rate of $3 a share a year, or $8 a year on the present $100 par value stock.

William R. Compton & Co. of New York and the Mercantile Trust and Deposit Company of Baltimore are offering a new issue of $800,000 City of Petersburg, Va., 4½ per cent. bonds, dated Dec. 1, 1922, and due Dec. 1, 1962, at a price to yield 4.40 per cent. The bonds are a direct obligation of the city and the proceeds will be used for extension of water-works, and for the erection of an armory, municipal market, bridges and school buildings.

Lamport, Barker & Jennings, Inc., are offering a new issue of $136,000 Town of Morristown, N. J. gold refunding 4.30 per cent. bonds, maturing serially from 1923 to 1956, at prices to yield 4.15 per cent. to 4.125 per cent. The bonds are legal investment for savings banks and trust funds in New York and New Jersey.

Farson, Son & Co. are offering an issue of $60,000 6 per cent. serial bonds of Little River County, Ark., school district, a par, tax exempt in the district, maturing serially from 1928 to 1947. The district is located in an agricultural section of Arkansas.

PALESTINE BONDS OFFERED.

Township of Tel-Aviv £75,000 Issue on Sale Today.

What is described by the bankers as the first Jewish bond issue in history was announced for today by Harvey Fisk & Sons, Inc. It is of the Township of Tel-Aviv, in Palestine, and is for £75,000, offered at $460 per £100 and interest, at which the yield to the investor is about 6½ per cent. With sterling at par, the yield is increased to more than 7 per cent. to maturity.

The township was founded by a group of sixty families in 1909. It now has a population of 12,000, private property valued at £2,000,000 and municipal property valued at £5,000. The loan is for public utility purposes, including sewerage, electricity, water installations and road construction.

The loan is to be redeemed in the course of twenty years, the payment of the principal commencing Jan. 2, 1928. Bonds are to be redeemed by public drawings held semi-annually in Tel-Aviv, the results of which will be published in the United States and Palestine.

Columbia Gas & Electric Earnings.

The Columbia Gas and Electric Company in its report for November showed gross earnings of $1,716,407, an increase of $243,281 over last year, and surplus, after charges, amounting to $600,571, an increase of $82,813 over November, 1921. For the first eleven months of the year the company reported a surplus, after charges, of $4,804,550, an increase of $800,417, as against the same period of 1921.

WANTS RAIL BODY NAMED.

New York Trade and Transportation Board Appeals to Smith.

Following refusal by Governor Miller to take action, as he leaves office soon, the New York Board of Trade and Transportation has asked Governor-elect Smith for the early appointment of a special Railroad Commission to hold hearings upon the proposed consolidation of railroads as provided by the Interstate Commerce act.

Such has been the degree of public interest awakened by the New York Board of Trade and Transportation's efforts to have special commissions of this character appointed by the Governors of New York and the other States of that group that the officers of the board here have been daily in receipt of telegrams and letters from commercial organizations and State authorities throughout the territory asking for information and advice concerning the possible effect of railway consolidations upon the ports and larger trade centres," said Secretary Frank S. Gardner of the board in a statement yesterday.

OIL PRODUCTION INCREASES.

Imports, However, Show a Decrease for Week Ending Dec. 16.

Crude oil production in the United States during the week ended Dec. 16 averaged 1,682,000 barrels daily, according to estimates of the American Petroleum Institute. This compares with 1,657,750 barrels in the previous week and 1,359,105 barrels in the corresponding week last year.

The imports of petroleum (crude and refined oils) at the principal United States ports for the week ended Dec. 16 totaled 1,619,565 barrels, a daily average of 231,367 barrels, compared with 2,539,819 barrels, a daily average of 362,831 barrels, for the week ended Dec. 9.

SUES FOR W. J. BURNS BILL.

Assignee Seeks $4,206 for Cleaning Up of Bridgeport, Conn.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 21.—Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins began hearing testimony today in a suit brought by Randall W. Borough as assignee of the William J. Burns International Detective Agency, to recover $4,206, balance due the agency, it is alleged, for services in clearing Bridgeport, Conn., of vice and gambling in 1920.

The suit was brought against John Stanley, former President of the Police Commission, and former Mayor Clifford Wilson of Bridgeport, it being alleged that they had promised to become personally responsible in case the city failed to make good. According to the complaint, the total amount charged the city was $35,862.21 and the amount sued for was the balance due.

The defense is that the agency was overpaid for its services.

Allen O. Myers, a detective of the agency, testified that the agency had at one time as many as seventy-five detectives in Bridgeport and that several were arrested to deceive the persons really sought.

It was brought out that the campaign grew out of differences between the Mayor and Prosecuting Attorney.

DIVIDEND DECLARED OUT OF ITS SURPLUS

International Mercantile Marine Did Not Earn Enough to Pay One.

HURT BY SHIPPING BOARD

Revenue Seriously Affected by Competition of Government Vessels With Cut Rates.

The Directors of the International Mercantile Marine Company yesterday declared a dividend of 1½ per cent. on the cumulative preferred stock, payable out of surplus account, as earnings were not sufficient to show anything earned on the preferred shares, after depreciation and other charges. The dividend, which is payable Feb. 1 to stockholders of record Jan. 16, is the first change in the regular dividend made by the company since payments started in August, 1917. Since that time the company has been paying the regular semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent., and in addition numerous extra payments were made for the purpose of liquidating the back dividend due on these shares. The accumulated dividends now due to be paid on the preferred stock amount to 43½ per cent.

P. A. S. Franklin, President of the company, in a statement issued after the meeting, said that "the estimated combined earnings of the International Mercantile Marine Company and its subsidiaries for 1922 showed that bond interest and taxes had been fully earned and that a substantial share of the usual charges for depreciation had also been earned, but that the estimate showed no surplus from such earnings available for dividends."

It was also said after the meeting that the earnings of the company had been seriously affected during the last six months because of competition on the part of vessels operated by the United States Shipping Board. Due to a reduction in rates on Government-operated vessels, it was said that the ships of independent companies were forced to carry freight for almost nothing in order to get a part of the business available and keep the ships in operation.

Regarding the Ship Subsidy bill it was stated that if this was enacted it would necessitate the operation of the English from the American companies, a delicate task from the company's point of view.

Equitable Trust Sets Dec. 30.

In connection with the new stock of the Equitable Trust Company of New York, offered pro rata to stockholders, subscriptions must be made on or before Dec. 30, instead of on or before Dec. 20, as heretofore noted.

CURB WILL ENTERTAIN.

Christmas Tree and Vaudeville Arranged for This Afternoon.

The New York Curb Market Association has completed arrangements for the Christmas entertainment for the children of the financial district this afternoon at 2 o'clock, when business of the floor will be suspended.

A large Christmas tree trimmed with baskets has been placed on the exchange floor and a stage erected for the performers. Pat Rooney, Frisco, Six Brown Brothers, Hermine Shone, Marshall Montgomery, Rita Gould and Keith's Boys' Band of fifty pieces will furnish the entertainment.

Curb Ruling on Solar Co. Stock.

The Committee of Listing of the New York Curb Market yesterday ruled that the capital stock of the Solar Refining Company be not quoted ex the 100 per cent. stock dividend until further notice. The dividend is payable to holders of record Dec. 23.

HEAVY OPERATIONS OF RESERVE BANKS

Holiday Demands and Government Operations Swell Note Issue and Cut Cash.

RATIO DROPS 75.1 TO 72.8

Deposits Gain $20,800,000 and Pittman Paper Total Goes Up $125,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—Aggregate increases of $77,800,000 in Federal Reserve note circulation and a reduction of $28,200,000 in reserves are shown in the Federal Reserve Board's weekly bank statement, issued as at the close of business of Dec. 20, 1922.

Besides increasing their note circulation, the Reserve banks paid out $15,000,000 of gold and $12,900,000 of other reserve cash to meet the customary currency requirements of the holiday trade. Deposits show an increase of $20,800,000 for the week and the Reserve ratio declined from 75.1 to 72. 8 per cent.

The week saw a large volume of Government operations, including the collection of the last installment of income and profit taxes, the redemption of large amounts of Victory notes and Treasury certificates, the payment of interest on the first Liberty bonds and Victory notes, and the issuance of new issues of Treasury certificates and Treasury notes.

Member bank borrowings from the Reserve banks show a reduction of $44,000,000 for the week, of which $29,000,000 represents a decline in paper secured by Government obligations and $1,300,000, a reduction in other discounts. Acceptance holdings declined $10,900,000.

As a consequence of the large-scale Treasury operations, Reserve Bank holdings of Treasury certificates other than Pittman certificates show an increase of $3,600,000, of which $57,500,000 represent special certificates issued to cover advances to the Government, pending collection of income tax checks and other funds from depositary institutions.

Gold reserves show increases of $15,000,000 for the New York bank, $4,800,000 for the Cleveland bank, $4,400,000 for the Minneapolis bank and $3,000,000 for the Dallas bank. Reductions in gold reserves are shown for the remaining eight banks.

The largest reduction is $9,300,000, reported by the Kansas City bank. The Chicago bank reports a decrease of $8,000,000, while Boston and St. Louis report each a decrease of $7,500,000.

Holdings of paper secured by Government obligations decreased from $344,000,000 to $314,900,000. Of the total held at Wednesday, $202,200,000 or 64 per cent., were secured by United States bonds; $1,800,000, or .6 per cent., by Victory notes; $98,900,000, or 31.4 per cent., by Treasury notes and $12,000,000, or 3.8 per cent., by Treasury certificates. Compared with $191,800,000, $4,700,000, $9,800,000 and $8,500,000 reported the week before.

A summary of changes in the principal assets and liabilities of the Reserve banks on Dec. 20, 1922, as compared with a week and a year ago, follows:

B. R. T. EARNINGS INCREASE.

Both Gross and Net Show a Gain Over Last Year.

The earnings statement of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company for November show an increase in both gross and net income as compared with the same period last year. The increase in net income was greater because of a reduction in operating expenses. Passenger revenue was $932,962 last month, against $917,279 in 1921; other revenue $40,000, against $37,247; operating expenses and taxes $783,062, against $810,177; income deductions $53,390, against $57,900, and net corporate income $167,768, against $86,449.

The figures for the first five months of the current fiscal year are equally favorable. Passenger revenue was $4,961,766, against $4,685,461 last year; other income $196,300, against $177,743; operating expenses and taxes $4,016,433, against $3,956,563; income deductions $267,707, against $278,760, and net corporate income $763,959, against $533,876.

Banks Declare Extra Dividends.

The Board of Directors of the Columbia Trust Company yesterday declared an extra dividend of 2 per cent. in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 4 per cent. Both dividends are payable Dec. 30. An extra dividend of 2 per cent. has been declared on the capital stock of the Fulton Trust Company in addition to the semi-annual dividend of 5 per cent., payable Jan. 2 to stock of record Dec. 28.

COMMODITY PRICES.

Cash Markets Mixed in Trend, Some Staples Higher, Others Lower.

Cash prices were a little mixed and opposite in their movement in specific groups yesterday, wheat advancing slightly, while corn and flour receded; iron was a trifle lower, with tin up; spot cotton declined, with a small gain in printcloths; eggs dropped back slightly, with other dairy and grocery articles steady and unchanged.

Following are the cash prices for the principal commodities in the wholesale market at the close of business Thursday, a week before, and a year ago:

RESERVE BANK POSITION.

Comparison of Yesterday's Items With High and Low Records.

In yesterday's statement of the Federal Reserve system and of the Reserve Bank of New York, some of the items established either a high or low record for the year, except Federal Reserve notes in actual circulation in the entire system, which touched a new high mark for 1922.

Following is the comparison of highest and lowest figures of the Reserve system statements for 1922 to date and for previous years. Figures are in thousands of dollars:

RESERVE BANK STATEMENT.

Comparison of Yesterday's Items With High and Low Records.

In yesterday's statement of the Federal Reserve system and of the Reserve Bank of New York, some of the items established either a high or low record for the year, except Federal Reserve notes in actual circulation in the entire system, which touched a new high mark for 1922.

Following is the comparison of highest and lowest figures of the Reserve system statements for 1922 to date and for previous years. Figures are in thousands of dollars:

CHANGES MODERATE IN COTTON MARKET

Good Demand Develops at 26-Cent Level—Exports Are Behind Last Year.

Not only the approaching holidays but straightening out of accounts in the December and January positions reduced the volume of new business in cotton yesterday. Instead of room opposition to any advance, better support appeared around 26 cents, which furnished buying power to absorb January liquidation. Notices in that month will be issued today, and with all Southern markets, except Dallas, Montgomery and Fort Worth, quoting middling above the level of January in New York cotton is not likely to go begging. In fact, demand increased near the close, several large buying orders in January being executed. Prices closed 7 points lower to 5 higher than Wednesday.

Most important factors during the day began to affect quotations at the opening. Although they were connected with Exchange routine, prices for all months followed developments in December and January. The fact that trading in December ceased at noon left all remaining obligations in that month to be settled before 12 o'clock. Contracts appeared for sale which carried December to 25.40, a decline of about a quarter of a cent, and that month expired at 25.65.

These settlements in December, owing to a holiday having been declared for Saturday before both Christmas and New Year's, threw the first January notice day forward to the 22d. This hastened liquidation of whatever long interest remained in January on the part of those who did not intend to accept deliveries of actual cotton. The combination of these two events became of greater importance than outside news and left later months dependent upon the extent of operations in near positions. For a time, orders to buy January and sell March at 30 points kept differences at that figure, but later in the day these orders had been filled and January sold at a discount of 24 points under March. There seemed to be a sufficient supply of contracts to meet all demands, which held prices not far from previous closing throughout the session.

The tendency of near positions toward increased discounts, which has been going on for some weeks, has been attributed to a slowing down in mill buying following the enormous purchases made during October and early November. Interest is now centred in the attitude of the trade after Jan. 1, when reports of increased mill purchases in the South were received, as well as indications that wholesale distribution of textiles has been more active during the last few days. Though advices from certain local retail centres reflected some disappointment, Western centres have been doing a larger business for two weeks past. This is expected to bring more mill buying of raw material after the turn of the year, though leaving the whole problem of distribution for the second half of the year still undetermined. The immediate course of contract prices, therefore, appears to hinge on the buying power which develops, not only from domestic but from foreign sources. Exports to date are about 140,000 bales behind last season.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Exp. near	Previous Day.
Dec.	25.70	25.78	25.55	Exp. near		25.84

UNION NATIONAL DIVIDEND.

Rate of 8% Per Annum Declared—Farmers Loan Elects Officers.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Union National Corporation yesterday a dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum was declared on the preferred stock of the corporation to September 30, 1922, payable Jan. 1, 1923, to stockholders of record at the close of business Dec. 22.

Trustees of the Farmer's Loan and Trust Company elected Joseph P. Cotton and Lewis L. Delafield members of the board; J. Courtney Talley, Irving H. Mecham and S. Sloan Colt were elected Vice Presidents; Harry D. Sammis and Edward J. Boyd, trust officers; R. Lyle Kenox, Wilfred J. Bahn and John G. Kilbreth, Howard S. Butterweck and Henry M. Tifft, assistant trust officers, and Harry F. Ayers and Alfred C. Steele, assistant cashiers.

MEXICO TO MINT GOLD ONLY.

Fall in Value of Silver Leads to Cessation of Its Coinage.

The "coyotes" or curbstone brokers have been doing a flourishing business in Mexico, according to the Mexico Financial and Commercial Magazine, on account of the depreciation of silver as compared with gold in that country. They had come to be a necessity to the public, who could resort to them when gold was required and thus avoid the payment of a premium arbitrarily fixed by the creditor.

The murmur of complaint among Mexican merchants has been growing stronger and stronger owing to the difficulty of carrying on business transactions without a sufficient supply of gold. The result of the over-abundance of silver in comparison with the amount of gold coined has been to put a premium on the latter and cause it to be hoarded, so that important negotiations have on occasion been called off because of the refusal to accept anything but gold in payment and the difficulty of obtaining this metal.

The Mexican Department of Finance and Public Credit has now definitely ordered that the coinage of silver be suspended. The activities of the mint are to be devoted to the coinage of gold, the Government having a sufficient quantity of that metal to keep up the output for several months to come.

In recent months, transactions in silver money had become cumbersome and it was agreed among the principal banks of the country and some of the more important business houses not to make payments in silver coin in sums exceeding twenty pesos, but to carry on all their larger transactions with Mexican gold as a medium. This created the necessity on the part of the merchants and the public of making their payments also in national gold, and silver was accepted only with the additional payment that the dealer might require or at least with the payment of the premium that was current in the market.

Gold was thus prevented from being sent out of the country, or from being hoarded, since it was so indispensable to commercial transactions. But however efficacious these measures may have been in securing such results, they also gave rise to serious disadvantages, instead of an equitable discount on silver, in accordance with the valuations established in the mercantile centres, it depended on the will of the merchant whether he would sell for silver in place of gold and gave him the opportunity to demand practically what he wanted as a bonus in accepting payment in silver. The discontinuance of the coinage of silver and the increased coinage of gold are expected to remedy this condition.

WHEAT PRICES SHIFT TO HIGHER RANGES

Export Traders Surprise the Market at Chicago With an Unseasonal Demand.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—A material revival in the export demand for cash wheat from the United Kingdom disclosed a much stronger technical position than the trade in general anticipated, and, with an excellent class of buying on the breaks, prices advanced and the close was at the best flash of the season, although the outside figures were not as high as those made on the opening bulge of the previous day.

In all it was estimated that the United Kingdom and other countries had taken over 1,000,000 bushels, including 240,000 to 320,000 bushels via the Gulf, and late cables from the Continent brought strong bids from Switzerland and the Mediterranean.

Liverpool reported a scarcity of first hand Argentine offers, and cables from the latter country reported light rains in some parts, with private cables claiming that thrashing returns showed quality and quantity disappointing.

The buying, except at 1.23¾ for the May on an early break, was not aggressive, but there was a lack of pressure on the market after values started upward and the upturn was easily attained. Closing trades were ¾ cent higher on the December and 1 to 1¼ cents higher on the deferred futures, with May leading. There were selling of December and buying of May by longs who were transferring into the more distant delivery and the difference narrowed to 2¼ cents at the last.

The development of a broad export right before the Christmas holidays was a distinct surprise to the trade.

A crop observer who has returned from Europe was quoted by a leading New York exporter as saying that European countries have been rapidly consuming their native bread grain supplies and that within the near future there will be a tremendous crisis in food supply import requirements in Italy, Germany and France, besides a steady demand from England. The latter is regarded as having little grain bought for forward shipment.

Corn closed ¾ cent lower on December and ¾ cent higher on the deferred deliveries, while oats were ¼ to ½ cent higher. Coarse grain showed a heavy undertone early, with corn off ¾ cent for May at one time on scattered profit taking and a lack of support, but when wheat rallied corn followed and the finish was firm, except on the December. Longs in the latter delivery were free sellers to the close.

Late reports from parts of Nebraska and Illinois indicated that farmers were rather free sellers, which indicates a larger movement of grain to terminals after the turn of the year. Cash corn in the sample market was easy. Export sales of 250,000 to 300,000 bushels corn and 350,000 bushels rye at the seaboard were reported.

Primary arrivals of wheat today were 1,737,000 bushels; week ago, 1,151,000; last year, 656,000. Shipments were 540,000 bushels; week ago, 897,000; last year, 411,000.

Corn receipts were 1,400,000 bushels; week ago, 1,101,000; last year, 1,578,000, and shipments, 471,000 bushels; week ago, 493,000; last year, 570,000.

Holds Search Warrants Invalid.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 21.—Judge Thomas of the Federal District Court declared invalid today four specific search warrants which had been used in the seizure of quantities of alleged alcoholic liquors and ordered that the goods be returned to their original owners. The Judge held that the search warrants violated the Fourth and Fifth Amendments to the Constitution because they were not granted on a basis of known facts, but on the stated belief of Federal agents from information. It is understood that this opinion will bear upon a large number of seizures of liquors.

The property rented for $50,000 and was held at $280,000. The buildings were erected twelve years ago by Mr. Berinstein and provide accommodations for eighty families. The property was sold to three different purchasers.

Realty Notes.

John F. Reed obtained for Salvatore Mussadra, through Franklin Savings Bank, a mortgage loan of $6,500 on his four-story building at 536 Second Avenue.

The property which the M. Morgenthau Jr. Co., Everett M. Seixas Consolidated have resold for the West Eleventh Street Corporation to John Rudenjak is 582 Eleventh Avenue, not 592 Eleventh Avenue as erroneously reported yesterday. No. 592 Eleventh Avenue has been purchased through the same brokers by THE NEW YORK TIMES and is part of the site of their new Eleventh Avenue plant.

B. Edward Crosby was associated with H. D. Baker and A. Robinson in the resale of the Stratford-Avon apartments. He was also associated broker in the sale of the southeast corner of Seventy-seventh Street and Madison Avenue, and in the resale to Frederick Brown of 130 to 134 West Sixteenth Street.

It will be four stories high with a frontage of 276 feet and a depth of 266.6 feet and have accommodations for 6,218 pupils and will be fireproof. C. B. J. Snyder, architect, has estimated the cost at $2,240,000. The City of New York is the owner.

Recent Buyers.

Hutley Whiting is the buyer of the remodeled building at 536 Fifth Avenue, adjoining the southeast corner of Forty-sixth Street, the sale of which by the John H. Hall estate was recently announced. Mr. Whiting is said to have paid about $536,000, at the rate of $220 a square foot. The corner property was recently leased to Lieberman Bros.

The New York Sorority, Catholic Daughters of America, is the buyer of the four-story dwelling at 6 West Seventy-first Street, reported sold recently.

The New York Edison Company is the buyer of the five-story building at 127 East 120th Street; Annetta Nigra of 74 West Eighty-second Street, and Max Lobl of 312 West Seventy-first Street, all sold recently.

Investor Buys Heights Taxpayer.

Ernest T. Boyer sold for I. Ravich & Son the 20-foot taxpayer at 1,264 to 1,268 St. Nicholas Avenue, adjoining the northeast corner of 173d Street, to a client for investment.

Dailey, President, to S. B. Steinmetz & Son, Inc., who will erect a two-story garage and six stores on the property.

Eugene J. Busher Company, Inc., sold for Alexander Wilson the vacant plot, 100 by 125, on the west side of Grand Boulevard and Concourse, 195 feet north of Minerva Place, to a builder, who will erect a large apartment house on same.

J. Clarence Davies, Inc., sold for the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company to A. Kost the vacant plot, 50 by 147, on the east side of Stebbins Avenue, 437 feet north of 167th Street.

PRIVATE HOUSE SALES.

Tenant Purchases Residences in East Sixty-Third Street.

The five-story, twenty-foot American basement dwelling at 164 East Sixty-third Street, between Lexington and Third Avenues, has been sold by Pease & Elliman for Mrs. George E. Draper to Maurice Wertheim, the present tenant.

The John P. Peel Company have resold for Nathan Wilson, operator, the following houses on West Forty-fifth Street, purchased last month by Mr. Wilson from the Astor estate: 326 West Forty-fifth Street, to R. J. Donovan; and 328 West Forty-fifth Street to Teresa Caporligri, both of whom will occupy.

James L. Van Sant, an operator, resold 20 West 128th Street, a three-story dwelling 17.6 by 100. The purchaser is Joseph Handley. The brokers in the transaction were Huggins & Gittens.

James H. Cruikshank, an operator, purchased from Agnes Reilly 193 Edgecomb Avenue, a three-story, private dwelling on plot 16.8 by 100. The Haggstrom-Callen Company were the brokers.

Commercial Leases.

The Society of the New York Hospital leased the four-story factory building at 606 to 612 West Fifty-fifth Street, on a lot 100 by 100, for a term of ten years to Messrs. Cohen & Dages. J. P. & L. A. Kiesling negotiated the lease.

The premises 770 Madison Avenue being the southwest corner of Sixty-sixth Street owned by Mrs. Ellen T. Elder, has been leased for a term of twenty-one years at a net rental of $12,000 per annum to Herman Strauss & Sons, butcher. The new location is to be altered into stores and apartments by Mrs. Elder for the tenant. Clinton H. Booth negotiated the lease of the property.

J. P. Benkard & Co., one of the prominent New York Stock Exchange houses, with a main office at 61 Broadway, have leased for a long term of years the entire twenty-third floor of the Heckscher Building at Fifth Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street from the Anahma Realty Corporation. The negotiations were conducted by Cushman & Wakefield, Inc. This lease is significant in that it marks a departure from the usual policy of brokerage firms to locate their uptown offices on lower floors. A setback necessary under the new building law provides a balcony for the exclusive use of the tenant on this floor, and the space will be elaborately equipped so as to provide all of the requirements of a modern broker's office. It is expected that the necessary alterations will be completed in time to start operations by Feb. 1.

Frankfort Street Building Sold.

E. H. Ludlow & Co. have sold for Oscar Schérer & Son, Inc. the three-story building, 33 Frankfort Street on lot 24.4 by 103 feet to Sterling St. John. The buyer will occupy after extensive alterations have been made.

The four-story building at 45 West Forty-fifth Street on a lot 18.9 by 100 was sold by Edward B. Crosby for Charles T. Harbeck to David Bassinsky and George Shaw.

Altered House Sold to Investor.

The Houghton Company sold for Elisabeth C. Thompson to an investing client the five-story altered house at 247 West Seventy-sixth Street on a lot 19 by 102.2, located between Broadway and West End Avenue.

BUILDERS BUY SITES.

Vacant Properties Bought for Apartment Improvements.

Joseph Wolkenberg, builder, has purchased from Ennis & Sinnott, plot of land on southwest corner of Broadway and 173rd Street, 109.11 by 126 feet on 173rd Street by 97.3 depth, upon which plot it is planned to erect a six-story elevator building. Jacob and Emil Leitner acted as brokers.

This plot is part of the estate of J. Hood Wright, which was recently purchased by the sellers. It was held at $130,000.

Patrick J. Dwyer bought from Ennis & Sinnott the plot, 100 by 150, at the northwest corner of Broadway and 172d Street, on which he will erect a five-story multi-family structure with stores. The D. L. W. Construction Company, Harry A. Manzier, President, bought the block front on the east side of Fort Washington, from 174th to 176th Street, comprising fifteen lots from Ennis & Sinnott, through Maurice I. Struusky.

Dr. Philip Melrowitz, real estate builder and operator, through Joseph G. Abramson, his attorney, has signed a contract for the purchase from Quiller Morgan Company of the five-story and basement tenement, at 297 to 299 West Thirty-sixth Street, between Seventh and Eighth Avenues, in the new garment center.

The plot which is thirty-five feet wide was held at $70,000 and the property shows an actual rental of over $8,000.

As soon as possession can be obtained, Dr. Melrowitz intends to erect a ten-story loft building on the plot. Frederick Fox & Co., were the brokers in the transaction.

John Finck sold to the Blade Estates Inc., and I. H. Kempner, the three-story building on the northeast corner of Third Avenue and Eighty-eighth Street, known as 1,560 Third Avenue, for Samuel Irvine. The property has been held in the family of Mr. Irvine for over sixty years. The purchasers will probably erect a new building on the plot for business purposes.

COLUMBUS CIRCLE LEASE.

Horn & Hardart to Pay $700,000 Rent for Two-Story Building.

The Horn & Hardart Company, which operates a chain of automat cafeterias, has leased from a client of Tankoos, Smith & Co. for a term of twenty years at a rental aggregating approximately $700,000, with an option to purchase, the entire two-story and basement mercantile building at 975 to 979 Eighth Avenue, on the west side, between Fifty-seventh and Fifty-eighth Streets, on a plot 75 by 100.

The building is situated directly opposite the new Harris Colonade Building.

Joseph V. Horn, President, and Frank Hardart Jr., Vice President of the Horn & Hardart Company, stated yesterday that the property will be thoroughly altered under the supervision of Frederick Putnam Platt & Brother, architects, at a cost of over $100,000 and be completed Feb. 1.

The Horn & Hardart Company recently secured through Tankoos, Smith & Co. the large corner store and the entire basement of 10,000 square feet in the new Fischel Building now being completed at Broadway, southeast corner of Thirty-seventh Street, at a rental aggregating over $700,000 for a term lease of twenty-one years, and have subleased the major portion of the ground floor space to the United Cigar Stores Company of America.

Buying Suburban Properties.

The V. Green Construction Company sold a house in the Vivian Heights section of White Plains, N. Y., to T. H. Mitchell of White Plains. The Robert E. Farley Organization, as broker, negotiated the deal.

The same brokers sold for the Scarsdale Estates a plot on Huntington Avenue, in the Greenacres section of Scarsdale, N. Y., to Mrs. Maria F. Lundberg for immediate improvement.

Title to the premises 821 Warburton Avenue, Yonkers, has been conveyed by Peter Rusiak to Harris Reife of Brooklyn, N. Y. The property, a three-story brick building, and two stores, is situated on the corner of Warburton Avenue and Point Street. Mr. Reif is a pharmacist and will conduct a drug store, after making the necessary alterations. Thomas S. Burke negotiated the sale.

Burke, Stone, Inc., sold for Floyd S. Sanford a residence located on Winter Hill, Tuckahoe, to Dr. John F. Weston, for occupancy.

The same firm sold for the Adams-Diefendorf Realty Company a large plot in Siwanoy Park to a local client, who will improve with a residence, for the estate of Betty Silverberg a large tract in South Bronxville to a local client, who intends to develop the property with four new houses, and for the Burke Foundation a plot on Burkwood Road to Ed. Vigneron, who is to build a residence in the near future.

Qld Colt Residence Leased.

The Industrial Trust Company, Providence, R. I., trustees for estate of Samuel T. Colt, leased the old homestead of the late Samuel T. Colt, 17 East Forty-fourth Street, which is a four-story and basement dwelling, to Ye Peg Woffington Coffee House, Inc., for a term of twenty-one years, with option to purchase. Heretofore this property has been used for private dwelling only. After extensive alterations the tenants will use a major part of the premises for their own business, in conjunction with the quarters they now occupy at 11 East Forty-fourth Street and 19 East Forty-seventh Street. Albert B. Ashforth, Inc., negotiated the lease and Cross & Brown Company represented the owners.

Mount Sinai Takes Title.

Title was taken by the Mount Sinai Hospital to the plot of vacant land on the south side of Ninety-ninth Street, between Fifth Avenue and Madison Avenue, recently sold for Otto H. Kahn by William F. Fuerst, Inc. No plans have as yet been made as to the improvements of the plot.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—Pressure was relatively low Thursday night off the Atlantic Coast, and it was low and falling from Alberta and Montana eastward to the lake region, with centres of depression over Alberta and north of Lake Superior. High pressure prevailed Thursday over the West Gulf States and generally from the Rocky Mountain region westward to the Pacific Coast. Precipitation has occurred within the last twenty-four hours in the Atlantic States, the upper lake region and along the North Pacific Coast. Elsewhere fair weather has prevailed. The weather became warmer Thursday in New England and from the Lake Superior region southwestward to Texas, and temperatures were above normal Thursday night between the Mississippi River and the Rocky Mountains.

The outlook is for generally fair weather Friday and Saturday in the Atlantic and East Gulf States, Tennessee, the Ohio Valley and the lower lake region, except that local snows are probable in portions of Northern New England. Southern and Central New York and the lower lake region. The temperature will be somewhat higher Friday in the lower Ohio Valley, Tennessee and the East Gulf and South Atlantic States, and it will not change materially in the Washington forecast district during Saturday. There is no unusually cold weather in sight.

HELD AS BET TAKERS IN GAMING CRUSADE

Two Employes of Brokerage Office Arrested—Adjourn Hearing of $63,422 Poker Loss.

CLUB MEMBERS ARE FREED

Police Charged Them With Card Playing—Stewards and Doorman to Stand Trial.

The police drive to rid the city of gambling and to suppress the activities of the chance-takers which began with a sudden raid on a midtown club and was followed by the arrest of two men charged with winning about $63,000 from a third, was continued yesterday.

Detectives assigned to special duty began a concentrated attack yesterday on bookmakers who have been thriving and multiplying of late. The first results came in the arraignment of two men before Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan in Yorkville Court. The prisoners charged with making a book were James Morrow, 35 years old, manager for a stock brokerage branch office at 62 East Forty-second Street, and Harry Fallon, 28 years old, a stock bulletin runner employed by the same firm. They were held in $100 bail each for trial in Special Sessions. They were arrested in the branch office in the presence of a score of customers of the firm.

The two alleged gamblers who were accused of a rich haul at poker were brought before Magistrate Hatting in West Side Court.

The first case called was that of Mark Reardon, 55 years old, of 160 West Fifty-eighth Street, who said that he was a real estate operator. He was arrested on Wednesday on the complaint of Charles S. Meyers of White Plains. The second man named by Meyers was Richard M. Manden, 60 years old, of 215 West Ninety-second Street, also describing himself as in the real estate business. Meyers swore that the two men and others had won $63,422 from him at poker at various places, including one "in West Forty-fourth Street, near Broadway."

Leon Levy, attorney, of 1,540 Broadway, appeared with Reardon's son, Mark Reardon Jr., lawyer, at 100 Broadway, as counsel for Reardon. Manden also was represented by counsel. In order to give counsel time to prepare their cases the proceedings against both men were postponed, Reardon to appear in Essex Market Court on Dec. 26, while Manden is to be examined today by Magistrate Hatting in West Side Court.

Some mystery was attached to Meyers, who made the complaint. Little was known about him, beyond the fact that at one time he had been an expert accountant in the employ of a furniture company, since failed.

The descent on the Active Republican Club of the Fifth Assembly District, which brought a storm of indignant protest from the members, was purely a coincidence, the police said. Herman Beyer, Deputy Appraiser of the Port of New York and a Major in the Police Reserves of the West Forty-seventh Street Station, established the club, and as leader of the Assembly district made his own headquarters there.

On Wednesday night, after Mr. Beyer had gone, Detectives Benjamin Baillie, William O'Connor and Joseph Burke of Inspector Bolan's staff raided the club and arrested thirty members on the charge of disorderly conduct. The detectives said they found four quarts of whisky and charged John Brockhagen, a steward, with violation of the Mullan-Gage law. Magistrate Hatting discharged the members and cleared Brockhagen of the alleged liquor violation.

On the charge of maintaining and keeping a gambling house, the Court held Brockhagen, Frederick Obermaught, a steward, and John Kelly, a doorman.

HONOR GUEST AT DINNER TAKES HIS OWN LIFE

Pittsburgh Man Starts the Player-Piano as Other Guests Dine, Then Uses a Revolver.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 21.—A dinner party at the home of C. K. Kehn, in honor of Edward Peterson, had a tragic finale tonight. While the last course was being served Peterson excused himself.

"I want to put a piece on the player-piano," he explained.

A moment later came the notes of "Let the Rest of the World Go By," and then the report of a revolver.

Peterson, with a bullet through his brain, was found leaning against the piano, dead.

"We have not learned the cause," said the Coroner.

THIEF ENDS HIS LIFE WHEN HOLD-UP FAILS

Jersey City Robber, Trapped in Grocery, Shoots Himself as Policeman Enters.

Louis Desasso, 24 years old, of 172 Tonnelle Avenue, Jersey City, shot and killed himself yesterday afternoon in the rear of the grocery of the National Stores Corporation at Boulevard and Leonard Street, Jersey City, when he was about to be arrested for the hold-up of the manager of the store a few minutes before. Desasso had been trapped in the store by the manager, William Asselmeyer, after he had taken $7 from Asselmeyer's pocket and forced him to open the safe.

The unexpected appearance of an employe of a safe company as the door of the safe swung open gave Asselmeyer an opportunity to run to the street and slam the door behind him, automatically locking the door, which could not be opened from the inside. The cries of the two men brought Policeman Schaefer from his home across the street. Asselmeyer then opened the door and Schaefer entered, firing a shot to intimidate the hold-up man.

There was no response from the robber's pistol, and the policeman cautiously made his way to the rear room. There he found the robber dead on the floor, with bullet wounds in his left temple and left side. The dead man soon was identified. Then it developed that less than an hour before the hold-up Desasso had been warned that he would be arrested the next day on complaint of the Poormaster for failing to pay $24 for the support of his wife and two children. It was the belief of the officials that he attempted the robbery to obtain money to forestall his arrest.

Asselmeyer said he was alone in the store at 2 o'clock when Desasso, who was a stranger to him, entered and, pointing a pistol at him, said: "Give me all the money you have or I'll blow your head off." Asselmeyer said he tried to dissuade the man from robbing him, but Desasso said: "No talk, now; I'm desperate."

Then the robber backed him into the rear room, the manager said, and took $7 from his coat pocket, overlooking $100 which Asselmeyer carried in a wallet in his trousers pocket. The hold-up man counted the money, and, placing the pistol at Asselmeyer's back, said: "You go outside to that safe and get me more money; this is not enough."

Asselmeyer obeyed, and had just opened the strongbox when Frank Birch, an employe of a safe company, entered to change the combination on the safe, a weekly custom. Birch's appearance diverted Desasso's attention and Asselmeyer darted to the street with Birch and slammed the door.

Desasso tried to open the door while Asselmeyer and Birch were running up and down the sidewalk shouting "Police!" When Desasso saw Policeman Schaefer coming he disappeared into the rear room of the store.

Schaefer said later that he fired a shot at a barrel "to let the thief know that I meant business," but that Desasso shot himself before he entered.

Ford to Build Big Chicago Plant.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—Henry Ford is going to build a $6,000,000 manufacturing and assembling plant in Chicago, to employ more than 16,000 men, and which, it is predicted, ultimately will be one of the world's greatest automobile establishments. Title to a seventy-acre tract in Hegewisch was taken by the Ford Motor Company today.

Give Your Car A Merry Christmas!

And Don't Forget Your Friend's Car, Too!

For All Cars For All Cars

PACKARD with ALLEN SHUTTER FRONT

Here is the gift for your motorist friend and your own car, too,—The Allen Shutter Front, a real motoring necessity.

An automobile radiator is built with enough radiating surface to prevent it from boiling in summer heat. But—there is too much radiating surface for cold or winter weather—result—a sluggish motor using more gasoline and allowing oil to pass the piston rings, causing carbon. A warm, quick-starting motor also saves your battery.

Every car should have the Allen Shutter Front with its exclusive feature of the full opening which permits its use to great advantage all year round.

The Allen Shutter Front is made of cold rolled steel beautifully finished, operated from the dash with positive hand control. There is no guessing with the Allen Shutter Front. You know when it is open or shut.

The Allen Shutter Front is a timely, useful gift which is sure to be appreciated.

BUICK with ALLEN SHUTTER FRONT

Price $15.00

Complete, ready to attach. Easy to put on—no working parts to get out of order—No upkeep.

FOR THE ADDED CONVENIENCE OF CHRISTMAS SHOPPERS we have arranged to take care of retail trade at our Manufactory, 16 West 61st Street, Locomobile Building, just off Broadway, where immediate delivery can be had for cars of every make.

WASHINGTON DENIES PROPOSING A BOARD TO FIX REPARATIONS

Has Sounded No Government on Matter, Says State Department —No Definite Plan Before It.

CAN'T MEDDLE OFFICIALLY

But Would Be Willing to Help if Allies and Germany Agreed on a Plan for Our Co-operation.

NEWS REPORTS EMBARRASS

Sharp and Emphatic Denial That German Loan Is Favored or That We Are Pushing a Set Plan.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—With little light available from any source to the plans for American aid in the settlement of the reparations problem, the State Department again denied and with more emphasis and detail that the United States Government had submitted a proposal to any other Government for the appointment of an American commission to mediate or otherwise act in the matter of reparations.

Not only had no "proposal" been made by this Government, it was said, but also the Government has not even "sounded out" any other Government with respect to a loan to Germany or the creation of a commission either "directly or indirectly, formally or informally," and had no intention of making any uninvited suggestion that the reparations tangle be settled in any given manner.

Officials of the State Department do not feel that they should deal with newspaper reports relative to the present European situation in a categorical way, but it was stated in an authoritative American quarter that there was hardly a foreign Government that was not viewing with amazement various reports of the past few days regarding American participation in European affairs, especially those saying that the American Government had taken, or was about to take, definite action in attempts to fix the reparations by means of some sort of international or American commission.

There are two features of the news reports to which officials raise particular objection. The first concerned a possible loan to be made to Germany in connection with reparations and alleged plans for stabilization of the mark. The second dealt with alleged plans under which the United States would determine how much reparations Germany should be required to pay to the Allies.

Has Sounded no Foreign Government.

Exception was also taken to reports published this morning that "the exchange of views has developed a thorough understanding in authoritative circles that the United States, Great Britain and Germany all are willing to assent to the creation of such a commission."

It was emphatically stated at the State Department today that all such reports were false inasmuch as the United States Government has not sounded a single Government formally in regard to such a matter, nor presented such proposals to any Government. The publication of such reports, it was said, was creating difficulty. Foreign Governments, seeing these reports, would wonder whether the United States was really contemplating such plans as were attributed to it by press reports.

Sharp distinction is made by officials between Government action and any plan that American business men or commercial organizations may have in mind for helping Europe. Any proposals that may be before the Government with respect to the European situation are purely tentative and in no way definite, but there is not a single bit of writing before Secretary Hughes regarding any of the alleged proposals and no action has been taken by the State Department regarding them.

It was reiterated by officials today that reports from London appearing in yesterday morning's papers as to an American commission were false. As for reports published this morning concerning an alleged commission on reparations, there is no such plan before President Poincaré from the American Government, nor from any other Government, so far as Washington is aware. Many tentative proposals and suggestions have been brought to the attention of the American Government, but officials do not wish to discuss them before any action is taken on them.

Hold Washington Can't Offer Plan.

While officials here feel that the reparation snarl is the big factor of the economic crisis in Europe, it is also their feeling that the reparation problem is a matter for the Governments that have treaty rights in the matter. The amount that Germany should pay France has been fixed and for the United States Government to step in and say that the conclusions reached should be set aside and a new figure determined by a commission of Americans or otherwise would be out of the question.

Such a move, it was suggested in an important quarter, would be little short of ridiculous and Americans would be the first to realize it if the cases were reversed. If there were some question in America about which American public opinion was highly aroused, and the British Government, for example, should without invitation, step in and suggest that a commission of Englishmen be sent here to tell us how to straighten out our affairs, the case would be comparable to that which would be created by the execution of some of the suggestions as to what the American Government was alleged to have done or might do.

It is the view of officials that the authors of reports which suggest that the American Government contemplates urging the creation of an American commission are taking a great deal for

Pope to Announce Program In an Encyclical Today

ROME, Dec. 22 (Associated Press).—Pope Pius tonight completed the encyclical containing the program of his Pontificate and it will be made public tomorrow.

It contains more than a thousand words. Mgr. Aurelio Galli, Secretary of Briefs to Princes, has completed the Latin text.

The document is awaited with great expectation, Vatican circles pronouncing it one of the most important in the history of the Church.

BORAH SAYS DEBTS NEED WORLD ACTION

Danger of Bankruptcy, He Holds, Justifies His Proposed Conference of Powers.

HIS PLAN FACES DEFEAT

Republican Leaders in Senate Oppose Hampering Harding on Reparations.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—Senator Borah declared in the Senate today, in discussing his amendment to the Naval bill for a combined economic and disarmament conference, that the great powers, the United States excepted, were facing bankruptcy and that only drastic economies respecting military establishments would prevent the ruin to which the countries were fast drifting.

The Senate had the bill before it but did not reach action on Senator Borah's amendment. There was a general discussion bearing upon the proposed new armament conference and the necessity for economies by governments.

It became apparent that the other Irreconcilables who opposed the League of Nations would not follow Senator Borah in his reversed attitude. Senator Lodge, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, is also opposed to the Borah amendment but will not attempt to defeat it by raising a point of order.

Under the rules of the Senate the amendment can be eliminated from the Naval bill, on a point of order, because it is "new legislation." Republican leaders say that they will not kill the amendment in that way but will be able to defeat it on a straight vote.

The objections raised by Senator Lodge and other leaders is that a conference called to consider reduction of armaments and also economies in Europe, growing out of the reparations dispute, would be too far-reaching, and, as such, would fail. They believe that the Administration ought not to be hampered in the course it desires to take on the reparations question and, therefore, they intend to exert their influence to defeat the amendment.

Says New Naval Race Impends.

"It is perfectly clear to me," said Senator Borah, "that we are again threatened with a naval race. Unless something can be done to prevent it, the purse strings again will be relaxed and we are to have what we had hoped to avoid by the disarmament conference held last Winter.

"Building is going on abroad along lines, so we are told, not specifically covered by the disarmament treaty. The things which were covered by that treaty have been regarded to some extent as not essential to a modern navy, and, therefore, the course now pursued is that of a naval race in those things which really count in modern warfare. There is a very pronounced propaganda in this country for an increased navy and enlarged army.

"The reasons which are assigned for this are not only the building programs abroad in naval affairs, but the economic conditions and discontent and distrust which prevail throughout the world. We are told almost daily by those at the head of the navy and those in high authority in the army that we may expect almost any day a condition of affairs abroad which will necessitate our having a vast navy and a very much larger army."

General Pershing's Latest View.

Senator Borah directed attention to the fact that when the armament conference was convened a year ago one of its strongest advocates was General John J. Pershing, who contended then that civilization would destroy itself without some such move.

"Speaking on the 12th of this month," continued Senator Borah, "General Pershing in New York City said that America should abandon its fallacious and foolish policy of disarmament and adopt a program of preparedness to defend the national life of the United States."

Mr. Borah quoted numerous other army and navy officers in support of his point.

"Armaments and big armies and navies have never led toward peace," he said. "They lead to war. It has

Detectives Seize $15,000 in Bogus American Express Traveler Checks.

COUNTERFEITS CASHED HERE

Printing Plant Located in Asbury Park and Engraver Is Put in Jail.

ERRORS IN FIRST PLATE

Second Edition So Good an Imitation That Detection of Fraud Was Difficult.

A black velour hat, distinctive in style, was the sole clue which was followed across the country and which finally led to the arrest of two men in New Orleans charged with putting out counterfeit American Express Company traveler checks and the seizure of a quantity of fraudulent checks. This became public yesterday when detectives for the company made known the arrest in Asbury Park of Giles M. Ranney, an engraver, who is now held in the Freehold jail charged with counterfeiting checks. Just how many checks were disposed of and how much money was obtained is not known yet, but it is said that $15,000 in counterfeit checks have been recovered.

The first intimation that the American Express Company had that their checks were being counterfeited was on Nov. 25, when the cashier of the Republic Bank of this city notified the company that several suspicious-looking checks had been cashed by tradesmen along West Forty-second Street, and had been sent to the bank with deposits. C. M. Leeds of the express company and C. F. Robb of the Burns International Detective Agency at once took up the trail. Beyond the fact that two men had been exchanging the checks for cash and merchandise in the shopping district here, they had but little to go on. Their first step was to send broadcast by telegraph a warning to merchants and banks to look out for the spurious checks.

Errors in First Counterfeits.

The first checks that came into their possession were excellent in workmanship but contained some glaring errors. The left side of the company's traveler checks contains the names of branch offices where checks may be obtained and disposed of and is followed by some printed information regarding the checks. This part of the check had been printed by the counterfeiters in type slightly different than the original. They spelled Antwerp "Anthwerp," "Edengurgh" for Edinburgh, "Basel" for Basle, "Glascow" for Glasgow, "Pekin" for Peking, "New Ygrk" for New York; should appeared as "shold" and countries as "cuontries." The ink was a shade off color, the serial number was imperfect and the alignment was slightly off in some places.

A few days after the counterfeit appeared in West Forty-second Street a man went into a store in Pittsburgh, selected a black velour hat and offered a $50 check in payment. The salesman became suspicious and called the manager, whereupon the customer fled with the new hat, leaving his old one behind.

Detectives started out to follow the black velour hat. It was found that the wearer and a companion had left Pittsburgh and headed for Cincinnati. The detectives arrived in Cincinnati just after the pair left by train after cashing some of the bogus checks. Railroad men recalled that the man in the velour hat and a companion had bought tickets for New Orleans.

Identified by Velour Hat.

Word was telegraphed to that city and to express company agents along the line. An agent boarded the train at Mobile and located the pair by the black velour hat. At New Orleans he followed them to a hotel and there they were arrested on Dec. 3, the day before the counterfeiting plant was discovered in New Jersey. The prisoners are James Watson and Walter R. Nolan, the latter said to be a Chicago pugilist. They were taken back to Cincinnati on Dec. 12 and they are now held there awaiting the action of the Grand Jury there on charges of having passed spurious checks. All the checks put out were for $50 and $100.

Ranney, the detectives said, appeared in Asbury Park in October. He is an expert photo-engraver, and, according to the detectives, has served time in Federal prisons in Atlanta and Galveston. He lived in West 124th Street, it was said, before he went to Asbury Park. He obtained a job with a colored artist, who, with a partner, conducts a small engraving plant there and had the artist copy sections of a genuine traveler check, ostensibly for a legiti-

LONDON, Dec. 22.—Lord Lonsdale, who is perhaps England's most popular sportsman, startled a luncheon audience today. Speaking at the opening of the International Circus at the Olympian in London, he confessed that he himself had belonged to a circus in his youth and traveled with it for a year and a half.

Lord Lonsdale is a wealthy patron of many sports, attends most of the big boxing matches and is always prominent on the race track and at horse shows.

DEMANDS STRONG'S REMOVAL AS JUDGE

Harry C. Perkins Declares the Jurist "Tried to Run" Nassau County.

HE PRESENTS 18 CHARGES

Lawyer Denounces Failure to Receive Jail Presentment—Road Contracts Involved.

A recommendation that Justice Selah B. Strong of Nassau County be impeached and dismissed from the bench has been made by Harry C. Perkins of Binghamton, counsel for the legislative committee which investigated charges of misconduct against Justice Strong recently. The committee will meet in the Hotel Commodore in the middle of next week to consider their counsel's recommendation and a brief submitted by former Senator Edgar T. Brackett, counsel for Justice Strong, and decide what action to take.

There are many allegations of misconduct in Mr. Perkins's brief to the committee. They are summarized in eighteen general charges. Most of them declare that Justice Strong was actuated in what he did by political considerations and the final summary was that he "arrogated to himself the entire Government of the county" and set himself up as a "political dictator."

Mr. Brackett, at his home in Saratoga, characterized the brief last night as nothing more than a prosecutor's argument. He said he had been expecting something of the kind, but that Mr. Perkins's views were not necessarily those of the committee and that it was for the committee to decide what action was to be taken.

Assails Grand Jury Course.

The brief contains a severe indictment of Justice Strong's course with the Nassau County Grand Jury hearings in December, 1921, and January, 1922, particularly for his alleged refusal to receive and file a presentment of the Grand Jury commending the management of the county jail. It was as a result of those charges that the Nassau County Bar Association preferred charges against Justice Strong which led to a legislative investigation by a committee headed by Assemblyman Edmund B. Jenks.

"It is the contention of counsel to the committee," said the final paragraph of Mr. Perkins's brief, "that in its report to the Assembly the committee should recommend that Selah B. Strong be impeached and removed from office as provided in Section 13 of Article VI. of the Constitution of the State of New York."

Summary of the Charges.

The eighteen charges of Mr. Perkins against Justice Strong follow:

"The records show the following misconducts of Judge Strong while presiding at the December, 1921, and January, 1922, terms of the Supreme Court in Nassau County:

"1. An illegal John Doe proceeding set in motion by Judge Strong, as committing Magistrate, which included wholesale abuses of judicial process and authority.

"2. Displacement of Sheriff and employment of State troopers to serve processes and guard Judge's chambers.

"3. Displacement of District Attorney in the investigation of criminal charge by an attorney privately employed.

"4. The usurpation of the functions of the Grand Jury by the John Doe proceedings, so called.

"5. Submission of matters without jurisdiction to the Grand Jury for political purposes.

"6. Wilful misstatements of law and facts in charges to the Grand Jury for political purposes.

"7. Coercion of the Grand Jury to secure indictments of Both and Weston.

"(8) Attempt to supplant the County Attorney as legal adviser to the Controller.

"(9) Unjust criticism of the County Judge for political purposes.

"(10) Unjust criticism of the Surrogate for political purposes.

"(11) Unjust criticism of the County Attorney for political purposes.

"(12) Unjust criticism of the Supervisor for political purposes.

"(13) Unjust charge of crime against State officials for political purposes.

"(14) Discourtesy to counsel.

"(15) Discourtesy to litigants.

"(16) Discourtesy to county judges and justices of the Supreme Court.

"(17) Discourtesy to the Appellate Division.

"(18) An attempt to arrogate to himself the entire government of the County of Nassau and to set himself up as a political dictator, discharging the functions of Judge, Magistrate, Sheriff, Prosecutor, County Attorney, and Grand Jury; a condition of affairs for which there is no warrant in our laws and a thing foreign to our system of government."

Road Contracts Involved.

The Grand Jury proceedings on which many of the charges were based had to do with road contracts in which it was alleged that a political ring in Nassau County was interested. Mr. Brackett did not put in a defense against those

BECKER CONVICTED, 1ST DEGREE MURDER; VERDICT IN AN HOUR

Jury Decides Ash Pit Murder Case at 1:47 This Morning After Night Court Session.

TRIAL SPEEDED TO FINISH

Three Ballots Taken, First Standing 8 for Conviction of Charge, 3 for Acquittal.

FOUGHT HARD FOR HIS LIFE

Defendant on Stand All Day—Defense Blamed Norkin for the Slaying.

Deliberating exactly an hour, the jury at 1:47 this morning brought in a verdict of murder in the first degree against Abraham Becker, charged with killing his wife last April by striking her on the head with an iron bar and burying her in an ashpit in the Bronx.

In arriving at a verdict, it was learned that the jury cast three ballots. The first one stood eight for murder in the first degree, one for second degree and three for acquittal. This result was changed slightly on the next ballot, and the third found a unanimous jury.

Becker's composure throughout the case has been surprising to every one, and when the jury came in with the verdict he looked at them with face as impassive as a stone image.

Becker watched while a poll of the jury was taken and then stood up for his pedigree. He gave his answers in low, calm tones, and a moment later walked quietly out of the court to his cell in the county jail.

The trial was finished at the first night session the court has held in the trial. Judge Gibbs determined to close the case before Christmas, and yesterday, over the protests of Alexander Mayper, counsel for the defense, he announced that the court would convene in the evening after the two regular day sessions, and that the case would go to the jury at that night session.

For nearly six hours yesterday Becker was on the witness stand under a severe grilling by Assistant District Attorney Cohn, who attempted to break down the direct testimony of the defendant that his wife had disappeared following a quarrel with Reuben Norkin, who owned the yard in which the woman was buried. Becker left the stand for the prisoner's pen at the end of the afternoon session and counsel began his address to the jury.

Mr. Mayper blamed the ill feeling in the neighborhood for the fact that many former friends of the defendant and his wife appeared against him. He characterized the testimony of Harry Monstein and Becker's alleged confession to him as "a tissue of lies." Counsel did not spare the police in his summing up, charging the detectives in the case with trying to force the crime on an innocent person. He pleaded with the jury to remember that the burden of proof lay on the prosecution and challenged the identification of the body of the woman found in the pit as that of Mrs. Becker.

Prosecutor Defends Police.

For the State, Mr. Cohn denounced Becker as a stone-hearted man who was not even moved by the sight of the clothing and the possessions of his murdered wife. Mr. Cohn came to the defense of the police by pointing to the excellent records of some of the officers. He said it was a common practice for lawyers with a poor case to blame it on the police.

Judge Gibbs, in his charge to the jury, pointed out that the guilt of the defendant must be found beyond a reasonable doubt. He warned against mistaking a sympathetic for a reasonable doubt. He said that the jurors should look at the facts with the same calmness and coolness they would judge a proposition in their daily lives and act accordingly. Referring to the attack on the police by the defense, the Judge spoke of the work of patrolmen protecting the lives and property of citizens and said: "The livery of the city of New York could not be taken as a badge of dishonesty."

He explained the law in regard to the different degrees of murder and informed the jurors that they could arbitrarily bring in a verdict of murder in the second degree, carrying life imprisonment. At the same time he warned them that unless it was proved beyond a reasonable doubt that there had not been murder in the first degree they would be violating their oaths as jurors.

The final session of the trial began about 8:30 o'clock last night. Judge Gibbs denied a request from the foreman of the jury that the jurors be permitted to examine that part of the county jail where, according to witnesses, Becker confessed to his friend, Monstein, that he paid Reuben Norkin $100 to murder Mrs. Becker. Detectives testified that they heard the conversation.

"The case is closed," said Judge Gibbs. "You gentlemen have all the evidence, and I do not believe it is necessary that you visit the jail. I assume full responsibility in denying the request."

In summing up Mr. Mayper, for the defense, reminded the jury that it was "not only right but permissive that they temper justice with mercy."

"You have the greatest responsibility that can be laid upon men," he said. "You have the body and soul of a man presented to you in the arms of the law. I would impress upon each one of you your responsibility in a case of murder in the first degree."

The "Poison of Panic."

Attacking the testimony against Becker, he reminded the jury of the feeling that has been aroused against the accused since the body of the woman was found in the ash pit.

"There is a great tendency in human beings to add a little to everything that is told them and to add a little to everything they see," said Mr. Mayper. "Up to the time that Harry Monstein gave his evidence there was no evidence whatever produced by the prosecution that should receive any weight or credence. You have heard witnesses admit

EXPLOSION REVEALS WIRE-BOUND BODIES OF SUPPOSED KU KLUX VICTIMS IN LAKE; LOUISIANA GOVERNOR SENDS MORE TROOPS

Machine Gunners Protect State's Attorneys Sent by Governor for Mer Rouge Inquiry

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 22.—Protected by a machine gun company, Company D, 156th Infantry, of New Orleans, Attorney General Coco, Assistant Attorney General S. V. Walmsley and two physicians were sent to Mer Rouge tonight by order of Governor Parker. The Attorneys General will conduct an investigation from a legal standpoint and the two physicians will make an examination of the two bodies of supposed victims of the Ku Klux Klan recovered today from Lake Lafourche.

Feeling at Mer Rouge and Bastrop, the parish seat, was reported to be growing much more intense today, and the machine gun company was deemed necessary to protect the State officials. Most of the citizens of the district are sympathetic with or are members of the Ku Klux Klan and the presence of troops is strongly resented.

The machine gun company from New Orleans will be reinforced by a company of militia from Alexandria, which will be picked up en route. This will make three companies of Guardsmen on duty at Mer Rouge.

Reports reaching the Attorney General's office are to the effect that many witnesses are in sight who will give startling testimony, and wholesale arrests are expected.

Every precaution is being taken to prevent an outbreak and also to head off suspects who are expected to make an effort to escape now that the bodies have been found and it seems possible that the State can prove the corpus delicti.

Machine Company D is the crack outfit of the Louisiana Infantry. It is commanded by Captain Oscar Schneidaux, while Company A of Alexandria is in charge of Captain Heath Petrie, while Colonel Guerre of New Orleans will be in charge of the three units that will be in the field by tomorrow morning. The troops have sealed orders from the Governor, which are not to be opened until they have progressed well on their way to their destination. Four machine guns and a large quantity of ammunition were taken from here, along with fifty rifles.

BURGLAR ADMITS ROBBING 100 HOUSES

Captured After a $1,000 Theft, He Tells Detectives He Got $200,000 Loot.

SECONDHAND DEALER HELD

Among the Victims Are Lou Tellegen and Nita Naldi, Motion Picture Actress.

A burglar who specialized in robbing the apartments of actors and actresses "because they left their jewelry around so carelessly" was arrested yesterday morning after a chase in West End Avenue and held without bail by Magistrate Hatting in the West Side Court. He said he was Thomas F. Belford, 23 years old, of 159 West Sixty-second Street.

Belford went out riding with detectives yesterday on his promise that he could help them to recover some of the things he had stolen, and in a few hours they regained thousands of dollars' worth of jewelry and arrested Benjamin Bernstein, a dealer in second-hand goods at 403 West Fifty-ninth Street, as a receiver of stolen goods.

Among the articles recovered were a diamond lorgnette, valued at $1,500; a pearl necklace valued at $850, and a jade bead necklace valued at $250. They were identified by Charles A. Cone of 62 East Fifty-sixth Street as having been stolen from his apartment on Oct. 27. Bernstein made no record of the pledges, the police say, and they seized all his books and records.

Says His Loot Was $200,000.

Belford told Detectives Edward Fitzgerald and William Courtney that he had committed about 100 daylight burglaries in the last few months and taken jewelry worth at least $200,000. His arrest was believed to explain many recent apartment robberies in the middle west and east sides of Manhattan.

Thursday night he entered an apartment at 303 West Ninety-second Street, occupied by Mrs. Sadie Bennet, but Mrs. Bennet came home before midnight and saw him. He ran out with jewelry and silverware valued at $1,000. Mrs. Bennet's screams were heard by Fitzgerald and Courtney, who had been assigned to the recent $10,000 robbery at the home of Frieda Hempel, 271 Central Park West, and they caught Belford at West End Avenue and Eighty-seventh Street.

When they took him to the West 100th Street Police Station and got some food for Belford, he offered to tell them about his robberies, and admitted he had been a "matinee burglar" since last August. Among the apartments he had entered, detectives said he admitted, was that of Lou Tellegen at 18 East Fifty-seventh Street, from which he took jewelry and a saxophone worth $5,000. Another apartment was that of Nita Naldi, a motion picture actress, at 46 East Sixty-first Street, where he got $5,000 worth of jewelry.

Shows Detectives Scene of Burglaries.

When he offered to point out other apartments he had robbed Belford went with Lieutenant Curley and the other two detectives in an automobile through the upper east side. He pointed out two apartments where he said he had committed burglaries. One was at 1,038 Park Avenue, where it was found that Mrs. J. Maynard had been robbed of an $800 watch in October.

The other apartment house was at 960 Madison Avenue. Belford said he had stolen two overcoats from an apartment on the second floor, and it was found that Mr. Gordon DuBille had lost a fur overcoat worth $500 and a plain coat worth $150.

Belford said he had changed his name several times to correspond with the initials on jewelry he had stolen. He never carried a revolver.

Detectives will ride about the city with Belford again today. He offered to help them all he could. Much time was spent yesterday in police stations going over records of robberies.

QUEBEC CATHEDRAL DESTROYED BY FIRE

Building Dating From 1647 Was Valued at $1,000,000—Priceless Archives Gone.

FIRE BELIEVED INCENDIARY

This Was the Ninth Catholic Institution Burned Recently—Legislature to Inquire.

QUEBEC, Dec. 22.—Fire which early this morning destroyed the historic $1,000,000 Catholic Cathedral of Quebec, known as the Basilica of the Immaculate Conception and used also as the parish church of Notre Dame parish, is believed to have been incendiary.

Priceless relics and archives dating back to the first settlements of Canada by the French more than 300 years ago were destroyed. Portions of the cathedral structure, now lying in ruins, date from the first cathedral founded here in 1647 by the first Bishop of Quebec, Mgr. de Laval de Montmorency, though the complete building as it stood until this morning was the result of several restorations and additions under subsequent bishops. The Basilica was the official church of Cardinal Bégin, Archbishop of Quebec.

Among the priceless art treasures lost was the original Van Dyke painting of the Crucifixion.

The fire was the subject of discussion in the Provincial Legislature this afternoon, when it was suggested that the series of fires in Catholic institutions throughout the Dominion, now numbering nine in recent months, might be the work of organized incendiaries.

Taking the floor after Premier Taschereau had expressed to Cardinal Bégin the regrets of the Legislature at the loss of the famous Basilica, Arthur Suave, leader of the opposition, said:

"Would it not be well to question whether this fire is not the work of a criminal organization? That is in the air, and I call the attention of the Attorney General to the fact that within a year we have had to deplore losses of that kind every month."

Anglicans Offer Use of Their Church

From all over the country and from persons of the Protestant as well as of the Catholic faith expressions of sympathy for the loss of the historic church and its priceless treasures have come tonight. Offers of help and assistance in rebuilding the cathedral, a work which is expected to begin soon, were as numerous and as widespread.

Among those who expressed sympathy was Dean Shreve of the Quebec Anglican Cathedral, who offered the use of the cathedral to the Catholic authorities for observance of the Christmas midnight mass. Arrangements had been previously made, however, to celebrate the mass in the seminary chapel, and Dean Shreve's offer was declined.

Small bursts of flame, leaping fitfully from the top of the wrecked tower of the basilica could still be seen tonight.

Parish Priest Receives Threat.

A short circuit in the electrical wiring was first held accountable for today's blaze, but later Monsignor Lafiamme, the curé of the cathedral, presented to Daniel Lorrain, Chief of Provincial Police, the following letter postmarked in Montreal:

"I will burn your church down on Dec. 28."

Suspicious strangers also were reported to have been seen prowling around the church.

The police then began an investigation based on the belief that the fire had been set.

That Catholic religious orders had come to view the series of fires with suspicion was made evident recently when announcement was made that bloodhounds and armed guards would be

KLAN FEELING RUNS HIGH

FALSE CLUE SENT TO TROOPS

While They Drag Lake Cooper Explosion Occurs at Lake La Fourche, 20 Miles Away.

BODIES ARE BADLY TORN

Identification Made Possible by Belt and Clothing—Victims Had Been Bound With Wire.

Special to The New York Times.

MER ROUGE, La., Dec. 22.—The search for two Mer Rouge men who were seized four months ago by a band of white robed, hooded men ended at last midnight when a mysterious blast of 1,000 pounds of dynamite brought their battered bodies to the surface of Lake La Fourche, twenty miles from Lake Cooper, where State and Federal agents had been searching on a false report.

The discovery of the bodies, the ruse employed to throw the investigators off the trail and what looked like an attempt to destroy traces of the murders, prompted Governor John M. Parker at Baton Rouge to assume personal charge of what probably will be a startling aftermath of last night's crime-revealing explosion.

Attorney General Coco and an assistant, under orders from the Governor, are on their way here tonight. Two crack companies of the Louisiana State Guard are also on the same train, and with their arrival a force of close to 1,000 armed men will impose what will virtually be martial law on Morehouse Parish. Operatives from the Department of Justice, who have been here for weeks, are reporting directly to Director William J. Burns, and, it was reliably reported here, have turned in evidence that will result in wholesale arrests.

Local Feeling at White Heat.

The discovery that Filmore Watts Daniels, a World War veteran, and Thomas F. Richards, automobile mechanic, two of five men kidnapped last August by the masked men, had been done away with, either through being thrown alive and bound into the waters of Lake La Fourche or first killed and then weighted down in the small sheet of water, has brought to a white heat local feeling about the Ku Klux Klan. Both men are known to have been menaced by the "Invisible Empire," and the establishment of their murder has done much to bear out the charge, made recently at the White House by Governor Parker in person, that the secret organization had usurped power in Louisiana.

Both Daniels and Richards had been warned by the Mer Rouge Klansmen, once after they had been taken from their homes at night and examined and at another time when Daniels was caught spying on one of the meetings of the Klan. They were also accused by some members of the Klan of attempting to slay the Mayor of Mer Rouge, who was reputed to be a Klan member.

Armed infantrymen are patrolling the streets and the countryside and scores of machine guns, with ample ammunition, are stored at strategic points throughout the parish. The community, stirred by the presence of the soldiers, is split in two—pro-Klan and anti-Klan. A false move on either side would inevitably bring serious disorder, for citizens are carrying rifles in the country districts. This state of feeling, apparently fully recognized by Governor Parker, prompted the dispatch of the additional guardsmen.

The kidnapping of Daniels and Richards came in the late afternoon of Aug. 24 between this town and Baltrop. Three other men seized at the same time were hurried into a woods, tied to trees and lashed unmercifully. Daniels and Richards, both young men, were then hurried off by their captors, while the three whipped men were left strapped to the trees. Eventually, the three men made their escape and reported the disappearance of Daniels and Richards.

At first the search was only a routine affair. Then whispers began to circulate through the community and finally, as the days went past and belief became conviction that murder had been the fate of the missing ones, rumors of their kidnapping came to the Capitol at Baton Rouge. Governor Parker, already concerned over other similar reports, took action at once, dispatching personal investigators to the scene.

It was understood tonight that their reports, coupled with information from other points in the State, were behind the Governor's appearance at Washington. At any rate, his appeal there and the appearance of four skilled operatives from the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice were almost coincidental.

Investigators Put on False Scent.

Clue after clue was run down to failure. Information was plentiful, but each time investigation brought the agents and military intelligence officers seemingly farther from their theory that the Ku Klux Klan had spirited the missing men away.

Two days ago, the investigators were informed that a thorough search of Lake Cooper, near here, would disclose something. This information pointed along lines far from the "tips" that had been

Insane Veteran Trips Guard and Escapes; Held for Annoying Mrs. Raymond T. Baker

Sidney Collet, a war veteran who had been sent to Bellevue Hospital for observation as a result of alleged annoyance to Mrs. Raymond T. Baker, formerly Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, tripped up a Bellevue attendant who had charge of him and escaped in a crowd on Chambers Street yesterday. He was at large last night. It was the third time he has had such an experience, having escaped previously from two Government hospitals.

The escape took place in front of the building at 51 Chambers Street where Supreme Court Justice Gavegan, in chambers, had ruled that Collet should be returned to the United States Veterans' Bureau Hospital 81, at Kingsbridge Road and Sedgwick Avenue, the Bronx, from which he escaped three or four weeks ago. Collet had been under observation in the psychopathic ward at Bellevue Hospital since Dec. 19, and his case had been diagnosed as dementia praecox and paranoia by Dr. William Steinach, visiting physician.

Collet was sent to Bellevue for observation from the East Fifty-first Street Station last Tuesday afternoon. He had been taken to the station house by House eDtective Murphy of the Hotel Ambassador. According to House Detective Hawkins, who was on duty at the hotel last night, Murphy had trapped Collet in the lobby of the hotel about 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, as a result of a complaint by Mrs. Baker that a man had been annoying her. Hawkins said that Collet had telephoned to Mrs. Baker at 1 o'clock in the morning a few days before he was trapped. Mrs. Baker left the Ambassador yesterday morning.

The record at Bellevue showed that Collet gave his age as 35, his occupation as an actor and his address at 410 West Fifty-seventh Street.

passed along before and, for this reason if for no other, the investigators went promptly to work.

Apparatus for dragging the comparatively shallow waters of the small lake was brought on and two divers were summoned from St. Louis. A big force of men was turned loose on the quiet waters of the lake in boats, each boat equipped for grappling. About the shores of the piece of water soldiers were posted so that a ring was drawn against intruders. Outsiders were kept so far away from the operations that reporters were not even able to catch a glimpse of the search.

Until late last night the searchers kept up the quest in the waters of the lake. Big acetylene lights on the shores made the scene like daylight. Soon after 11 o'clock, however, work was abandoned for the night, but the detail of soldiers was continued on patrol duty.

Just before midnight the soldiers, in command of Lieutenant Percy, at Lake Cooper noticed flares of light on Little Marshy Place, a bit of swamp land near the lake. The sentinels who noticed the flashes were on the alert instantly, because they had been warned that some one might try to steal in when the work was suspended and endeavor to recover the bodies the searchers were looking for.

After observing that the lights seemed to advance down to the lake side, the sentries passed the word to Lieutenant Percy. Acting on instructions, light machine guns were trained on the flaring lights and approximately 150 shots whistled across the lake. This was followed by a rush by the soldiers, but not a trace of men was found.

Mysterious Explosion Reveals Bodies.

At this moment, a more serious undertaking was under way at Eason Ferry on Lake La Fourche, twenty-two miles away. Lake La Fourche, in plans known to only a few of the investigators, had been slated for dragging next. At the time that the lights on the shore of Lake Cooper were making their appearance, an explosion of tremendous force shook the tiny settlement at Eason Ferry. Windows were shattered and Lake Cooper were making their appearantly, however, the citizens, for some unknown reason, did not communicate the occurence to the soldiers' headquarters here.

The mysterious occurrence at Lake Cooper, however, was reported to Captain Cooper of Company K of the State Guard, commandant of the military forces. A detail of soldiers hiked eight miles into this city, arriving at 3 o'clock. Soon after they had told of the mysterious lights J. C. Nettles, a former planter and merchant of Oak Ridge, near Lake La Fourche, telephoned that two torsos had been found floating at the Eason Ferry by a fisherman.

When the information was added that there had been a tremendous explosion during the night Captain Cooper put two and two together and decided that some one had anticipated the searchers and made an effort to regain the bodies. He made a hasty telephonic inquiry to establish whether any of the soldiers had biasted Lake La Fourche as a preliminary to a more thorough quest. He ascertained that none of the official investigators had done so.

With a force of men he hurried to Lake La Fourche and flung a cordon around it. The bodies, discovered by J. L. Billington, the fisherman, were left floating where they were first seen until the arrival of metallic coffins, when they were brought ashore and a pathologist from the State Board of Health began an autopsy. Both were in an advanced stage of decomposition. The legs and arms as well as the heads, were missing.

Bodies Bound With Wire.

Heavy bands of wire had been wrapped around the trunks apparently to bind the arms and also to hold in place weights to keep the bodies on the bottom of the lake which at this time of year averages about sixty feet in depth. The investigators said that this wire had rusted to the point where the shock of the heavy explosion broke it, permitting the torsos to rise to the top.

At first the investigators were unable to establish the identity of the bodies positively, although they were convinced that they were those of Daniels and Richards. Relatives who saw them after they had been removed to an improvised morgue were unable to identify their kin and it was not until one of the Secret Service men rubbed clean a silver belt buckle taken from one of the torsos that identification was made.

Rubbing away the tarnish placed upon it by the action of the water, the agent found the initials "R. F. W. D.," proving that the wearer had been Daniels. Also a relative identified the belt as one often worn by the war veteran.

While this examination was being made, the Federal agents and soldiers were engaged in endeavoring to find a clue to the persons who placed the dynamite in the lake. The ground on all sides was roped off and none was permitted to approach. After several hours of diligent search the investigators found two things which they believe will go a long way toward tracing the dynamiters, who are believed to have been members of the orginal kidnaping band.

Hunt Clues to Dynamiters.

First a bunch of keys was found, picked up near the ferry landing. The landing itself had been blown to shreds, but the keys, lying low in the grass, escaped the force of the blast. Next, proceeding over the ground and combing it carefully, the agents found a hack saw. The ferry is a small, old-fashioned one, operated by a chain. The hack saw, in the belief of the detectives, was used to cut the chain of the ferry. Whether the dynamiters thus hoped to hamper pursuit by putting the ferry out of service has not been determined. The small boat, however, was in midstream.

The detectives admitted that they were working tonight in an effort to establish the ownership of the keys and the saw. They expect, however, that anything about them to distinguish them from others, and the agents admitted they were not hopeful of results along this line.

As to the dynamite, however, they were more hopeful. They pointed out that it should be easy to trace the source of so large a quantity, the fact that 1,000 pounds at least had been employed having been fixed by State experts. Dealers in dynamite and other explosives who operate in Louisiana under State and Federal permits are to be canvassed thoroughly in an effort to trace the place of sale.

The agents are tonight making an effort to recover the weights which were attached to the bodies of Daniels and Richards when they were cast into the water. Divers who endeavored to search the bottom of the lake were forced to abandon the hunt, temporarily at least. They reported that the bottom was treacherous with mud and that until measures were taken to offset this further search might result in the weights sinking down in the mud, where they never would be recovered.

The agents have learned, however, that two heavy iron wheels, said to have been from a log wagon, that lay for years near the banks of Lake La Fourche, disappeared on the night of the kidnapping of the men near Bastrop. The disappearance of these wheels and the knowledge that the masked party went in the direction of the ferry landing convinced the investigators that the bodies had been placed in the lake at a point near the ferry.

Soldiers Guard Bodies.

After the preliminary examination and identification at the makeshift morgue established on the shores of Lake La Fourche was over the bodies were placed in the metal coffins and taken to this town. They were placed in a vacant store room on the lower floor of the Masonic Hall. A detachment of troops was placed in charge and soldiers will remain on constant duty until the State pathologists have completed their medical examination.

The Coroner announced that he would not attempt an inquest until he had received instructions from Baton Rouge. He added that he would hold the inquest tomorrow, however, when he was informed that Attorney General Coco and State pathologists would arrive here by an early morning train.

The troops were also instructed to remain in complete control of the area around Lake La Fourche and to permit no one to pass their lines except on signed orders from Colonel Guerre of New Orleans who arrived late tonight to take command of the troops.

While the soldiers guarded every avenue of approach, men in boats made efforts to recover the missing parts of the two bodies. Once a group of searchers in a rowboat brought up a strand of wire, but when this was matched with the wire taken from the bodies it was found to be of a differentt type, and had not been in the water so long.

HUNDREDS SAW TWO MEN KIDNAPPED

Road Blocked by Hooded Men Who Seized Richards and Daniels Last August.

Special to The New York Times.

MER ROUGE, La., Dec. 22.—The kidnapping of F. W. Daniels and T. F. Richards of Mer Rouge, whose bodies were found today in La Fourche Lake near here, was said to have outrivaled any Wild West story written.

The kidnapping took place on Aug. 24 on the Bastrop-Mer Rouge highway and was observed by hundreds of people. Boosters for a proposed $1,000,000 good roads bond issue held a barbecue that day in Bastrop and thousands of persons went there from all parts of Morehouse Parish. In the afternoon they started for their homes and every road leading out of Bastrop, the parish seat, was lined with automobiles, buggies, wagons and other vehicles.

At a point about midway between Bastrop and Mer Rouge, which are eight miles apart, traffic on the highway was suddenly blocked by an automobile brought to a standstill across the road. For a mile and a half back the road was blocked with vehicles.

A small group of automobiles, filled with masked men in the white-hooded regalia of the Ku Klux Klan, moved back along the line of blocked vehicles and rifle shotguns, rifles and pistols began searching them. They finally seized Richards, Daniels and the latter's father, J. L. Daniels; W. C. Andrews and C. C. (Tot) Davenport. The five men were blindfolded, their hands were tied and they were thrown into the masked men's machines. The hooded bands then turned their cars to the forest and disappeared. The machine that had blocked the roadway drew out of its position and followed the other cars.

The fate of the kidnappers bore Louisiana and Arkansas license plates, but the excitement was so great that the spectators say they failed to make note of the numbers. A panic was created by the hooded men's actions.

Women fainted and one woman who was in a delicate condition nearly died. As the maskers presented their weapons to the faces of the men, women and children in the waiting line of vehicles, women became hysterical and children screamed in fright. Men who were compelled to submit to it, declare the scene beggared description, that road agents of the early Wild West days never acted more disgracefully.

That was the last seen of Daniels and Richards until their bodies were brought to the surface on Lake La Fourche today.

The maskers took the five men into the forest and administered an unmerciful beating to Andrews and J. L. Daniels. Then they took these two men and Davenport to the town of Collinston and released them.

The senior Daniels, who owns considerable property, a short while later offered a reward for information as to the whereabouts of his son and Richard. He expressed the belief then that they had been murdered by the kidnappers.

Events leading to the kidnapping and murder of the two men comprise a story of intense feeling of the Parish of Morehouse in the northeast section of Louisiana torn against itself, of suspicious whisperings of neighbor to neighbor and against neighbors, of men who never went unarmed, of anxious mothers keeping their broods close indoors and weapons ever close at hand. In business houses there were pistols in desk drawers and business-looking shotguns and rifles leaning against the desks.

In the larger town of Bastrop the Ku Klux Klan predominated. In the smaller village of Mer Rouge there was a division, with the anti-Klan sentiment slightly in the majority.

Mer Rouge, in French, means "Red Sea," and the surrounding country is dotted with lakes and marshes. Feeling in the town ran true to its name. They were seeing red there. Several months prior to the kidnapping Dr. B. M. McKoin was elected Mayor of Mer Rouge on a clean-up ticket. The people there were tired of vice and bootleggers and gamblers. Dr. McKoin was head of the Masonic lodge.

He started a clean-up campaign. One night the doctor, after a telephone message, went supposedly to call on a patient several miles distant. When he arrived there he discovered he had not been summoned. On his return home he was fired on from ambush. He said Providence had spared his life. Persons not believing his story asserted he had fired the bullets himself and pointed to two bullet holes in the seat of his automobile. They asserted either bullet would have killed him had he been in the driver's seat.

Dr. McKoin received a number of anonymous letters reading: "We missed you last time, but we will get you the next time." Some of the notes ordered him to leave town.

Soon afterward he moved with his family to the City of Monroe. The people of the parish were divided on his experience. The feeling of resentment among his friends was accentuated and they announced they would stand by him. He was reputed to have been a member of the Klan.

Local authorities investigated the shooting, but could not obtain sufficient evidence to warrant an arrest. Some of the Klansmen suspected Richards and Daniels, and one night a crowd of men, clad in the garb of Klansmen, seized the two men one at a time, separately, examined them and after threatening them released them. Richards and Daniels told their friends they had recognized the voices of some of the masked men.

A few nights later the Klan held a meeting in a grove near Mer Rouge. Daniels spied on the meeting, but was caught when he stepped on a stick. He told his friends later that the Klansmen told him to keep his mouth shut or stand the consequences. He specially named a prominent citizen of Morehouse Parish as the leader of the Klan.

It was some days later that the kidnapping took place. A few days following it a report circulated in Mer Rouge that Klansmen were coming from Bastrop that night to attack the town. A counter report was circulated in Bastrop that Mer Rouge citizens would attack Bastrop that night. Armed bands of men stood guard in both towns, but there was no attack in either place. Cooler heads succeeded in keeping peace the next day.

WANTS KLAN PAPER TO LIVE.

Liberties' Union Sees Free Press Menace In Hylan Suppression Plan.

A protest against Mayor Hylan's suggestion that the President order the Post Office Department to suppress Colonel Mayfield's Weekly, a pro-Ku Klux Klan paper published in Texas, was sent to President Harding yesterday by the American Civil Liberties Union. In a letter disavowing sympathy with the Ku Klux Klan movement, and signed by Harry F. Ward, Chairman, and Roger N. Baldwin, Director, the Union said:

"We beg to enter our protest against any such course of action as the Mayor of New York requests, in the firm conviction that any attempt to use the agencies of the Government to interfere with the rights of a free press does more harm than good. It is contrary to American traditions and principles. If it is sanctioned with reference to propaganda of the Ku Klux Klan, it might be applied with equal logic to other organizations and movements. Who shall sit in judgment upon what movements and opinions should be suppressed and what allowed access to the mails?"

REFUSES ARMORY FOR KLAN.

Governor Ritchie Bars Use by Organization "Under Mask."

BALTIMORE, Dec. 22. — Governor Ritchie today declined to let the Ku Klux Klan use the Fifth Regiment Armory here for a lecture. In a letter to Dr. J. H. Hawkins, Imperial Representative of the Klan, Governor Ritchie said that Adjutant General Reckord and himself felt "that permission to use the State armory should not be granted to any organization whose activities are conducted under mask."

The Klan wanted to use the armory for a lecture by William J. Simmons of Atlanta, now emperor of the organization.

MAY HANG FIREBUG.

Pennsylvania Farmers Threaten Vengeance for Burned Barns.

Special to The New York Times.

WESTCHESTER, Pa., Dec. 22.—A lull came tonight in the operations of the incendiaries who have caused losses aggregating more than half a million dollars to farmers of Chester, Delaware and Montgomery Counties since Oct. 1.

Thirty-eight barns have been destroyed, in many cases with all the live stock fodder, and hay and grain crops of the year. Chester County has suffered more than Delaware and Montgomery Counties combined, in each of which nine barns were destroyed, while in the first named the list totals twenty.

Farmers from many miles distant gathered here tonight to confer with State Police officials and in touch with the plan to run down the firebugs. The farmers have organized district vigilance committees, and it is said members of the committee may follow the methods used fifty years ago when horse stealing was a common practice in farming districts; if they catch the criminals.

Two confessed barn burners are in custody tonight, but Major C. M. Wilhelm, chief of the fire investigators, said he had no direct evidence that either prisoner had a part in the other barn fires in Chester, Delaware and Montgomery Counties.

COURT REJECTS A WILL.

Refuses Probate Because Woman Was Under Influence of Narcotics.

A decree of the Surrogates' Court admitting to probate a paper purporting to be the will of Miss Mary J. Pierson, who had been a public school teacher for forty years when she died, Dec. 30 last, was reversed by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court yesterday.

Miss Pierson left no known relatives but she gave from $200 to $500 each to ten friends and left the residuary estate to Miss Marie Shotwell of the Hotel Seymour, who had been her friend for ten years.

The opinion written by Justice Greenbaum, stated that Miss Pierson suffered from cancer and that narcotics had been administered to her to relieve her pain, for which reason "she was not in a condition to grasp all that was being done in connection with the signing of the document."

LONDON WEEKLIES ON LLOYD GEORGE

The Nation Publishes a Review of Ex-Premier's "Adventure in American Journalism."

THE OUTLOOK COMMENTS

Calls a Sentence of His Apologia Equivocal, but Doubts He Would Sell State Secrets.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 22.—Further comment of THE NEW YORK TIMES and Chicago Tribune cancellation of the contract with David Lloyd George for the American serial rights of his war memoirs which he had projected has been very restrained. Practically every important newspaper throughout Great Britain, except those which most strenuously support the ex-Premier, has published the announcement of the cancellation in its news columns, and in a large number of cases the lengthy summaries as cabled to The London Times and The Daily Mail of THE NEW YORK TIMES'S statement of the reasons for its action have been reprinted in the leading provincial organs.

Two London weeklies refer to the matter in their current issues. The Nation and Athenaeum says:

"It is interesting to hear from The Times that the story of Lloyd George's adventure in American journalism has been embodied by unanimous vote of the Senate in the Congressional Record. We do not know what fitting repository will be found for it here, unless the Cenotaph will do, but as it seems to make for the edification of journalists, if not of statesmen, we append the following summary:

"1. While still Prime Minister, Lloyd George sells for £40,000 to a highly respectable American newspaper syndicate the book of his war memoirs, to be completed within two years, the proceeds of which, after the protest of the public and others against its diversion to profit, are to be devoted to charities.

"2. Immediately on retiring from office, he negotiates with a less distinguished syndicate, including the notorious Hearst papers, a series of articles on political subjects for £7,500, to be written within a period overlapping that assigned to the memoirs.

"3. THE NEW YORK TIMES and later on The Chicago Tribune, two of the best known newspapers in America, learning of this plan, protest and, in connection with a special eye on the advertisements appearing in the States, declaring the articles to be much more valuable than the memoirs. They finally ask for an injunction restraining publication alternatively or demanding that the contract be canceled. A London friend then intervenes and begs Lloyd George not to close with the Hearst Syndicate, suggesting that he should offer the articles to THE NEW YORK TIMES for £8,000 or £9,000, £500 more than the original guarantee. Lloyd George consents not to close at once with the Hearst Syndicate.

"4. THE NEW YORK TIMES refuses the transaction indignantly, saying that if they "took the new articles and treated them as having defrauded them" and that it would be worse still to offer them, as had been suggested, to a new clientele.

"5. Finally Lloyd George offers to cancel THE NEW YORK TIMES contract and the offer is accepted."

Commenting on the case The Outlook says:

"The daily papers seem much exercised over a sentence in Lloyd George's apologia for his intended war book, in which he remarks that 'as the only Minister who held high office right through the war I imagine my book will be a contribution which no other person is in a position to make.' The sentence is certainly equivocal, but The Morning Post is hardly entitled to assume that the ex-Prime Minister is about to sell state secrets, even for the benefit of charity—not until he has actually done so. After all, Lloyd George knows the meaning of a Privy Councilor's oath and we cannot believe he intends to violate it.

"Whether his book will be of much value, except to hospital funds, without sensational revelations, is another point, but Lloyd George has steered between Scylla and Charybdis before and he may escape shipwreck again. The whole controversy is an example of giving a dog a bad name, for Asquith is also writing a war book and nobody has barked."

The Christian World says:

"That huge sum which Lloyd George was to get for writing his war reminiscences and to give to charity has now disappeared. The contract has been cancelled. The ostensible reason for cancellation is that the ex-Prime Minister has begun writing a series of articles for another American syndicate, but we imagine that the real reason is that Lloyd George has lost his selling value of reminiscences of a British Prime Minister while in office, obviously greater than their value when he is out of office and is only a leader of a group in Parliament. At the time the contract was made the book would, no doubt, have been worth the money, but that is probably not the case now. The contractors allege that Lloyd George really has broken the contract by writing serial articles which take the cream off the book, and no doubt in law they have a case."

INJUNCTION AGAINST PEROSI.

Italian Composer Restrained From Disposing of Musical Property.

ROME, Dec. 22.—An injunction was granted in court here today against Father Lorenzo Perosi, the noted composer of church music, restraining him from disposing of his property. This was done at the request of Perosi's family, with a view, it was explained, to protecting his famous oratorios and other musical compositions. Only three of these have been published, the manuscripts of the remainder being in his personal possession, and considered by his family to be unsafe, owing to his mental condition, which is described as growing worse.

Rome dispatches last May announced that Perosi had been examined by three physicians, called in consultation by his family, and that the doctors had issued a statement saying that they had prescribed isolation and rest for him after having found him subject to wandering ideas which influenced his conduct.

LONDON, Dec. 22.—Ambassador Harvey will sail for New York tomorrow morning on the steamship Berengaria from Southampton, accompanied by Major Seibert, military attaché, and Chandler Cobb, assistant commercial attaché.

The Ambassador went to Southampton today to bid adieu to his wife, his daughter, Mrs. Marcellus Thompson, and his granddaughter, Dorothy Marcellus Thompson, who are going to Madeira for the holidays.

Mr. Harvey will sleep tonight aboard the Berengaria. Post Wheeler, Counselor of the Embassy, accompanied him to Southampton.

BRITAIN PROTECTS MURMANSK TRAWLERS

Denies Soviet Right to Control 12 Miles from Shore—Claim for Seized Boat.

Copyright, 1922, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 22.—The question as to the right of any Government to extend its territorial waters is involved in negotiations for compensation for the loss of the steam trawler Magneta between Soviet Russia and the British Government, which the latter announces have failed.

The Magneta, with other British trawlers, was fishing Jan. 31 nine miles off the coast of Murmansk and was arrested by a Russian patrol on the ground that only Russian boats might fish within twelve miles of the shore. Two of the Magneta's crew were taken aboard the patrol and the Magneta was forced to anchor in a cove. A storm sprang up and the Magneta was driven ashore and wrecked with the loss of all hands.

The British Government then claimed £23,891 compensation, £8,591 being for the two men captured and the dependents of the ten men drowned and the rest for the Magneta's owners. The Soviet authorities offered £75 "compassionate" allowance for the loss of the trawler, as she was, it was alleged, illegally in territorial waters when arrested. The British Government declined to recognize this defense, as it is contrary to general maritime usage and would close to all but Russian fishermen 2,000 square miles of fishing grounds which in practice are used to any extent only by British and Norwegian vessels.

The negotiations have consequently broken down, and a British war vessel has been dispatched to Murmansk waters to protect fishing boats in pursuit of their lawful vocations.

HARDING GIVES LIBERTY TO 3 FEDERAL CONVICTS

But There is no Indication of Christmas Clemency for Wartime Offenders.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—There are no indications that President Harding will issue any Christmas pardons this year, nor that executive clemency will be extended at this period to the so-called political prisoners whose release has been urged by various individuals and organizations.

Today the President commuted the sentences of three Federal prisoners, one under sentence for murder, another for manslaughter and a third for forgery.

John Carl was the Leavenworth Warden's first choice for clemency. He was convicted in Alaska of murder and was sentenced for thirty years. He stated the killing was done in self-defense and that he pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree at the suggestion of a lawyer appointed by the Court to defend him. His term would have expired in December, 1932.

Another prisoner whose release from Leavenworth is ordered is Thomas Parker, who was convicted of manslaughter in the United States District Court at Waco, Tex. "Parker was a brother-in-law of the deceased," says a Department of Justice statement announcing the release of the prisoner, "and the killing was the outcome of abuse and mistreatment of his sister."

The third prisoner ordered released was John Willard Delaney, convicted and sentenced for thirteen months for forgery in the Southern District of California. He is a World War veteran and at the time of his arrest had been under treatment at various times in six Government hospitals.

"Apparently," said the Department of Justice statement, "he was driven to commit the offense through economic necessity. Both the United States Attorney and Judge Bledsoe recommended clemency."

Delaney's sentence would have expired next February.

TO HUNT NEAR HOME OF REPUTED MONSTER

Professor Riggs Says He Will Lasso Plesiosaurus and Lead It to Zoo if Found.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 22 (Associated Press).—Professor Elmer S. Riggs, a Chicago paleontologist, sailed for Patagonia today on a fossil hunting expedition for the Field Museum. He was informed by Professor Clemente Onelli, Director of the Buenos Aires Zoological Garden, that reports of the presence of a plesiosaurus were still being received from the Territory of Chubut, despite the failure of a group of Argentine scientists to find a prehistoric creature there last Spring.

"If I meet that plesiosaurus," said Professor Riggs to Professor Onelli, "I'll put a lariat around his neck and lead him direct to the Buenos Aires zoo."

The Chicagoan visited the Argentine paleontologist at Buenos Aires to hear his story of Patagonia's monster, listening with interest to the account of the unsuccessful search of the Andean Lake region where the creature was supposed to have been seen. Professor Riggs said that the data were very interesting, but could not tempt him from his fossil hunt. The plans for his expedition, he said, were still too indefinite to allow him to state whether he would visit the reputed haunts of the plesiosaurus.

Professor Onelli said that the name plesiosaurus was a misnomer and that the creature which he still believed to be alive in the Patagonian wilds was probably a survivor of the race of giant sloths.

Dr. Riggs and his companions will sail for Rio Gallegos, from which place they will proceed northward on horseback to search along the coast of the Territory of Santa Cruz for fossils of the Miocene period which are known to exist there. He expects to find the small fossilized ancestors of the glyptodon, which reached a gigantic size in the Pleistocene period.

CLEMENCEAU SEES HERRICK

Gives Ambassador Mulhouse Medal for Mount Vernon Museum.

PARIS, Dec. 22 (Associated Press).—Georges Clemenceau called at the American Embassy today and expressed to Ambassador Herrick his deep appreciation of the cordial attitude of the people of the United States during his American tour.

He also handed to the Ambassador, for transmission to the museum at Mount Vernon, a gold medal given him by the City of Mulhouse, Alsace, on the occasion of his first visit there after the liberation of the district from the Germans.

The medal was struck in 1898 to commemorate the centenary of the voluntary union of the Free City of Mulhouse with France. M. Clemenceau desired his gift to be taken as a tribute to the American soldiers who so splendidly aided in freeing Alsace "in reparation of the German crime."

He mentioned to Ambassador Herrick his visit to the Mount Vernon museum, where he was greatly interested in the key to the Bastille presented to Washington by Lafayette.

The Tiger made known that during his visit to Washington he acquainted President Harding with his intention of presenting the Mulhouse medal to the museum. Mr. Harding heartily approving of the gift.

$100,000,000 WILL A PARIS MYSTERY

BORROWED AGAINST ESTATE

PARIS, Dec. 22.—Both the police and the public display considerable skepticism concerning a story of a $100,000,000 will of an alleged American millionairess, Miss Lillian Fair Heller of Boston, written eighteen months ago aboard her yacht Old Chap, making a South American woman residing in Paris, Mme. Juanita Leotardi, the sole heir to the vast fortune.

The first point which puzzles the police is that Lillian Fair Heller apparently cannot be identified. Mme. Leotardi alleges she was a member of the famous California Fair family and related to Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Fair, whose death in an automobile accident between Paris and Deauville in 1905 resulted in a remarkable series of law suits to establish whether the husband or wife died first.

Miss Lillian Fair Heller — always according to Mme. Leotardi—belonged to a Boston branch of this family, and had a cousin living in Boston called Wilbur Heller, appointed the executor of the will, but who cannot be found or communicated with, although he is said to be holding an important post with the Ryerson Steel Company.

Then there is the matter of the yacht, Old Chap, which cannot be found. That is unfortunate because one of the few witnesses to Miss Lillian's sudden death two days after she wrote the will, July 6, 1921, namely, the captain of the yacht, cannot be found either. The only other witness for the Government, called Companson Compan, disappeared also. No death certificate has been forthcoming because nobody knows where the death was registered.

Tells of Compromise Moves.

No doubt because of all these difficulties Mme. Leotardi, has awaited quietly for eighteen months without taking any serious steps to enter into the vast fortune left her. She says she tried to find Wilbur Heller in Boston but could not. Then she communicated with Miss Heller's sister, Mme. Cattaui, wife of a well-known banker of Alexandria, Egypt. Mme. Cattaui, seemingly of the opinion that the sister's money should go to her own family instead of to Mme. Leotardi, at once threatened legal proceedings, but simultaneously offered to come to terms and pay Mme. Leotardi $40,000,000. The offer was refused, subsequently repeated, and later raised to $90,000,000. That appears reasonable enough, but Mme. Leotardi again refused. Why should she accept, indeed, when she was sure of $100,000,000 ultimately?

So she patiently waited for further developments and did nothing—except borrow 50,000 francs from a Paris banker on account "and 40,000 francs from a highly placed Government official, whose daughter, it was suggested, might very well one day become Mrs. Wilbur Heller of Boston.

It is owing to the fact that the first of these two creditors grew suspicious that the whole story has now become public. The American millions failing to arrive, the banker lodged a complaint with the police. Mme. Leotardi promptly reimbursed the latter, but the police, having been interested in the story, continued their investigations and an examining magistrate was appointed.

Pets' Care the Consideration.

Mme. Leotardi had given as the reason for Miss Heller's generosity toward her that they had grown to be the closest friends owing to their common love for animals. She (Mme. Leotardi) would enjoy the fortune only under the condition that she looked after Miss Heller's numerous tame animals and pets for the rest of their and theirs. These animals were remarkable and unusual, both as regards numbers and kind—embracing such widely different species as Pekinese dogs and Indian elephants. The latter were the specialty of the zoological gardens of various cities throughout the world. Panthers were kept on Miss Heller's Indian properties.

Already Mme. Leotardi has confessed that the story about the animals was untrue. "I invented it in order to amuse my husband," she said. But she stoutly maintains the truth of the story of the will and says the document produced is authentic. It is written in French, dated Marseilles, signed "Lillian Heller, Boston, U. S. A.," and makes Jane Marchado, now Leotardi, the sole heir under the condition that she look after the pet animals. These, Mme. Leotardi now says, consisted only of a number of cats, including some fine Siamese specimens that she still has with her in Paris.

The police seized a number of documents, including many letters signed with such prominent American and English names as J. P. Morgan, Ford, Duke, Somerset and Kent. All are couched in terms of warm friendship and begin "My dear Juanita." The dates are spread over the last twenty years. A curious coincidence is that the letter paper used by all these people is identical. But "Juanita" swears they are authentic.

There the matter stands today, arousing tremendous interest here because it is distinctly reminiscent of the Therese Humbert case, which several papers mention, pointing out that the name Cattaui also appeared therein.

Will In a Paris Bank.

PARIS, Dec. 22 (Associated Press).—An inquiry into the story told by a Mme. Liotardi that she was the sole legatee of the estate of Miss Lillian Fair Heller of Boston, estimated at $100,000,000, has revealed Miss Heller's will in a Paris bank and has resulted in the dismissal of fraud charges brought against Mme. Liotardi by a banker who advanced her 15,000 francs on the strength of her contention.

Mme. Liotardi sought the loan to pay the legal expenses of probating the will. M. Borg, the banker, was at first skeptical, but Mme. Liotardi explained that the testator was the niece and heir of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Fair, who were killed in an auto accident in France many years ago. Mme. Liotardi said that she met Miss Heller at Nice and that the two became great friends.

Miss Heller died on Aug. 21, 1921, on the yacht Old Chap in the Mediterranean Sea.

Mme. Liotardi said that the will was in a Paris bank, but that she had been unable to get formal proof of Miss Heller's death, although she had applied to the dead woman's sister, Mme. Cattaui, the wife of a Cairo banker. M. Borg advanced Mme. Liotardi 15,000 francs, but on her alleged failure to repay that sum he filed a charge of fraud. An inquiry was started and the will was found. Mme. Liotardi then repaid the money and M. Borg withdrew the charge.

The examining magistrate is continuing his investigation to determine whether the woman has obtained other loans on the strength of the will.

So far as can be learned, the will has not been publicly produced, or at least not made a matter of court record, so that the exact status of Mme. Liotardi as being a beneficiary still remains to be determined.

Mme. Liotardi told interviewers late today that Miss Heller's sister, Mme. Cattaui, was not the wife of a Cairo banker, as declared earlier in the case, but was in reality Ethel Cattaui, widow of an Armenian cotton dealer of Boston.

BOSTON, Dec. 22.—Miss Lillian Fair Heller, referred to in Paris dispatches today as a Boston woman who left an estate of $100,000,000, is not known to present-day Bostonians. Social and financial circles in this city recall no one of the name.

The Fair fortune, which she was said to have inherited, came from California. Charles L. Fair having been one of three direct heirs of the late Senator James G. Fair of San Francisco. This estate, however, amounted to only $35,000,000, it was reported at the time, and Charles L. Fair's share of it was divided largely between his sisters, Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Herman Oelrichs.

LEAGUE OFFERS HELP TO PAN AMERICANS

Ready to Send Specialists to Co-operate on Disarmament Plans at Santiago.

GENEVA, Dec. 22 (Associated Press).—As a means of helping the coming Pan-American Congress at Santiago, Chile, in its work, especially that bearing on disarmament, the Council of the League of Nations has offered to put at the disposal of the delegates a number of experts attached to the League's technical organizations.

While the offer has been very sympathetically received by Augustin Edwards and other South American delegates to the League Assembly, the Secretariat is awaiting detailed information from Santiago before making final preparations.

It is proposed to send men who have followed the work of the transit congress held at Barcelona and the typhus congress at Warsaw and others familiar with the procedure of the League's financial and economic committees on the European situation in general and Austria in particular.

Each expert will take with him a mass of data bearing on his specialty which, it is thought, will prove useful in the work of the Pan-American Congress.

The idea of associating the League organizations with the South American conference is a favorite project of the League Council and was widely and favorably discussed during the last assembly here.

DR. MANNING BARRED ISADORA DUNCAN'S TALK

Dancer's Address at St. Mark's-in-the-Bouwerie Called Off by Bishop's Order

It became known yesterday that it was Bishop William T. Manning who intervened when the Rev. Dr. William Norman Guthrie, rector of the Episcopal Church of St. Mark's in the Bouwerie, Second Avenue and Tenth Street, announced that Isadora Duncan, interpreter of the classic dance, would address the forum of that church Christmas eve. Miss Duncan was to have had for her topic at St. Mark's "The Moralizing Effect of Dancing on the Human Soul." A few days ago Dr. Guthrie authorized a brief statement that Miss Duncan's engagement had been canceled, but the reason remained a mystery.

Yesterday there was issued from the office of Bishop Manning to the Episcopal publications the following notice:

"The Bishop of New York has received letters of earnest protest from many parts of the country in regard to an announcement widely published in the newspapers that a dancer whose exhibitions have aroused great criticism in many of our cities would appear and speak at St. Mark's-in-the-Bouwerie, New York.

"In answer to these letters of protest Bishop Manning wishes to state that the dancer referred to will not speak at St. Mark's Church nor appear professionally in any connection with the church or its services.

CLAN LINE WON VERDICT.

Standard Oil Company Award Reversed in Scottish Court.

LONDON, Dec. 22.—A Central News dispatch from Edinburgh says that the Clan Line Steamship Company and not the Standard Oil Company, as reported yesterday, was the successful party in an action decided in the Court of Sessions in that city.

The steamship company appealed from a previous decree which had awarded the Standard Oil Company a judgment of £97,892 and costs, representing the value of a cargo shipped on the steamr Clan Gordon which sank on her way from New York to China. The action in the Court of Sessions yesterday reversed this decision and found in favor of the Clan Line.

WON'T LET MORSE GO AWAY.

District of Columbia Court Refuses Plea to Visit Rome Doctor.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—Charles W. Morse, the New York shipbuilder, who is under indictment here on charges of conspiracy to defraud in connection with war-time contracts, failed to obtain permission from the District of Columbia Supreme Court today to go to Rome to consult Dr. Machiafava, the Pope's physician.

Mr. Morse sought to make the trip on the ground that Dr. Machiafava was best qualified to treat disorders from which he was said to be suffering, but the Court ruled that the evidence presented did not warrant it in giving authority for the shipbuilder to leave the jurisdiction of the United States.

While serving a term at the Atlanta Penitentiary after conviction of violation of the Federal banking laws, Mr. Morse was pardoned by President Taft on representations that his health was broken. He was on his way to consult Dr. Machiafava a year ago when an order for his arrest under the conspiracy indictment interrupted his trip after he had reached France.

TO REOPEN SOMERSET CASE.

Washington Instructs Ellis Island to Take Further Testimony.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—Owing to a defect in the record, the case of Pat Somerset, English actor, against whom deportation proceedings have been instituted, was returned today by the Immigration Bureau to the Commissioner of Immigration at Ellis Island for the taking of additional testimony. When this has been procured by the board of special inquiry, the case will be sent here for final decision.

The proceedings were instituted against Somerset several months ago on the ground that he had committed a "felony or other misdemeanor" before entering the country and involved alleged relations with the wife of a New York theatrical producer in London.

OIL MAN KILLED IN MEXICO.

Native of Norway, Long an American Resident, Shot From Ambush.

TAMPICO, Mexico, Dec. 22 (Associated Press).—Emile Arnsten, formerly of Shreveport, La., assistant pipeline superintendent of the Mexican Gulf Oil Company, was shot and killed from ambush late yesterday on the road between Toteco and Zacamixtle, State of Vera Cruz, it was learned today.

Arnsten, who was more generally known as Eddie Anderson, is a native of Norway, but lived in the United States for many years. Although he is not thought to be a citizen of the United States, the American Consul was notified.

RUSSIAN ARTISTS SATIRIZE SOVIETS

LUNARCHARSKY CARTOONED

Official Press Brands Caricature of Minister of Education as Counter-Revolutionary.

MOSCOW, Dec. 21.—"They are saying in pictures things that would land them in jail if they said them in words," was the comment of an indignant Communist at the exhibition of paintings and drawings given here by a little society of young artists called "Noi" (the Knife).

These artists certainly go to lengths in the delicate art of caricature that few save Max Beerbohm have ever reached. Like his, the sting of their satire is often indefinable; yet a satiric intent animates every line of certain of their drawings.

For instance, there is a small pastel entitled "Narkompros" (the Ministry of Education and the Fine Arts), which has provoked a fierce attack in the official press on "the counter-revolutionary propaganda of Noi masquerading as art" from the pen of a high official in that Ministry. The pastel shows an elderly man of refined appearance—obviously Minister Lunarcharsky himself—having his hair trimmed by a rather florid and theatrical barber. That is all, but the picture is so charged with the atmosphere of dilletantism and mawkish insincerity as to be more cruel than the most vitriolic abuse. You understand in a flash why it made the Ministry foam at the mouth.

Then there is a landscape meekly
